SENATE

THURSDAY, December 10, 1925

The Chaplain, Rev. J. J. Muir, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Our gracious Father, we love to call Thee by that name. Thou art nearer to us in the sweetest fellowship of devotion and of consecration. We come this morning thanking Thee for the continuance of health and strength and for the opportunities of service not only to our loved country but to Thee, our God. Accept of us to-day and guide our thoughts in right directions, to the glory of Thy name. We ask in Jesus' name. Amen.

The Chief Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the proceedings of Tuesday last, when, on request of Mr. CURTIS and by unanimous consent, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal was approved.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 10, 1925.

ORGANIZATION OF THE CUSTOMS SERVICE

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, referred to the Committee on Finance, and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

The sundry civil act, approved August 1, 1914, contains the following provisions, viz:

The President is authorized from time to time, as the exigencies of the service may require, to rearrange, by consolidation or otherwise, the several customs-collection districts and to discontinue ports of entry by abolishing the same or establishing others in their stead: Provided, That the whole number of customs-collection districts, ports of entry, or either of them, shall at no time be made to exceed those now established and authorized except as the same may hereafter be provided by law: Provided further, That hereafter the collector of customs of each customs-collection district shall be officially designated by the number of the district for which he is appointed and not by the name of the port where the headquarters are situated, and the President is authorized from time to time to change the location of the headquarters in any customs-collection district as the needs of the service may require: And provided further, That the President shall, at the beginning of each regular session, submit to Congress a statement of all acts, if any, done hereunder and the reasons therefor.

Pursuant to the requirements of the third proviso to the said provision, I have to state the following changes in the organization of the customs service have been made, by Executive order since the last report:

By Executive order dated January 24, 1925, Petersburg, Alaska, was created a port of entry in customs-collection district No. 31 (Alaska), effective February 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated February 14, 1925, the ports of Monticello and Houlton, in customs-collection district No. 1 (Maine and New Hampshire), were abolished, effective March 1, 1925, and a new port of Houlton established in customs-collection district No. 1 (Maine and New Hampshire), comprising the townships of Houlton, Monticello, Littleton, Hodgdon, Cary, Amity, Orient, Weston, Danforth, and Forest City, effective March 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated February 20, 1925, the limits of the port of San Francisco, the headquarters port of customs-collection district No. 28 (California), were extended to include the Alameda side of the San Antonio estuary, effective March 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated April 15, 1925, the limits of the port of New York, the headquarters port of customs-collection district No. 10 (New York), were extended, effective May 1, 1925, to include the area as defined in "Joint resolution granting the consent of Congress to an agreement or compact entered into between the State of New York and the State of New Jersey for the creation of the port of New York district and the establishment of the Port of New York Authority for the comprehensive development of the port of New York," approved August 23, 1921. (Vol. 42, pt. 1, ch. 77, Stat. L. p. 175.) The ports of Newark, N. J., and Perth Amboy, N. J., included within the limits of the port of New York as herein defined, continue to be entitled to all the rights and privileges of a port of entry.

By Executive order dated June 1, 1925, Westhope, N. Dak., was created a port of entry in customs collection district No. 34 (Dakota), with headquarters at Pembina, N. Dak., effective June 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated July 8, 1925, Little Rock, Ark. (which was then a customs station), was created a port of entry in customs collection district No. 43 (Tennessee), with headquarters at Memphis, effective August 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated August 25, 1925, North Tonawanda (including Tonawanda) was abolished as a port of entry in customs collection district No. 9 (Buffalo), effective September 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated August 26, 1925, Jonesport was created a port of entry and Machias abolished as a port of entry in customs collection district No. 1 (Maine and New Hampshire), with headquarters at Portland, Me., and by the same Executive order the limits of the port of Eastport, in district No. 1, were extended to include Cutler, all effective September 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated August 26, 1925, Minneapolis was made the headquarters port for customs collection district No. 35 (Minnesota), and Minneapolis and St. Paul were made separate ports of entry in district No. 35, effective September 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated October 8, 1925, Mahukona was abolished as a port of entry in customs collection district No. 32 (Hawaii), with headquarters at Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, effective November 1, 1925.

By Executive order dated October 15, 1925, West Palm Beach was created a port of entry in customs collection district No. 18 (Florida), with headquarters at Tampa, Fla., effective October 15, 1925.

By Executive order dated November 10, 1925, Coos County, N. H., which was at that time not legally included in any customs collection district, was made a part of district No. 1 (Maine and New Hampshire), with headquarters at Portland, Me.

By Executive order dated November 11, 1925, the ports of Mars Hill and Bridgewater, in customs collection district No. 1 (Maine and New Hampshire), were abolished and a new port of entry created known as Mars Hill in said district, the newly created port including the townships of Mars Hill, Bridgewater, Blaine, and Easton, with headquarters at Portland, Me., effective November 15, 1925.

By Executive order dated November 16, 1925, the port limits of Los Angeles, the headquarters port of customs collection district No. 27 (Los Angeles), were extended to include Long Beach, Calif., effective November 15, 1925.

All of the above changes were dictated by considerations of economy and efficiency in the administration of customs and other statutes, with the enforcement of which the customs service is charged, as well as the necessities and convenience of commerce generally.

NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR AERONAUTICS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying report, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

In compliance with the provisions of the act of March 3, 1915, establishing the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, I submit herewith the eleventh annual report of the committee for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925.

The statement of the present status of aviation, as outlined in Part V of the committee's report, should dispel the impression that America is lagging in the technical development of aircraft for military purposes. Scientific research on the fundamental problems of flight and the collection of results of research conducted in other progressive nations are official duties of the committee. Their opinion that America is at least abreast of other nations in the technical development of aircraft is commended to the Congress as the most authoritative that can be had. I agree with the committee that substantial progress in aeronautics is dependent largely upon scientific research. I believe that the work of the committee is the most fundamental activity of the Government in connection with the development of aeronautics and that its continuance is essential if America is to maintain its present advanced position in aircraft development.

The condition of the aircraft industry and the prospects for the development of commercial aviation on a sound basis have materially improved during the past year. To encourage the development of commercial aviation I wish especially to indorse the recommendation of the committee for the creation of a bureau of air navigation in the Department of Commerce.

ADMINISTRATION OF THE ADJUSTED COMPENSATION ACT

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication from the Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, which was referred to the Committee on Finance:

UNITED STATES VETERANS' BUREAU,
Washington, December 5, 1925.

HON. CHARLES G. DAWES,

President of the United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. VICE PRESIDENT: Section 307, Title III, of Public 120, Sixty-eighth Congress, an act to provide adjusted compensation for veterans of the World War, and for other purposes, provides that any officer charged with the administration of any part of the act shall make a full report to Congress on the first Monday of December each year as to his administration thereof.

The Annual Report of the Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, includes a complete statement of the administration of all matters coming under his jurisdiction, including the administration of the adjusted compensation act. It is considered that this annual report fulfills the requirements of section 307 of the adjusted compensation act, making unnecessary the submittal of a special report.

Respectfully,

FRANK T. HINES, Director.

TYPEWRITER, ETC., UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Director General, United States Railroad Administration, transmitting, pursuant to law, a statement showing the make, model, and serial number of typewriter exchanged by the Railroad Administration during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a resolution of the Legislature of Tennessee, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, as follows:

STATE OF TENNESSEE,
DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

I, Ernest N. Haston, secretary of state of the State of Tennessee, do hereby certify that the annexed is a true copy of senate resolution No. 4, adopted February 4, 1925, by the Tennessee Legislature, the original of which is now on file and a matter of record in this office.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto subscribed my official signature and by order of the governor affixed the great seal of the State of Tennessee at the department in the city of Nashville, this 11th day of March, A. D. 1925.

[SEAL]

ERNEST N. HASTON,
Secretary of State.

Senate Resolution 4 (Evans)

Be it resolved by the Senate of the Sixty-fourth General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, resolved and submitted to the several States by the Congress of the United States, certified to this body by his excellency Gov. Austin Peay, of Tennessee, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"SECTION 1. The Congress shall have power to limit, prohibit, and regulate the labor of persons under 18 years of age.

"SEC. 2. The power of the several States is unimpaired by this article, except that the operation of State laws shall be suspended to the extent necessary to give effect to legislation enacted by Congress," be, and the same is hereby, rejected.

Be it further resolved, That the people of each State of the United States of America is a sovereignty, all inherent powers of the several peoples being vested in these several sovereignties, the States; that the United States of America is not a sovereignty, but is a federation or association of these States, the said sovereignties; that the United States of America, as such federation, association, or union, inherently has no powers, but derives its only powers and authorities by delegation from the several States.

Thus the Constitution of the United States of America was framed, thus has it been, and thus only can it be amended. Therefore it was intended by our forefathers, the individuals of the several sovereignties and the framers of the Constitution of the United States, and it justly should be, that only those powers and authorities are delegated by the several sovereignties to the United States of America as are necessary to properly form and preserve a perfect union, establish and conserve justice, insure and keep domestic tranquillity, provide and maintain a common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure and keep the blessings of liberty to the people of the United States and their posterity. All other powers and authorities of a sovereign people should be reserved to and retained by these people themselves, the States or sovereignties.

This and probably other amendments that have been or may be hereafter proposed to the Constitution of the United States, in the judgment and sense of this body, embrace a degree of paternalism which our National Government should not undertake, are of doubtful wisdom, and supervise private and public life in the established industries, pursuits, and enterprises to an extent which, if maintained, can not lead to the Nation's best interest. The policy of this proposed amendment in particular is doubtful in that under it the Congress might attempt to minutely regulate matters of private life and of necessary every-day undertakings, and in that the Congress would necessarily have to delegate to some commissioner, bureau, or board full power and authority to issue or refuse permits for many minor transactions connected with the agricultural, horticultural, commercial, and other activities of our citizens, leading to the most drastic results yet in bureaucratic government. Any act of Congress, under the proposed amendment, would of necessity be complex and complicated, containing myriad details of inhibition and of regulation, and regulations and rulings promulgated by the board, bureau, or commissioner charged with its enforcement under such act would still be more complex and numerous, so that the citizens would be lost in hopeless confusion and forced to temporize with a wilderness of rules and restrictions trying to confine their activities within the law.

Such drastic, strict, and paternalistic supervision by our National Government could lead only to disrespect and contempt for that law, thus breeding disobedience to all law.

The proposed amendment undertakes to a revolutionary degree to invade the rights of the States. It undertakes in an extremely socialistic manner to place the Federal Government in loco parentis as to every child under the age of 18 years. It could and would be another step toward that strong centralization of power in the Federal Government, and that destruction of State sovereignty, which would inevitably render the Federal Union top heavy and unwieldy, and the several States weak, supine, and inactive. It would encourage other amendments and legislation thereunder tending toward a socialistic, revolutionary, and soviet government.

It is the sense of this body that we can not promote but must resist and renounce such tendencies, and in rejecting this proposed amendment this Senate of the State of Tennessee, therefore, respectfully memorializes, petitions, and implores the Congress of the United States, and especially the Members of that body from the State of Tennessee, in the future to defeat within that body, and discontinue and prevent the submission to the several States of amendments of such paternalistic form, and so invading the States' rights. Be it further

Resolved, That upon their final passage these resolutions be submitted to the House of Representatives of this General Assembly of Tennessee, and by appropriate action, concur herein. Be it further

Resolved, That upon their final passage in this senate and house of representatives of this, the Sixty-fourth General Assembly of Tennessee, or upon their final passage in this senate if they be not concurred in by the house of representatives, a duly certified copy of these resolutions be forwarded to, deposited, and filed with the Secretary of State at the Capital of the United States with the request that the action herein taken be by him duly recorded as the official and final rejection by the Legislature of the State of Tennessee of said proposed amendment.

Adopted February 4, 1925.

L. D. HILL,
Speaker of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate the following joint resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

Joint resolution ratifying an amendment to the Constitution of the United States relating to child labor

Whereas both Houses of the Sixty-eighth Congress of the United States of America, at its first session, by a constitutional majority of two-thirds thereof, made the following proposition to amend the Constitution of the United States of America in the following words, to wit:

Joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following article is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, shall be valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the Constitution:

"Article —

"SECTION 1. The Congress shall have power to limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age.

"SEC. 2. The power of the several States is unimpaired by this article except that the operation of State laws shall be suspended to the extent necessary to give effect to legislation enacted by the Congress."

Resolved by the senate (the assembly concurring), That the said proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America be, and the same hereby is, ratified by the Legislature of the State of Wisconsin. And be it further

Resolved, That copies of this joint resolution, certified by the secretary of state, be forwarded by the governor to the Secretary of State at Washington, and to the Presiding Officer of each House of the Congress of the United States.

Senate: Ayes, 19; noes, 10; paired, 2.

Assembly: Ayes, 64; noes, 26.

HERMAN W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.
HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
S. W. SCHOENFELD,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate two resolutions of the Legislature of Arizona, which were referred to the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation, as follows:

STATE OF ARIZONA,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

State of Arizona, ss:

I, James H. Kerby, secretary of state, do hereby certify that the within is a true, correct, and complete copy of Senate Joint Memorial No. 3 of the Seventh Legislature of the State of Arizona, 1925, addressed to his excellency, the President of the United States; to the Hon. Secretary of State, and to the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, relative to appropriate legislative action on the waters and development of the Colorado River, the original of which is on file in this department.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal. Done at Phoenix, the capital, this 19th day of March, A. D. 1925.

JAMES H. KERBY,
Secretary of State.

Senate Joint Memorial 3

To His Excellency, the President of the United States; to the Honorable Secretary of State; and to the Senate and House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States:

Whereas a portion of the low-water flow of the Colorado River is now being put to use in the irrigation of lands in the Republic of Mexico, and there are large additional areas, variously estimated both as to extent and as to feasibility, which might be reclaimed through the use of the waters of the Colorado in the event that its flood waters were impounded and its floods thereby controlled; and

Whereas it is essential to the preservation and protection of American homes, American property, and American lives that such flood waters be impounded and its floods controlled, without unnecessary delay; and

Whereas in the event that such waters, or any portion of them, which may hereafter be impounded on American soil and by reason of such impounding may temporarily pass into the Republic of Mexico in a more or less regulated flow, should be applied to a beneficial use on Mexican lands there might arise, in the absence of a definite declaration of policy with respect thereto, on the part of the United States, a certain moral claim to their continued use, and as a matter of international comity, a recognition of such claim might seriously be considered; and

Whereas it appears from authentic information and data that there is a sufficient amount of arid land within the United States susceptible of practical reclamation by means of the waters of the Colorado to utilize all of the waters of said river; and

Whereas to deprive these lands of such waters would be manifestly an act of injustice to the people of the United States, and particularly to the citizens of the States of the Colorado River Basin, and would constitute an irreparable economic loss to this country;

Wherefore your memorialist, the Seventh Legislature of the State of Arizona, prays that by appropriate legislative action on the part of the Congress of the United States, to be taken prior to or in connection with the enactment of any legislation providing for the development of the Colorado River, the policy and purpose of the United States be announced and declared of reserving for use within the boundaries of the United States of all waters of the Colorado River which may be stored or impounded within the United States, to the end that the Republic of Mexico, its citizens, and the owners of Mexican lands may have direct and timely notice and warning that the use by them of any of such waters as may temporarily flow into Mexico shall establish no right, legal or moral, to their continued use; and

Your memorialist further prays that in any treaty, convention, or understanding between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico which may hereafter be agreed upon or undertaken said policy be strictly and steadfastly adhered to.

And your memorialist will ever pray.

JAMES H. KERBY,
Secretary of State.

House of Representatives, Seventh State Legislature, Regular Session House Concurrent Resolution 1, introduced by Mr. Wisener, giving the approval of the Legislature of the State of Arizona to the Colorado River compact, conditioned upon the approval by the Legislatures of the States of Arizona, California, and Nevada, and by the Congress of the United States, of the "Lower division States agreement," and giving the approval of the Legislature of the State of Arizona to said "Lower division States agreement," fixing the limit of time within which the said lower division States agreement shall be accepted, and creating a legislative commission, to be known as the Lower Division Colorado River Commission of the State of Arizona to discuss matters relating to the Colorado River with the Legislatures of the States of California and Nevada and with committees of the Congress of the United States

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the Seventh Legislature of the State of Arizona (the Senate concurring), That the approval of the Legislature of the State of Arizona be, and the same hereby is, given to that certain compact signed at the city of Santa Fe, N. Mex., on the 24th day of November, 1922, by the duly authorized commissioners of the States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, and Wyoming, under the authority of the act of Congress approved August 19, 1921, entitled "An act to permit a compact or agreement between the States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, and Wyoming respecting the disposition and apportionment of the waters of the Colorado River, and for other purposes," provided and upon the condition that such approval shall not become effective nor have any force whatsoever unless and until the Legislatures of the States of California and Nevada and the Congress of the United States shall approve an agreement between the States of Arizona, California, and Nevada, which agreement hereby is approved by the Legislature of the State of Arizona, in the following terms, to wit:

"LOWER DIVISION STATES AGREEMENT"

"The States of Arizona, California, and Nevada, comprising the States of the lower division, as defined in paragraph D, Article II, of the Colorado River compact, hereby enter into an agreement dividing and allocating between the said States the water allotted by the terms of the said compact to the lower basin, to the extent and in the manner provided as follows, to wit:

"ARTICLE I

"(a) There is hereby allocated to the State of Nevada, out of the apportionment to the lower basin, as provided by paragraph A, Article III, of said Colorado River compact, all of the water which can reasonably be applied within said State to domestic and agricultural uses.

"(b) There is hereby allocated, one-half to Arizona and one-half to California, equally, for application to such domestic and agricultural uses as such waters may reasonably be put to within such States, respectively, the remainder of the waters apportioned as aforesaid to the lower basin, in accordance with the provisions of said paragraph A, Article III, of said Colorado River compact.

"ARTICLE II

"The right given to the lower basin by paragraph B, Article III, of the Colorado River compact, to increase its beneficial consumptive use of the waters of the Colorado River system by 1,000,000 acre-feet per annum shall attach, relate, and belong exclusively to the State of Arizona; provided, that said right shall attach solely to and shall be held to completely exhaust the right to the use of waters of the Colorado River system entering the Colorado River within the State of Arizona below Lee Ferry.

"ARTICLE III

"Any waters which it may hereafter become necessary under the provisions of paragraph C, Article III, of the Colorado River compact, to deliver to the United States of Mexico shall be supplied first out of the surplus waters of the main Colorado River passing Lee Ferry, over and above the apportionment to the lower basin contained in paragraph A, Article III; and if said surplus shall prove insufficient, then the burden of deficiency resting upon the lower basin shall be borne by the States of Arizona, California, and Nevada exclusively out of the apportionment provided in paragraph A, Article III, in the proportion that the respective diversion by such States, out of the Colorado River, of the waters so apportioned by paragraph A, Article III, may bear to said apportionment.

"ARTICLE IV

"This agreement shall not be held to affect or alter, but is confirmatory of, the terms and provisions of the said Colorado River compact; nor shall anything herein contained be construed as affecting or intending to affect in any way, except as limited by the apportionment of waters provided in Article I hereof, or to interfere in any way with the laws of any of the said States of Arizona, California, and Nevada relating to the control, regulation, appropriation, or distribution of water used in irrigation or for domestic or other uses, or any vested rights thereunder."

Be it further resolved, That in the event the Legislature of the State of California or the Legislature of the State of Nevada shall fail to give its consent and approval, not later than the 15th day of March, 1927, to the lower division States agreement, as herein set out and hereby ratified by the Legislature of the State of Arizona, then and in such event the approval of the Legislature of the State of Arizona herein and hereby given to the said Colorado River compact and to the said lower division States agreement shall be deemed to be withdrawn and this resolution rescinded and the same shall thereby become and be null and void.

Be it further resolved, That there hereby is authorized and created a legislative commission, to be known and designated as the lower division Colorado River commission of the State of Arizona, which shall consist of the president of the senate, the speaker of the house of representatives, three members of the senate to be appointed by the president of the senate and three members of the house of representatives, to be appointed by the speaker of the house of representatives; and the governor of the State and the State water commissioner shall be ex-officio members of said commission. Said lower division Colorado River commission shall have authority, and upon request of the Legislatures of the States of California and Nevada, or of either thereof, or of any committee of the Congress of the United States, it shall be its duty, as a committee of the whole or through a sub-committee, to confer with the duly authorized representatives of the Legislatures of the said States of California and Nevada, or with any committee of the Congress of the United States, to discuss with such representatives or with any such committee the several provisions and terms of the said Colorado River compact and of the said lower division States agreement, and to negotiate with such representatives or committees respecting any and all matters connected with or relating to the waters of the Colorado River, their division, appropriation, diversion, and utilization, or with the improvement of the Colorado River and the development of its resources, to the end that the development of the said river may redound to the just benefit of the State of Arizona and as well to the mutual advantage of said States of the lower division of the Colorado River Basin; and said commission shall report the facts of such discussions and negotiations to the Legislature of the State of Arizona, with such recommendations as it may see fit to make. The expense of the said commission shall be a legislative expense, and shall be paid out of the contingent funds of the senate and house, respectively, upon claims duly approved by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of California, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, as follows:

CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE,

Assembly Joint Resolution 13. Introduced by Mr. Tom H. Louttit, January 22, 1925

ASSEMBLY CHAMBER, Sacramento, April 13, 1925.

To His Excellency the President of the United States, the Secretary of War, President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House of Representatives, Members of the Appropriations Committee of the United States Senate, and to each of the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of California:

In compliance with the provisions of Assembly Joint Resolution No. 13, adopted by the Legislature of the State of California at the forty-sixth session, I am sending you a true copy thereof, in title and words as follows:

CHAPTER 38

Assembly Joint Resolution 13. By Mr. Louttit, of the twentieth district. Relative to the improvement of the San Joaquin River and Stockton Channel by the United States, and asking the United States to appropriate sums of money for dredging, deepening, widening, and otherwise improving the said channels.

Whereas the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors of the United States War Department and the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, after extensive hearings and thorough investigations have recommended the improvement of the San Joaquin River and Stockton Channel to provide a channel from deep water in Suisun Bay to the city of Stockton, 26 feet deep at mean lower low water and 100 feet wide on the bottom, following the river route in general; and

Whereas the said board and the said Chief of Engineers have recommended that the Federal Government appropriate the sum of $2,407,500 to aid in said recommended improvements; and

Whereas concurrently with the recommendations above referred to the Board of Engineers and the Chief of Engineers have suggested that local interests contribute to the first cost of dredging and provide rights of way and terminal facilities and agree to maintain said improvements; and

Whereas the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, United States War Department, and the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, are convinced that the contemplated improvements are necessary and justified; and

Whereas the deeper channel would immediately enhance the utility of a navigable river, serve the purposes of commerce, agriculture, and industry more adequately, and greatly aid the development of the State of California: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly and the senate jointly, That the Legislature of the State of California respectfully memorialize the Congress of the United States to make appropriations in accordance with the recommendations of the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, to the Secretary of War as contained in House Document No. 554, Sixty-eighth Congress. And be it further

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be forwarded to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of War, President of the Senate, Speaker of the House, to members of the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House of Representatives, to the members of the appropriate committee of the United States Senate, and to each of the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of California.

FRANK F. MERRIAM,
Speaker of the Assembly.

C. C. YOUNG,
President of the Senate.

HARRY LUTGENS,
Private Secretary to the Governor.

FRANK C. JORDAN,
Secretary of State.

and do hereby certify that the same was duly filed with the secretary of state on April 18, 1925.

ARTHUR H. OLINEMUS,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of California, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, as follows:

CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE,

Assembly Joint Resolution 9, introduced by Mr. George C. Cleveland, January 19, 1925

ASSEMBLY CHAMBER,
Sacramento, April 18, 1925.

To the Honorable Secretary of War, Secretary of the Navy, President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Senators and Representatives of the State of California in Congress

In compliance with the provisions of Assembly Joint Resolution No. 9, adopted by the Legislature of the State of California at the forty-sixth session, I am sending you a true copy thereof, in title and words as follows:

CHAPTER 37

Assembly Joint Resolution 9, by Mr. Cleveland of the forty-third district, relating to records of service in the Army

Whereas certain original records of service of men in the reserve officers' training camps and the Regular Army have been destroyed by fire and by other means; and

Whereas it is now impossible to establish the service of the persons whose records have been so destroyed; and

Whereas it is highly important that such service records be established before the knowledge of such service shall have been lost: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Assembly and the Senate of the State of California, jointly, That Congress be urgently petitioned to provide a means by which the service records of persons in the military service of the United States which have been destroyed can be reestablished by hearings, affidavits, or some other means. And be it further

Resolved, That the chief clerk of the assembly is directed to forward copies of these resolutions to the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Senators and Representatives of the State of California in Congress.

HARRY LUTGENS,
Private Secretary to the Governor.

FRANK C. JORDAN,
Secretary of State.

FRANK F. MERRIAM,
Speaker of the Assembly.

C. C. YOUNG,
President of the Senate.

and do hereby certify that the same was duly filed with the secretary of state on April 18, 1925.

ARTHUR H. OLINEMUS,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Illinois, which was referred to the Committee on Finance, as follows:

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

I, Louis L. Emmerson, secretary of state of the State of Illinois, do hereby certify that the following and hereto attached is a true photostatic copy of House Joint Resolution No. 37, the original of which is now on file and a matter of record in this office.

In testimony whereof I hereto set my hand and cause to be affixed the great seal of the State of Illinois. Done at the city of Springfield this 1st day of December, A. D. 1925.

LOUIS L. EMMERSON,
Secretary of State.

House Joint Resolution 37

Whereas the prosperity of the American farmers, producers of the country's principal food products—wheat, corn, hogs, and cattle—is essential to the general prosperity of the people of the United States and to the development of the country's resources; and

Whereas the prices of the farmers' products have immensely depreciated in comparison with those of other industries because suitable legislation quickly enacted for the benefit of these other industries—the emergency, the Fordney-McCumber tariff law, the immigration act, and the Esch-Cummins law to maintain war-time transportation prices—raised the domestic prices of such products 40 per cent above that of the world market; and

Whereas the result of the said congressional legislation failed to give relief to the producers of said four principal foodstuff commodities but has permitted the prices of such products to be governed by the world price; and such legislation has, on the other hand, increased or maintained prices of manufactured products, thus compelling the farmer to bear the principal share of assistance given to other groups by paying enhanced prices for the things that he is compelled to buy, and by selling the said wheat, corn, hogs, and cattle at an ever-decreasing price in competition with foreign producers, so that the American farmer has been, and is being, crushed, so to speak, between the upper and the nether millstones; and

Whereas there is practically at all times a production of wheat, corn, hogs, and cattle, and their products, greater than our home or domestic demand for same, and, as a result, there is practically at all times a very considerable export from the United States of such products, and the prices of such products to the home or American producer are therefore the world price, less the cost of transportation, and, as a result, a tariff upon such products at no time benefits or helps their producers; and

Whereas the political history of England (corn-law legislation) and of France, Japan, Venezuela, and many other countries discloses that in similar situations relief has frequently been granted in respect to products whose prices are too low in proportion to prices of other products maintained through protective tariffs—the production of such latter products being not equal to the home consumption—by providing export bounties, whereby a certain amount is paid by the Government upon all products exported, and thereby the domestic price to the producer, as well as the export price, would be the world price plus the bounty and less the cost of transportation; and

Whereas it is claimed by eminent authorities that an export bounty provided for all exports of wheat, corn, hogs, and cattle, and their products, almost equal to the import tariffs thereon would relieve the producers of such products of the present inequality arising through present Federal laws, increasing the home consumption price as well as the export price to the producer by the amount of the export bounties on such products; and sufficient protective duties must be maintained to prevent reexportation of products that already have received the bounty; and

Whereas the moneys to defray the cost of paying such export bounties may properly be obtained by the levy of a small excise tax upon all such wheat, corn, hogs, and cattle sold for domestic consumption or export, or possibly on the entire production, and such excise tax will not burden the producer appreciably, which burden in any event will be infinitesimal compared with the benefits derived from the increased price of all such products sold for home consumption or export due to the payment of bounties on exports of such products: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Fifty-fourth General Assembly of the State of Illinois (the Senate concurring therein), That the Congress of the United States be, and it is hereby, requested at the next session of Congress to consider the subject matter of this resolution and the preambles thereof, with a view to the passage of legislation embodying a scientific plan or program by which reasonable export bounties may be provided to be paid upon all exports of wheat, corn, hogs, and cattle, and their products, and by which the money to pay such bounties may be provided by the persons economically benefited, to the end that the producers' prices of such products for domestic and foreign consumption may be materially increased, thus relieving the farmer of the unequal and unfair position in which he now stands, as compared with the manufacturer and others engaged in similar enterprises, and also placing the farmer on such a basis that he may conduct his business on an equal footing with others and may realize a reasonable profit from his business operations; and that a certified copy of this resolution be delivered to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate of the United States, and also to each Congressman and Senator from the State of Illinois.

Adopted by the house May 20, 1925.

ROBERT CHOTE,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House of Representatives.

Concurred in by the senate June 9, 1925.

FRED E. STERLING,
President of the Senate.
JAMES H. PADDOCK,
Secretary of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a concurrent resolution of the Legislature of Indiana, which was referred to the Committee on Immigration, as follows:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
STATE OF INDIANA,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

I, F. E. Schortemeier, secretary of state of the State of Indiana, hereby certify that the annexed pages contain a full, true, and complete copy of the concurrent resolution of the seventy-fourth regular session of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana adopted by the senate and house of representatives February 25, 1925, as the same appears on file, as the law directs, in this office.

In testimony whereof I hereunto set my hand and affix the great seal of the State of Indiana. Done at my office in the city of Indianapolis this 30th day of April, A. D. 1925.

[SEAL.]

F. E. SCHORTEMEIER,
Secretary of State.

A concurrent resolution approving the policy of selective immigration and registration of aliens, as advocated by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis

Whereas the members of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana have heard with great satisfaction the admirable address of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis delivered to a joint session of the two houses on Wednesday, February 25, 1925; and

Whereas the members of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana cordially indorse the policy of immigration advocated and explained by Secretary Davis as being the best calculated to preserve the ethnological integrity and texture of the population of this country: Therefore SECTION 1. Be it resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring), That the General Assembly of the State of Indiana hereby approves the immigration policy as advocated by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and hereby urges the Congress to enact the necessary laws to provide for selective immigration and the registration of aliens, as provided by Secretary Davis.

SEC. 2. That the secretary of state is hereby directed to send a copy of this resolution to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the United States and Senate, and to each Representative and Senator in Congress from Indiana.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a house joint memorial of the Legislature of Oregon, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, as follows:

STATE OF OREGON, THIRTY-THIRD LEGISLATIVE
HALL OF REPRESENTATIVES.

House Joint Memorial 4

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled:

We, your memorialists, the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon, respectfully submit that:

Whereas there is situated in Harney County, Oreg., two inland bodies of water known as Malheur and Harney Lakes, which are fed by the waters of Silvies River from the north and by the Blitzen River from the south; and

Whereas there are large bodies of arable land lying along and adjacent to said streams largely in private ownership, and the owners thereof have appropriated certain of the waters of said streams for the irrigation and reclamation of said lands; and

Whereas the State of Oregon, in its sovereign capacity, claims to be the owner of the bed of said lakes and of certain of the lands riparian thereto, together with the right to the use of the waters of said lakes and streams aforesaid for the irrigation of said riparian lands; and

Whereas President Roosevelt did, on August 18, 1908, by proclamation, set aside all of the land lying within the meandered lines of said lakes, and of the waters and streams connecting the said lakes, and designated the same as the Malheur Bird Reservation; and

Whereas the State of Oregon has asserted its title to the bed of said lakes and to such of the lands riparian thereto as it may be found to be the owner of, together with sufficient of the waters of said lakes and streams aforesaid to properly reclaim and irrigate said riparian lands; and

Whereas the United States and the Department of Agriculture, claiming under the provisions of said proclamation, claim all of the lands within the meander lines of said lakes, together with the bed thereof, and certain of the waters of said streams for the purpose of perpetuating such bird reservation, and that, by reason of said claims, have made it impossible to determine what part of said waters may be stored for irrigation and how much should be allowed to escape to said bird reservation; and

Whereas such uncertainty results in hindering and delaying the reclamation of the lands adjacent to said streams and lakes and clouds the State's title to its said riparian lands; and

Whereas numerous attempts have been made to compromise and adjust the respective rights of the United States, the State of Oregon, and such riparian owners and water appropriators, and these parties have been unable to agree upon the terms of any compromise; and

Whereas the United States in its sovereign capacity can not be sued or impleaded in an action without the consent of Congress: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon, That the Congress of the United States be, and the same is hereby, memorialized to pass, at its earliest opportunity, appropriate legislation enabling and permitting the State of Oregon to sue the United States in the Federal courts of the district of Oregon, with proper rights of appeal, in a suit or action that will speedily determine the respective rights of all parties therein concerned to the use of the waters of said lakes and streams, and the respective rights, titles, and ownerships of the United States, the State of Oregon, and the respective riparian owners in and to the beds of said lakes and streams and the lands riparian thereto: Be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of state of the State of Oregon be, and is hereby, instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to each Member of Congress of the United States of America.

Adopted by the house February 4, 1925.

DENTON G. BURDICK,
Speaker of the House.

Adopted by the senate February 17, 1925.

GUS. C. MOSER,
President of the Senate.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
STATE OF OREGON,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

I, Sam A. Koser, secretary of state of the State of Oregon, and custodian of the seal of said State, do hereby certify:

That I have carefully compared the annexed copy of House Joint Memorial No. 4 with the original thereof adopted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Thirty-third Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon and filed in the office of the secretary of state of the State of Oregon February 19, 1925, and that the same is a full, true, and complete transcript therefrom and of the whole thereof, together with all indorsements thereon.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed hereto the seal of the State of Oregon. Done at the capitol at Salem, Oreg., this 20th day of February, A. D. 1925.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint memorial of the Legislature of Oregon, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, as follows:

STATE OF OREGON, THIRTY-THIRD LEGISLATIVE
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.
House Joint Memorial 3

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled:

Your memorialist, the Legislature of the State of Oregon, respectfully represents that:

Whereas Diamond Lake, situated in the Umpqua National Forest in the State of Oregon approximately 20 miles north of Crater Lake, was originally barren of fish life; and

Whereas the State of Oregon has stocked Diamond Lake with rainbow trout and within a comparatively few years has developed this lake into what is undoubtedly one of the greatest fishing lakes in the world and has developed upon the shores of this body of water the greatest rainbow trout egg-taking station on the continent, producing annually in excess of 17,000,000 trout eggs; and

Whereas any act or thing which might deprive the State of Oregon of the free use of this body of water for the uses herein mentioned would inflict inestimable and irreparable damage upon the State of Oregon: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of Oregon (the Senate jointly concurring), That we do most earnestly petition and memorialize the Senate and the House of Representatives in the name of the State of Oregon that the said Diamond Lake and a sufficient amount of land on the borders thereof upon which to carry out the purposes of the State of Oregon in fishing, fish culture and propagation be granted and deeded to the State of Oregon in perpetuity for the said purposes of fishing, fish culture, and propagation. Be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of state of the State of Oregon be, and is hereby, instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to each Member of Congress of the United States of America.

Adopted by the house January 28, 1925.

DENTON G. BURDICK,
Speaker of the House.

Adopted by the Senate February 12, 1925.

GUS C. MOSER,
President of the Senate.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
STATE OF OREGON,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

I, Sam A. Kozier, secretary of state of the State of Oregon, and custodian of the seal of said State, do hereby certify:

That I have carefully compared the annexed copy of House Joint Memorial No. 3 with the original thereof adopted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Thirty-third Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon and filed in the office of the secretary of state of the State of Oregon February 17, 1925, and that the same is a full, true, and complete transcript therefrom and of the whole thereof, together with all indorsements thereon.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed hereto the seal of the State of Oregon. Done at the capitol at Salem, Oreg., this 20th day of February, A. D. 1925.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint memorial of the Legislature of Oregon, which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry as follows:

STATE OF OREGON,
THIRTY-THIRD LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY—REGULAR SESSION,
HALL OF REPRESENTATIVES.
House Joint Memorial 1

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled:

Your memorialist, the Legislature of the State of Oregon, respectfully represents that:

Whereas there is now pending before the Congress of the United States a bill known by the short title of "migratory bird refuge act," and

Whereas the provisions of this bill include the assessment of an annual hunting-license fee from all persons hunting migratory game birds, and

Whereas the enactment of this bill by the Congress of the United States would greatly interfere with and impede similar measures of conservation already undertaken or contemplated by the State of Oregon. Now therefore be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of Oregon (the Senate jointly concurring), That we do most earnestly petition and memorialize the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in the name of the State of Oregon that the said "migratory bird refuge act" be not enacted into law. Be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of state of the State of Oregon be, and is hereby, instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to each Member of Congress of the United States of America.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a senate joint memorial of the Legislature of Oregon, which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs, as follows:

STATE OF OREGON,
THIRTY-THIRD LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY—REGULAR SESSION,
SENATE CHAMBER.
Senate Joint Memorial 6

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled:

We, your memorialists, the Senate of the State of Oregon, and the House of Representatives concurring, respectfully represent that:

Whereas the battleship Oregon symbolizes valiant service to our country by reason of her world-famed voyage of 14,000 miles from the shores of the Pacific to the rendezvous of the American fleet before Santiago, Cuba, at the commencement of the Spanish-American War, and again by reason of her achievement in the great naval battle before Santiago July 3, 1898, thus bringing to the name "Oregon" traditions that will endure so long as time shall last;

Whereas a patriotic people deem it fitting and proper that the valorous performance of the noble ship and the valiant deeds of the crews that manned her shall be perpetuated;

Whereas the preservation of the battleship Oregon as a national historic museum would be an enduring tribute to the glorious history of the United States Navy, which, unconquered and undaunted, has for 150 years sailed the seven seas; and, moreover, would be to all citizens an inspiration for patriotism and loyalty;

Whereas the battleship Oregon, the last historical monument of the Spanish-American War, was expressly and unanimously excluded from the scrapping provisions adopted by the Limitation of Arms Conference held at Washington, D. C., for the reason that the people of this Commonwealth, speaking as true Americans, had claimed this gallant ship, with its many noble traditions, to be revered and forever cherished as a shrine of national devotion: Be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of Oregon (the House of Representatives jointly concurring therein), That we do hereby petition and memorialize Congress to enact legislation which shall provide for the immediate transfer by the United States Government of the battleship

Oregon from the Puget Sound naval station to the harbor at Portland, Oreg., and for its maintenance there by the United States Government as a national historic museum: Be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of state of the State of Oregon be, and he is hereby, instructed to transmit by mail a copy of this memorial to each Member of the Congress, the Secretary of the Navy, and the President of the United States for action.

Adopted by the senate February 19, 1925.

House Joint Memorial 13

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled:

We, your memorialists, the House of Representatives of the State of Oregon, the Senate concurring, respectfully represent that:

Whereas the State of Oregon, by Chapter XX of the General Laws of Oregon, 1923, in commemoration of the Lewis and Clark expedition designated the ocean end of Broadway in the city of Seaside, Oreg., as the end of the Lewis and Clark trail; and

Whereas it is thought fitting and proper that the State of Oregon, represented by your memorialists, should petition the Congress of the United States to enact legislation naming the ocean end of the street known as Broadway in the city of Seaside, Clatsop County, Oreg., as the end of the Lewis and Clark trail, and that the Government of the United States erect a suitable memorial at or near said place in commemoration of the patriotic work of the Lewis and Clark expedition: Therefore be it

Resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring), That the Congress of the United States be, and it is hereby, memorialized to enact said bill or legislation of similar character. And be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of state be directed to transmit by mail a copy of this memorial to the President of the United States Senate and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and to each of the Senators and Representatives from the State of Oregon.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
State of Montana, ss:

I, C. T. Stewart, secretary of state of the State of Montana, do hereby certify that the following is a true and correct copy of an act entitled "A joint resolution requesting the appointment of a commission by the Governor of the State of Montana, consisting of three Members of the Senate and three Members of the House of Representatives, to act in conjunction with a commission of the United States for the purpose of considering and carrying out a governmental program for the proper commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington," enacted by the nineteenth session of the Legislative Assembly of the State of Montana, and approved by J. E. Erickson, governor of said State, on the 28th day of February, 1925.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of said State.

Senate Joint Resolution 6 (introduced by committee on Federal relations) requesting the appointment of a commission by the Governor of the State of Montana, consisting of three members of the senate and three members of the house of representatives, to act in conjunction with a commission of the United States for the purpose of considering and carrying out a governmental program for the proper commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington

Whereas on December 2, A. D. 1924, the President of the United States signed the bill passed in June by the Congress of the United States whereby a commission composed of 15 members was created for the purpose of the consideration and carrying out of a governmental program for the commemoration, nationally and internationally, of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington; and

Whereas the foregoing-mentioned project was conceived and accomplished by and through the efforts of the George Washington Sulgrave Institution; and

Whereas it is the purpose and work of the aforementioned institution to present the matter to the several States of the Union, with the hope in view that each State will officially sanction and further such project and thereby enable the Nation as a whole to participate in this notable and tremendous celebration: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate of the Legislature of the State of Montana (the House of Representatives concurring), That, in view of the foregoing, this assembly, for and in behalf of itself and the people of the State, record themselves in favor of the observance of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, and earnestly request the Governor of the State of Montana to appoint a commission consisting of three members of the senate and three members of the house of representatives to act in conjunction with the commission selected or which may be selected by Congress in order that the two hundredth anniversary of the Father of our Country be properly and fittingly observed. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the secretary of state to the Congress of the United States and to the George Washington Sulgrave Institution at Washington, D. C.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Nevada, which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys, as follows:

Senate joint resolution requesting the President and the Congress of the United States to take appropriate steps to vest in the State of Nevada the title to certain lands by gift, exchange, and the settlement of existing claims and conflicting records

Whereas the State of Nevada claims and might claim certain consideration from the General Government arising out of unsuitable public lands already conveyed to the State and out of certain differences in the records of the public lands as kept by the General Government and the State of Nevada, respectively, which said claims may total in excess of 50,000 acres; and

Whereas the action of the President of the United States and the Congress of the United States is requisite to begin and conduct negotiations for the accomplishment by gift, exchange, and compromise of the purposes outlined herein: Therefore be it

Resolved by the senate and the assembly jointly, That the Congress of the United States be, and it is hereby, petitioned and memorialized to pass an act requesting and authorizing the President to designate such areas in the public domain located in the State of Nevada as should, in his opinion, be set aside for ultimate conveyance to the State of Nevada. That said act shall provide that upon recommendation of the Secretary of Agriculture the Secretary of the Interior may patent to the State of Nevada not exceeding 50,000 acres of non-mineral public lands not otherwise appropriated or withdrawn within the areas set aside by the President; that such patents may be conditioned on the deeds of conveyance, reconveyance, relinquishment, accord, and settlement, such as may be demanded by the General Government in consideration of such lands so to be received by the State of Nevada; and that such conditions may be imposed by the said Secretary of the Interior, who shall have authority to investigate, verify, and state the said accounts.

Resolved, That copies of this resolution shall be sent by the secretary of state to the President of the United States and to the presiding officers of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States in Congress assembled.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Nevada, which was referred to the Committee on Finance, as follows:

Assembly joint resolution memorializing Congress to establish, equip, and maintain a hospital in the State of Nevada for the accommodation and treatment of war veterans for tuberculosis and other respiratory afflictions

Whereas nearly all of the States of the United States have within their borders hospitals for the treatment of war veterans suffering with tuberculosis and other respiratory afflictions; and

Whereas there are now in the State of Nevada and the district allotted to the State of Nevada approximately 9,000 ex-service men of our various wars; and

Whereas the hospital provided for such purposes in the State of California is overcrowded, and recently by reason of lack of accommodations Nevada patients have been unable to gain entrance to the California hospital; and

Whereas the climate of the State of Nevada is particularly conducive to favorable progress of people afflicted with tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases; and

Whereas the western hospitals are now carrying an overload of approximately 25 per cent of patients coming from the East, and the favorable climatic conditions existing in the West is bound to add to the increased emigration to the Western States; and

Whereas there is unquestionably an urgent need for the establishment of such a hospital in the State of Nevada; and

Whereas the State of Nevada is proud of its war record and of the men who offered all for the honor of their State and of this Nation: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Congress of the United States be memorialized to proceed with the establishment and equipment of a suitable hospital in the State of Nevada for the purpose of caring for our heroes who are now suffering with disease, and for the care and attention of those who may hereafter become afflicted and be entitled to care suitable and necessary for the alleviation and cure of such affliction. Be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution, under the great seal of the State of Nevada, be transmitted to the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States, and that properly authenticated copies hereof be by the secretary of state forthwith transmitted to each of our Senators and to our Representatives in Washington, and to Gen. Frank T. Hines, Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate two joint resolutions of the Legislature of Nevada, which were referred to the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation, as follows:

Senate Joint Resolution 17, introduced by Senator Vencill March 13, 1925, memorializing the Congress of the United States to grant to the State of Nevada 2,000,000 acres of public lands to be disposed of for the purpose of aiding and financing settlers upon reclamation projects and for reclamation purposes

Approved March 21, 1925

Whereas H. R. 10020, enacted by the Sixty-eighth Congress, provides that the Secretary of the Interior shall request the State of Nevada to aid in the settlement and development of the Spanish Springs division of the Newlands project and aid in the financing of its settlers; and

Whereas the State of Nevada, by reason of its sparse population and limited wealth, is unable to undertake so heavy a responsibility with the resources now at the command of its State government; and

Whereas of the 70,000,000 acres of land embraced in such State, more than 60,000,000 acres are owned by the Federal Government, 52,000,000 acres of which are unreserved and unappropriated; and

Whereas the State of Nevada desires to comply with the said condition attached to the appropriation for the construction of the Spanish Springs extension and assist in all ways possible in the selection and financing of its settlers in order to make the project a success: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and Assembly of the State of Nevada, That Congress be requested to grant to the State of Nevada 2,000,000 acres of the unappropriated and unreserved nonmineral-bearing lands situated in such State so that the proceeds of sale thereof may be used for the reclamation of its arid lands under such conditions as Congress may impose. And be it further

Resolved, That the State of Nevada hereby pledges its faith to use the proceeds arising therefrom to such ends exclusively as may be consistent with the act of Congress making such conveyance. And

Resolved further, That copies of this resolution, duly authenticated, be transmitted forthwith by the secretary of state of Nevada, to the President and the Congress of the United States.

Senate joint resolution memorializing the Congress of the United States to enact a law declaring that beneficial use shall be the basis, the measure, and the limit of the right to the use of the public water of the States and Territories of the United States

Whereas the development of the agricultural resources of the western arid or semiarid States is dependent upon the use of the public waters for the irrigation of lands; and

Whereas the present laws of the western arid or semiarid States relating to the use of water for irrigation purposes are the outgrowth of a period of some 60 years, a comparatively short time of the evolution of laws; and

Whereas the so-called common law of riparianism relating to the use of the public waters has been found, through the experience of the western arid or semiarid States, to be not best fitted to the existing conditions; and

Whereas all, or practically all, of the western arid or semiarid States have discarded the common-law doctrine of riparianism as applied to the public waters; and

Whereas the Congress of the United States has, in its various land and reclamation acts, consistently referred to the "local customs, laws, and decisions of the courts" whenever reference has been made to the appropriation of water; and

Whereas all the western arid or semiarid States have declared in principle that "the water of all sources of supply within the boundaries of the State belong to the public," and that "beneficial use shall be the basis, the measure, and the limit of the right to the use of water"; and

Whereas none of the States or Territories of the United States has ever delegated to the United States control over the public waters within said States: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and Assembly of the State of Nevada, That this body hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States to enact a law declaring, in substance, that the United States has not and never has had power or control over the public waters for irrigation purposes, and declaring that the officers of the United States shall make application to the various States for the appropriation of water whenever in the administration of the affairs of the United States it is necessary to acquire water rights for irrigation purposes. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, duly authenticated, be transmitted without delay by the secretary of state of Nevada to the President of the United States, the Congress of the United States, to the legislatures of the several western arid or semiarid States, and to the Representatives of the State of Nevada in Congress.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of North Dakota, which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, as follows:

Senate bill 196, introduced by Mr. O. H. Olson and Mr. Magnuson. A joint resolution requesting Congress to enact suitable legislation to protect the farmer's market and reduce his marketing cost.

Be it resolved by the Senate of the State of North Dakota (the House of Representatives concurring):

Whereas agriculture is entitled to equal protection with industry and labor, and the export surplus should not be allowed to fix the domestic price and nullify tariff provisions ostensibly enacted for the benefit of agriculture; and

Whereas it is essential to successful cooperation that the local and terminal marketing machinery be cooperatively owned and operated by the producers: Be it

Resolved by the Legislative Assembly of the State of North Dakota, That Congress be requested to enact suitable legislation for the immediate benefit of agriculture, providing a practical method of segregating and disposing of the surplus, in order that the American farmer may sell at an American price and share with industry and labor equal protection against foreign prices: Be it further

Resolved, That Federal aid be directed to the acquisition and operation by cooperatives of the local and terminal facilities essential to cooperative marketing, and that the market places of the great staples be opened to all buyers and sellers without discrimination and subject only to legal restrictions: And be it further

Resolved, That a duly authenticated copy of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Representative of the State of North Dakota in the United States Senate and House of Representatives.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a concurrent resolution of the Legislature of North Dakota, which was referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, as follows:

Concurrent resolution introduced in the House of Representatives of the State of North Dakota by G. W. Morton

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of North Dakota (the Senate concurring):

Whereas a condition exists in the United States and in every State in the Union which is causing great hardship upon the taxpayers and the citizens of the United States and has its foundation in the Federal aid for the building of highways, through moneys appropriated by the Congress of the United States, and that it is resulting in extravagant mismanagement and heavy taxation upon citizens and property owners, who are not financially able to bear the burden; and

Whereas since such Federal aid if given only when managed through a State and is given only when heavy appropriations are made by State, which can only be given when heavy appropriations are made by county, that a vicious chain is created, because each State feels that it must maintain a costly and extravagant State highway commission in order to obtain the benefits of the Federal aid; each county feels that in order to obtain the benefits of the Federal and State aid it must maintain an expensive, costly, and extravagant machinery for the administration of such road building and must appropriate large sums of money which its citizens are financially unable to meet, and that since the Federal aid is given the State feels that it is going to be a heavy loser in comparison with other States unless it maintains the highway commission and makes the appropriation, and each county in the State feels that it will be a heavy loser as compared with other counties unless it makes heavy appropriations, and the result is that the United States is extravagant and is laying a burden upon its citizens; each State is extravagant, laying a burden upon its citizens; each county is extravagant, laying a burden upon its citizens; and that the result is that as long as the United States Government continues to give Federal aid there can be no lasting relief from the excessive burden of taxation imposed and the extravagant expenditure of public moneys, and the burden of taxation upon its people without adequate return, and the expenditure of money beyond the means of the people to meet the burden in the payment of taxes: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Legislative Assembly of the State of North Dakota (the Senate concurring), That we do hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States and respectfully urge that Congress take immediate action toward a repeal of the Federal aid for State highways, to the end that the extravagant mismanagement and ill-advised expenditure of moneys by each State and county in the United States be eliminated, and that a more rational and sane and more carefully supervised expenditure of money be worked out by each local community. Be it further

Resolved; that the secretary of state of North Dakota send a copy of this resolution to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives in Congress and to the speaker of the house and the president of the senate in each and every State in the Union and also to the Members of Congress and Senators from North Dakota.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA.

To all to whom these presents shall come:

I, Robert Byrne, secretary of state of the State of North Dakota, do hereby certify that the following resolution was adopted by the senate of the nineteenth legislative assembly on the 5th day of March, A. D. 1925.

Dated at Bismarck, N. Dak., this the 31st day of March, 1925.

ROBERT BYRNE,
Secretary of State.

A concurrent resolution (Hamilton) memorializing the Congress of the United States to take steps toward the establishment of a national park in Billings County, N. Dak., embracing the wonderful petrified forest there located, to be called Roosevelt Park.

Be it resolved by the Senate of North Dakota (the House of Representatives concurring), We, the nineteenth legislative assembly of the State of North Dakota, beg leave to represent to your honorable bodies:

First. That there is in the western part of North Dakota, lying within the boundaries of Billings, Golden Valley, Slope, and McKenzie Counties, a tract of land bordering the Little Missouri River that is marvelous in its geological formation and configuration as the result of subterranean coal fires, sinking in of the surface, and the washings and slides of the ages, the whole forming a scenic beauty alike weird and attractive. Here are seen the stratas in many colors of the world's progressive deposits, among which many prehistoric animal remains have been found, together with the fossils of periods long before the time of man, the peaks, precipices, slides, and washouts presenting a picture even now attracting tourists from all over the country.

Second. That in this section is found a petrified forest, the like of which, we are informed, does not exist upon the American Continent; in fact, that all over this region are found the remains in petrified and crystallized form of two distinct forests that thrived at periods probably millions of years apart, and brought to view as the surfaces are uncovered by the washings of the ages. This petrified forest lies in a region superb, though rugged beauty, and is unlike others in that respect. Thousands of stumps are found here, some of the stumps being as large as 14 feet in diameter, and many rest on tall columns of clay, resembling the pillars of a ruined temple. It is a veritable wonderland of growths that existed in the time of the huge animal and vegetable life of the early world periods, and much of these remains will be destroyed or carried away by visitors unless properly protected.

Third. That here can even now be seen nature continuing her work of transforming prairie land into "bad lands" through the burning of the coal far beneath the surface and the dropping of the upper earth crust hundreds of feet into the great caverns created by the fires, leaving a weird and awesome landscape. The smoke from these hidden fires creeps up through crevices and in places far down a dropped cartridge can be heard exploding, while everywhere great piles of red scoria tell of clay burned to a bricklike substance and furnishing a splendid road-making material.

Fourth. That in the valleys of this region are frequent groves of pine, quaking aspens, cedars, ash, cottonwood, and box-elder trees, and an abundance of wild fruits, together with a flora undiscovered elsewhere in the Northwest. The region contains many springs of fine water, from which rivulets are formed that flow down the swales and valleys to the river, thus affording a good water supply for livestock or wild animals, there being deer and antelope now in that region, with capacity for feeding thousands more of these or other wild game. Flowing artesian wells can be had for the digging.

Fifth. That it was here that Theodore Roosevelt had his cattle ranches in the early days of the Territory of Dakota, and where undoubtedly he imbibed many of the characteristics of those who live in the great open spaces and which gave him the broad outlook that ever characterized his later life. And it is partly in memory of him and because this region presents itself as a great natural outing place or playground for those who love nature or seek its fantastic wonders that we respectfully memorialize you, the Congress, to set aside so much of this region as may be deemed necessary for the creation by act of Congress of a national park and to make an appropriation of a sum sufficient for its purchase, and we would respectfully suggest that such park, if created, be called the Roosevelt bad-lands national park. And we would call attention to the fact that less than 5 per cent of this land is susceptible to cultivation; that considerable of it is still in Government ownership, and that the balance can be acquired at a very small expense.

Sixth. And we further call your attention to the fact that the Yellowstone Trail, a great transcontinental highway, touches this region at its southern end; that the National Parks Highway, another great transcontinental highway, passes through it; and that the Roosevelt Highway passes by its northern end, making it easy of access by the thousands of tourists who travel back and forth through North Dakota each year. And we also call your attention to the fact that in 1924 over 100,000 tourists in about 25,000 cars passed over the National Parks Highway alone, hundreds of whom made the necessary detour through the proposed park region to view its beauties and the petrified forest, even taking saddle horses to reach its more inaccessible beauties. And we still further call your attention to the fact that between the park region of northern Minnesota and the Yellowstone Park there is no other place of national-park standard where tourists may vary their journey by a glimpse of one of nature's most peculiar achievements: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That a copy of this memorial be sent by the secretary of state of North Dakota to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of the Interior, to each House of Congress, to the North Dakota Senators and Congressmen, and to the Director of the National Park Service, all of Washington, D. C., and that we request our congressional delegation to use their every effort to secure passage of a bill creating said national park.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a concurrent resolution of the Legislature of North Dakota, which was referred to the Committee on Finance, as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA.

To all to whom these presents shall come:

I, Robert Byrne, secretary of state of the State of North Dakota, do hereby certify that the following resolution was adopted by the house of representatives of the nineteenth legislative assembly on the 3d day of March, A. D. 1925.

[SEAL.]

ROBERT BYRNE,
Secretary of State.

Concurrent resolution

Be it resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring):

Whereas Congress has, through special legislation, in the form of protective tariff, protected the product of labor and industry from the competition of foreign peoples and has so saved the American market for the products of American labor and American industry and made possible the American standard of prices, which is far in excess of the standard of world markets, and

Whereas Congress has, through special legislation, known as restricted immigration, protected the American laborer from the disastrous competition of foreign peoples and has so saved the American job for the American laborer and make possible the maintenance of the American standard of wages; and

Whereas the said special classes of legislation have afforded such ample and effective protection to the American laborer and the American manufacturer as to, quoting our President in his message to Congress, "enable them to live according to a better standard and receive a better rate of compensation than any people, any time, anywhere on earth have ever enjoyed;"

Whereas the protection so afforded to American labor and American manufacturers, supporting for them an American standard of prices for their products, has forced upon the American farmer an American standard of prices for the things he must buy, the taxes he must pay, and the labor he must hire;

Whereas protective tariffs for agricultural products are almost wholly ineffective where the product is produced in excess of demand for home consumption;

Whereas American agriculture does produce an exportable surplus of all of the major products of agriculture and the American farmer therefore finds himself almost wholly unprotected from that disastrous competition of foreign peoples;

Whereas the American farmer is therefore forced to sell his product on the low standard of world prices in open competition with the South American Indian, the peon of India, the peasant of Russia, whose overhead represents the lowest standards of living in the world, and is at the same time forced to buy his necessities from a protected market, at an American standard of prices, bolstered up and sustained behind the protective tariff and restricted immigration walls;

Whereas this unbalanced condition is chiefly responsible for the distressed condition of agriculture, a condition which has now continued for over four years, and has brought actual bankruptcy upon thousands of farmers and upon business enterprises, wholly dependent upon the farmers' prosperity, having in countless instances swept away the accumulated savings of a lifetime;

Whereas the present better prices of some farm commodities represent only a temporary and local condition, and the fundamental cause of the distress has not been removed;

Whereas the direct cause of this unbalanced condition was, and is, the effect of the two protective measures above referred to, in that they have protected and made possible the maintenance of the high American standard of prices, of the products of American labor, and of the American manufacturer, which constitute the necessities the farmer must buy, while he is afforded no effective protection from foreign competition and, therefore, must accept the low world standard of prices for the things he has to sell;

Whereas this condition is unwarranted, unfair, and un-American, wherein two of the basic branches of American industry have and maintain, through the direct effect of legislation, an advantage over the third;

Whereas we believe the protective policy is sound in principle and, if fairly administered, destined to greatly increase the public welfare;

Whereas the farmer is forced, for the preservation of his home and his inalienable right to justice as an American citizen, to demand the abandonment of the policy or its adaption to existing conditions:

Be it resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring), That we respectfully urge that Congress, during its present session, pass and place upon our statute books such legislation as will effectively give to agriculture the same protection as is now afforded to industry and labor; and

Whereas the protective tariff does not protect agricultural products because of the exportable surplus, that Congress devise some effective method of segregating the exportable surplus, or some means whereby the agricultural industry may itself segregate its surplus, to the end that the protection may be made effective on and that American market be saved for the product of the American farmer and an American standard of agricultural commodity prices made possible;

That the secretary of state transmit this memorial to the President of the United States, to both Houses of Congress, and to the Senators and Representatives therein, and to the legislatures of all the agricultural States.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Texas, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, as follows:

Senate joint resolution requesting the Congress of the United States to appropriate funds to carry out certain recommendations of the Chief of Staff of the United States Army made in furtherance of the national defense act of 1920

Whereas the President of the United States, in a recent message to the Congress of the United States, has stated that the Army and Navy of the United States should be strengthened, and that a people who neglect their national defense are putting in jeopardy their national honor; and

Whereas, in furtherance of the national defense act of 1920, and in order to increase and promote the strength and effectiveness of the Army, the Chief of Staff of the Army of the United States has recommended substantially as follows:

- (a) That the Regular Army be brought back to the strength of 150,000 enlisted men and 13,000 officers, and that it be suitably housed and enabled to conduct annual maneuvers on a moderate scale;
- (b) That the National Guard be given the support necessary to permit its progressive development toward a strength of 250,000;
- (c) That the skeleton organization of the Organized Reserves be adequately maintained;
- (d) That all reserve officers receive an average of 15 days training in each three years;
- (e) That the Reserve Officers' Training Corps units be further developed; and
- (f) That provision may be made for a gradual increase in the number accommodated annually in citizens' military training camps: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

SECTION 1. That the Legislature of the State of Texas respectfully and earnestly urge upon the Congress of the United States the necessity of appropriating such funds and enacting such legislation as will adequately provide for the effective carrying out of the provisions of the national defense act of 1920, and also the recommendations of the Chief of Staff of the Army of the United States hereinbefore set forth.

SEC. 2. Suitable copies of this resolution shall be sent by the secretary of state to the President of the United States, the presiding officers of both branches of Congress, to the Senators and Representatives in Congress from this State, and to the members of the congressional Committees on Appropriations and on Military Affairs.

Approved March 16, 1925.

THE STATE OF TEXAS,
DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

I, D. A. Gregg, chief clerk and acting secretary of state, do hereby certify that the attached and foregoing is a true and correct copy of Senate Joint Resolution No. 19, passed at the regular session of the Thirty-ninth Legislature of the State of Texas, which convened in the city of Austin, Tex., on January 13, 1925, and adjourned March 19, 1925, and which resolution was approved by the governor on March 16, 1925; said resolution providing and urging upon the Congress of the United States the necessity of appropriating funds and making such legislation as will adequately provide for the effective carrying out of the provisions of the national defense act of 1920.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto signed my name officially and caused to be impressed hereon the seal of State at my office in the city of Austin this the 6th day of October, A. D. 1925.

[SEAL.]

D. A. GREGG,

Chief Clerk, Acting Secretary of State.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which was referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, as follows:

Joint resolution memorializing Congress to pass and the President of the United States to approve Senate bill 3674, relating to salaries of postal employees

Whereas the Congress of the United States has within the past year passed a bill granting a $300 increase in salary to letter carriers and other postal employees, effective from July 1, 1924, but the same was not approved by the President of the United States; and

Whereas there is now before Congress Senate bill No. 3674 which is practically identical with the bill previously passed and vetoed; and Whereas it is believed that the increase granted to postal employees is merited: Therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That Congress be respectfully requested to pass and the President to approve said Senate bill No. 3674. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution properly attested by the presiding officers be forwarded to the Senators and Congressmen from this State.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate two joint resolutions of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which were referred to the Committee on Finance, as follows:

Joint resolution memorializing Congress and the President to increase the tariff on dairy products and eggs

Whereas millions of eggs and poultry are imported from China annually; and

Whereas eastern markets are flooded with imported butter and cheese, much of which does not comply with American standards of quality; and

Whereas existing conditions among the farmers and dairymen in this country are such that this foreign competition of cheap and inferior farm and dairy products is keenly felt; and

Whereas all other industrial interests are fully protected from destructive foreign competition and it is only fair that the farmers and dairymen of this country should be equally protected: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the President of the United States be, and is hereby, respectfully petitioned to exercise the powers vested in him by the tariff commission act to afford all possible protection to the dairy industry of this country, and that in the event that these powers should not be sufficient to stop the importation in large quantities of foreign eggs and dairy products Congress be, and is hereby, petitioned at its next session to increase the duties on these products to effectually exclude these inferior foreign products from the American market. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, properly attested, be sent to the President of the United States, to each House of Congress, and to each of the Wisconsin Members of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Assembly—ayes 32, noes 19.

Senate—ayes 16, noes 3.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
C. E. SHAFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Joint resolution memorializing Congress to adopt House Resolution 366, Sixty-eighth Congress, second session, relating to "dollar diplomacy"

Whereas House Resolution 366 has been introduced in the Sixty-eighth Congress, second session; and

Whereas such resolution provides as follows:

Resolved, That the President be, and he is hereby, requested to direct the Departments of State, Treasury, and Commerce, the Federal Reserve Board, and all other agencies of the Government which are or may be concerned thereunder, to refrain henceforth, without specific prior authorization of the Congress, from—

"(1) Directly or indirectly engaging the responsibility of the Government of the United States, or otherwise on its behalf, to supervise the fulfillment of financial arrangements between citizens of the United States and sovereign foreign governments or political subdivisions thereof, whether or not recognized de jure or de facto by the United States Government; or

"(2) In any manner whatsoever giving official recognition to any arrangement which may commit the Government of the United States to any form of military intervention in order to compel the observance of alleged obligations of sovereign or subordinate authority, or of any corporations or individuals, or to deal with any such arrangement, except to secure the settlement of claims of the United States or of United States citizens through the ordinary channels of law provided therefor in the respective foreign jurisdictions or through duly authorized and accepted arbitration agencies."

Now therefore be it

Resolved by the senate (the assembly concurring), That Congress be, and is hereby, respectfully petitioned and urged to adopt House Resolution 366. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, properly attested, be sent to the presiding officers of both Houses of Congress and to each Wisconsin Member thereof.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
S. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, as follows:

Joint resolution memorializing Congress to propose an amendment to the Federal Constitution so as to permit the drafting of wealth in time of war

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That Congress be, and is hereby, respectfully memorialized to propose an amendment to the Federal Constitution whereby in the event of a declaration of war by the United States against any foreign country, Congress shall provide for the conscription of all money, industries, and property of whatsoever nature necessary to the prosecution thereof and shall limit the profits from the use of such moneys, industries, and property: And be it further

Resolved, That a suitable copy of this resolution, properly attested, be transmitted to the presiding officer of each House of Congress and to each Wisconsin Member thereof.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate three joint resolutions of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, as follows:

Joint resolution memorializing Congress to provide for earlier seating of Senators and Representatives elect

Whereas under the rules of Congress of the United States now in force and effect Members of Congress are elected by popular election in November, but are unable to take their seats in Congress until the year following their election; and

Whereas such procedure is antiquated and no longer suited to the times when means of travel and communication have been improved to their present state of efficiency; and

Whereas under such procedure it is impossible for the people to register and vote a timely and effective expression of opinion and choice: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Legislature of the State of Wisconsin earnestly requests and petitions the Congress of the United States to enact such rules and laws as may be necessary for Members of Congress to take their seats therein at a time not later than the 1st day of January next following the election at which they are chosen. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, duly attested by the presiding officers and chief clerks of the senate and assembly, be forwarded to the presiding officers of both Houses of Congress and to the Wisconsin Senators and Representatives therein.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Joint resolution memorializing Congress to enact legislation relating to propaganda for or against public measures

Whereas the propaganda circulated in opposition to the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution has revealed the powerful influence and effect of such propaganda circulated without any revelation of the sources from which it comes; and

Whereas the people should and are entitled to know the sources of all such propaganda: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the senate (the assembly concurring), That the Congress of the United States is earnestly petitioned and urged to enact legislation requiring the publication of the names of persons, firms, associations, or corporations, amounts contributed or expended by them in publishing, issuing, or circulating propaganda, or in any other way, in advocating or opposing any proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution, or such legislation as may be necessary in the premises so that the people may know the sources of such propaganda. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution properly attested be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives in Congress and to each Wisconsin Representative therein.

H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.
HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.

Joint resolution memorializing the Congress to propose an amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing for the election of President and Vice President by popular vote

Whereas under the present provisions of the Constitution of the United States the President and Vice President are elected by the members of the Electoral College; and

Whereas the electors of the Nation should have a direct voice in the nomination and election of the President and Vice President of the United States: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That Congress be, and is hereby, earnestly petitioned and urged to propose an amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing for the nomination and election of President and Vice President of the United States by popular vote. And be it further

Resolved, That the Wisconsin Members of Congress be, and are hereby, urged to use all appropriate means to promote such legislation. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, properly attested, be sent to both Houses of Congress and to each of the Wisconsin Members thereof.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which was referred to the Committee on Manufactures, as follows:

Joint resolution (J. Res. No. 21, A) relating to the acquisition of pipe lines and refineries used in the distribution and refining of gasoline

Whereas the production and distribution of oil and gasoline is absolutely controlled by private monopoly; and

Whereas attempts at regulating an industry so highly profitable are a failure, even the dissolution of the Standard Oil Co. by the Supreme Court of the United States having only furnished new means and methods of extracting profits from oil and gasoline users. Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Government of the United States be earnestly urged and petitioned to take steps to acquire the refineries and pipe lines used in the refining and distribution of oil and gasoline and operate the same for consumers without profit. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, properly attested by the chief clerks and presiding officers of the senate and assembly, be transmitted to the President of the United States, the presiding officer of each House of Congress, and to each of the Wisconsin Senators and Congressmen.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, as follows:

Joint resolution memorializing Congress to authorize the President to expend all or a part of the appropriations which it makes for the education, medical care, and industrial assistance to the Indians of this State through the departments of the State government equipped to render this service

Whereas this State is vitally interested in the welfare of the 11,000 Indians resident in Wisconsin who now constitute a part of its citizenship; and

Whereas Congress in accordance with treaties and ancient established policy annually appropriates sums of money for the education, medical treatment, and industrial development of the Indians; and

Whereas the sums are now uneconomically and in many cases ineffectively expended due to the absence of technical facilities within the Indian Bureau to efficiently handle these sums and its lack of local contacts; and

Whereas this State maintains efficient departments of agriculture, education, and health which are technically equipped to give the Indians the education, medical care, and industrial guidance which they so greatly need at minimum cost: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Congress of the United States be, and is hereby, urged to provide in the Interior Department appropriation bill for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, that all or a part of the amounts appropriated for the benefit of the Indians in this State be expended through the departments of agriculture, education, and health: And be it further

Resolved, That properly attested copies of this resolution be transmitted to each House of Congress of the United States and to each Senator and Representative from this State.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, as follows:

Joint resolution memorializing Congress to enact legislation prohibiting the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine anywhere in the United States and requesting the Representatives from Wisconsin to introduce a bill therefor

Whereas billions of dollars have been spent to build up the dairy industry of this State, which has heretofore inured materially to the upbuilding of not only the dairy industry but all lines of endeavor; and

Whereas the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine is now rapidly supplanting and replacing the use of butter and as a consequence is destroying the dairy and other farm industries and is driving farmers from the farms; and

Whereas such exodus from the farms to the cities necessarily results in a greatly reduced use of farm machinery and equipment and consequently less demand and use for labor in the manufacture of such machinery and equipment and also necessarily brings more men into competition with city workers and creates a condition harmful to labor; and

Whereas the manufacture of oleomargarine does not require the use of farm machinery or of any other machinery to the extent comparable to the amount and quantity of machinery used in the production of butter and does not contribute materially to the well-being of labor and affects industry detrimentally and keeps labor in cities unemployed; and

Whereas oleomargarine does not return any fertility to the soil nor anything of value to the farms or to the State; and

Whereas oleomargarine has little, if any, food value and when used with foods adds nothing thereto except bulk and when used as an imitation of butter is, as the name implies, an imitation, and as such its sale and use is a fraud and deceit upon the public: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Congress of the United States is hereby earnestly petitioned and urged to enact such legislation as shall prohibit the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in the United States and that the Representatives in Congress from this State are requested to introduce some measures as may be necessary to accomplish such end. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this memorial, properly attested, be forwarded by the secretary of state to the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States and to each Wisconsin Senator and Representative therein.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a joint resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, as follows:

Joint resolution memorializing the Congress of the United States to enact legislation to prevent fraud in the sale of fabrics, clothing, footwear, and other materials and articles

Whereas the people of the United States are being continually hoodwinked and robbed through the sale and purchase of imitations, misrepresentations, and substitutions for material, fabrics, clothing, footwear, and other articles of wearing apparel; and

Whereas consumers have the right to know beyond the shadow of a doubt the true character, quality, and composition of such goods and wear purchased by them; and

Whereas there is at this time no protection whatever for the innocent purchaser; and

Whereas it is an elemental principle that an honest man can not be harmed by a statement of the truth; and

Whereas some means should be provided and required so that the purchaser might be advised of the true character, quality, and composition of such goods and articles purchased, such as the labeling of such goods and articles in such manner that the purchaser may know exactly what he is buying: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Congress of the United States is hereby earnestly petitioned and urged to enact such legislation as will correct the wrongs herein complained of. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution suitably engrossed and properly attested be transmitted to the presiding officers of each House of Congress and to each Wisconsin Representative therein.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate two joint resolutions of the Legislature of Wisconsin, which were referred to the Committee on Commerce, as follows:

Joint resolution memorializing the Congress of the United States urging the passage of bill H. R. 11541

Whereas there is pending by the Congress of the United States a bill (H. R. 11541) introduced by Congressman PEABY providing for the establishment of transportation lines on the Great Lakes; and

Whereas the people of the State of Wisconsin are in favor of such bill, the purposes which it aims to accomplish: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Congress of the United States be earnestly petitioned and urged to pass at this session bill H. R. 11541. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, properly attested, be transmitted to the presiding officers of both Houses of Congress and to each Wisconsin Representative therein.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
F. W. SCHOENFEHL,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Joint resolution relating to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project

Whereas the prosperity of Wisconsin, as well as the whole of the United States, is in large measure dependent upon lower rates of transportation on its agricultural and manufactured products to markets in Eastern States and foreign countries; and

Whereas it is possible to provide such lower rates of transportation through the completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project: Therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring). That we hereby respectfully urge the Congress of the United States to take immediate action to make possible the early completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project. And be it further

Resolved. That copies of this resolution, properly signed by the presiding officers of both houses and attested by the chief clerks thereof be sent to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States and to each Senator and Member of Congress from Wisconsin.

HENRY A. HUBER,
President of the Senate.
F. W. SCHOENFELT,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
H. W. SACHTJEN,
Speaker of the Assembly.
C. E. SHAFFER,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate five joint memorials of the Legislature of Alaska, which were referred to the Committee on Territories and Insular Possessions, as follows:

TERRITORY OF ALASKA,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY FOR THE TERRITORY.

I, Karl Theile, secretary of Alaska and custodian of the great seal of said Territory, do hereby certify that I have compared the annexed copy of Senate Joint Memorial No. 1 of the Alaska Territorial Legislature, 1925, with the original thereof and that the same is a full, true, and correct copy of said original now on file in my office.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed hereto the seal of the Territory of Alaska, at Juneau, the capital, this 23d day of March, A. D. 1925.

Senate Joint Memorial 1 (by Senator Aldrich) in the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, seventh session

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America:

Your memorialists, the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, do most respectfully and earnestly represent:—

That there are 753 local gasoline boats, approximately 200 foreign boats, approximately 160 halibut boats, and approximately 250 cannery tenders, aggregating close to 2,500 vessels, engaged in fishing and kindred industries all of which boats make Ketchikan, Alaska, their headquarters and stopping place during the greater part of the year, and are responsible for the prosperity and growth of southeastern Alaska and more particularly the city of Ketchikan;

That the harbor facilities at Ketchikan are so inadequate and unsafe for this fleet that it is hazardous for said boats in event of storms, and it is impractical to place said boats ashore during the winter months when they are not in operation;

That the mouth of Ketchikan Creek at Ketchikan, Alaska, affords, by slight dredging, the possibility of a very safe harbor for the said fleet of vessels, and the Secretary of the Interior has heretofore set aside the area about the mouth of said creek as a reservation for the use of boats primarily belonging to the native population;

Wherefore, your memorialists respectfully request that the said proposed harbor be surveyed and the cost of dredging the same for the purposes of a harbor for the small boats be estimated, and that the necessary appropriation for carrying out the plans be made.

That a copy of this memorial be sent to the Secretary of War and the Delegate from Alaska.

And your memorialists will ever pray.

Senate Joint Memorial 3, by committee on taxation and transportation, in the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, seventh session
To the President, the Secretary of War, the Senate, and the House of Representatives of the United States:

Your memorialists, the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, in seventh regular session assembled, do most respectfully and earnestly represent that—

Whereas the War Department has always taken a leading part in the development of our frontiers and held together remote and sparsely settled communities in our great West until such development had taken place that local interests could take over this duty, and the War Department is still performing similar functions in the Territory of Alaska; and

Whereas the Alaska Road Commission, under the supervision of the War Department, has, during the past 20 years, worked out a comprehensive system of roads and trails which have greatly aided development in all sections of the Territory, and has since its reorganization in 1920 secured increased funds and more liberal legislation, so that it is now prepared to complete its program in a reasonable time, thereby permitting routes to be utilized throughout without breaking loads; and

Whereas the officers of the Alaska Road Commission are also charged with handling engineering work for many other Federal and Territorial services, which they are accomplishing most efficiently and economically; and

Whereas the Territory of Alaska is not in a financial position to take over the road and trail work as a part of its own interior development, nor even to maintain the existing system, but is contributing to the limit of its resources in aid of this work; and

Whereas section 301 (c) of S. 3445 and H. R. 9629 reported at the last session of the last Congress by the Joint Committee on the Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government, would abolish the Alaska Road Commission, without creating another agency to take its place, but transfers direct control of the road and trail work to a department in Washington, D. C., without providing for the other activities handled under its direction; and

Whereas the proposed legislation is objectionable, in that it abolishes a going concern, which was specially created for the work at hand, has grown up with the country, and has justified itself by its accomplishments; is inefficient in that it transfers direction of the work from a board resident in the Territory, with full authority "of its own motion" to meet emergencies and to handle its business on the ground without reference to Washington, to a department in Washington, with all the attendant delays and unbusinesslike methods that are such a conspicuous feature of the usual handling of Alaska affairs; and is uneconomical in that it re-creates in Alaska the very condition it purports to relieve in the United States, by requiring the creation of at least one new organization under a different department to handle only part of the work now being handled by the Alaska Road Commission, its other functions still remaining in the War Department: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska heartily indorse the work of the Alaska Road Commission and pray that it may continue to have the support of the War Department and of Congress to the end that its appropriations may continue to be increased, its powers broadened, and construction on its excellent and comprehensive program of road and trail building speeded up; be it further

Resolved, That it is the earnest desire of the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska that the Alaska Road Commission shall continue to be composed of officers of the Corps of Engineers of the Army serving under the supervision of the War Department, and that section 301 (c) shall be stricken from S. 3445 and H. R. 9629, or any similar provision in any new legislation proposed during the next session of Congress.

And your memorialists will ever pray.

I, Karl Theille, secretary of Alaska and custodian of the great seal of said Territory, do hereby certify that I have compared the annexed copy of Senate Joint Memorial No. 4 of the Alaska Territorial Legislature, 1925, with the original thereof, and that the same is a full, true, and correct copy of said original now on file in my office.

Senate Joint Memorial 4 (by Senator Dunn) in the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, seventh session

To the President, the Congress of the United States, and the Secretary of the Interior:

Your memorialists, the legislators of the Territory of Alaska, do respectfully represent:

That the headquarters of the United States Bureau of Education, Alaska Division, is now located at Seattle, Wash., a considerable distance from the Indians and Eskimos for whose welfare it is working in the Territory of Alaska, and by reason of the distance of said headquarters from the Territory of Alaska obstacles are created to efficient and economical operations that are difficult to overcome;

That neither regular nor sufficient means of transportation are now available to reach the many outlying native settlements which are in most cases separated by great distances;

That when complications arise in the native schools and villages considerable time must necessarily elapse before the required action can be taken, and in many cases by reason of such delay suffering is caused to those involved;

That the location of said headquarters in the Territory of Alaska, your memorialists believe, would permit the officials in charge of said bureau to keep in closer touch with all of the work being carried on by the bureau in the Territory of Alaska and thus enable them better to administer its affairs more efficiently and with greater benefit to the people served;

That the conditions among many of the Indians in the native settlements in the interior of Alaska are deplorable; there are Indians—men, women, and children—without medical attendance, and many Indian children are left to grow up without any school advantages;

That the Indian villages at Mento, Tolovana, and Crossjacket have about 15, 8, and 20 school children, respectively. These villages are situated on the Tanana River about 28, 50, and 56 miles, respectively, down said river from the city of Nenana. These children are growing up in gross ignorance and are sadly in need of a native school as well as medical attention;

That there are United States Government buildings situated in the city of Nenana, formerly occupied by the United States Railroad Commission but now vacated by said commission by reason of the completion of construction of the Alaska Railroad, which buildings could be taken over by the Bureau of Education and used for native hospitals; and

That the location in the Territory of Alaska of the Federal Bureau of Education would permit of and facilitate a fuller measure of harmonious cooperation between the Bureau of Education and the Territorial Department of Education, and thus generally better serve the cause of education for all of the people of the Territory.

Wherefore your memorialists respectfully urge that the Bureau of Education, Alaska Division, now located at Seattle, Wash., be removed to some convenient location in the Territory of Alaska.

That a copy of this memorial be sent to the Hon. Dan Sutherland, delegate from Alaska.

And your memorialists will ever pray.

KARL THEILLE,

House Joint Memorial 5 (by Mr. Moody) in the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, seventh session

To the Honorable the President of the United States, the Congress of the United States, and the Secretary of the Interior:

Your petitioner, the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, in seventh biennial session assembled, respectfully represents:

I. That this body has repeatedly gone on record as opposing the present system of caring for the insane of this Territory, which is a system of contract with a private institution, whereby that institution gains a profit and commercializes the misfortune of human beings.

II. That at the second session of this Legislature House Joint Memorial No. 23 passed both houses thereof and was presented to the President and the Congress of the United States. That this memorial contained a report of the committee of the legislature, made after careful investigation of complaints lodged against the management of the institution having this contract with the legislature and various officials, and may be found at pages 238-243 of the Session Laws of Alaska, 1915.

III. That at the third session of the Legislature of Alaska a similar memorial (House Joint Memorial No. 7) again passed both houses of the legislature and was submitted to the President and the Congress of the United States. This memorial may be found at pages 246-250 of the Session Laws of Alaska, 1917.

IV. That at the fifth session of the Alaska Legislature a memorial (House Joint Memorial No. 18), almost identical with those hereinabove mentioned, again passed both houses of the legislature and was sent to the President and the Congress of the United States. This memorial may be found at pages 199-200 of the Session Laws of Alaska, 1921.

V. That the memorials and the report on which they were based were passed after very careful investigation and mature consideration, and it is the moral conviction of the members of this body that any system of caring for the insane by contract with a private institution, conducted with the sole aim of making and gaining a profit from such contract, and under which commercial greed is very often apt to outweigh the considerations of human sympathy and Christian charity which characterize the attitude of the governments of the various American States toward the mentally defective within their borders, is not only contrary to the true principles of American government but is extremely cruel and inhuman.

VI. That while this body is of the opinion that the insane of Alaska should be kept and cared for within the Territory, it also believes that it is a matter for investigation by experts whether or not the climatic and other conditions within the Territory of Alaska would tend to retard the recovery of the patients if maintained in Alaska. And if such investigation be made and the experts report adversely on the matter of establishment and maintenance of a hospital for insane in Alaska, then it is our belief that contracts should be entered into by the United States with one of the States on the Pacific coast for the maintenance and care of the insane of Alaska in one or more of their regularly maintained State hospitals for the insane, to the end that those mentally dependent may receive the humane care and treatment which is due them.

VII. That in this connection attention is respectfully invited to the provisions of chapter 48, session laws of the State of Washington, 1921, which is as follows:

"CHAPTER 48

"STATE HOSPITALS FOR THE INSANE

"An act relating to the observation, maintenance, care, treatment, and custody in the State hospitals for the insane of persons entitled thereto, or requiring the same, at the expense of the United States, and authorizing contracts therefor

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Washington:

SECTION 1. The director of business control shall have the power, in the name of the State, to enter into contracts with any duly authorized representative of the United States Government providing for the admission to, and the separate or joint observation, maintenance, care, treatment, and custody in, the State hospital for the insane of persons entitled to, or requiring the same, at the expense of the United States, and contracts providing for the separate or joint maintenance, care, treatment, and custody of such persons committed to such hospitals in the manner provided by law, and to execute and perform such contracts, which contracts shall provide that all payments due the State of Washington from the United States for service rendered under said contracts, shall be paid into the State treasury and covered into the State institutional revolving fund to the credit of the institution furnishing the service.

Sec. 2. Until such time as the director of business control shall be appointed and qualified, and assume and exercise the duties of his office, the State board of control shall have the power to perform, in the name of the State, all things authorized by the provisions of this act.

Sec. 3. This act is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, and safety, and the support of the State government and its existing public institutions and shall take effect immediately.

Passed the house February 15, 1921.

Passed the senate March 2, 1921.

Approved by the governor March 8, 1921.

VIII. That it is the opinion of this body that a contract with a State institution would not only remove the objections hereinabove stated to the present contract system, but would result in a material saving to the Government in the cost of maintenance of the insane patients.

Wherefore your petitioner respectfully and earnestly urges that the existing contract for the care of the insane of Alaska with the Morningside Sanitarium, of Portland, Oreg., be revoked;

That an investigation be made by experts qualified to judge as to the advisability of establishing a hospital for the insane within the Territory of Alaska; and

That in the event these experts report adversely upon the project of the establishment of a hospital for the insane in Alaska that a contract be entered into with the State of Washington, or with some other Pacific Coast State, for the care of the Alaskan insane at one or more of such State institutions.

And your memorialist will ever pray; and be it

Resolved by the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, That copies of this petition be immediately forwarded by the secretary of the Territory to the President and the Congress of the United States, to the Secretary of the Interior, and to the Delegate to Congress from Alaska.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Territory of Alaska, ss:

I hereby certify that the above and foregoing, consisting of five pages besides this, is a full, true, correct, and complete copy of the original of House Joint Memorial No. 5, which has this day been filed with the secretary of Alaska.

Senate joint memorial (by Senator Dimond) in the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, seventh session

To the President and to the Congress of the United States:

Your memorialists, the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska, do respectfully represent; that

Whereas, the region of the coast of what is commonly known as "Southwestern Alaska," extending on both sides of the Alaska Peninsula and the adjacent districts, is constantly increasing in economic importance by reason of the development of the fishing and other industries along this coast, and by reason of such development the traffic by shipping in this region is increasing; and

Whereas the coast described has never been properly or adequately charted and for a part of the waters along such coast the charts now in use are based upon observations made by Russian navigators several hundred years ago; and

Whereas said coast line is almost without lights, blinkers, or buoys; and

Whereas, by reason of lack of adequate charts and lack of lights, the said coast is a veritable "graveyard of ships"; and

Whereas the waters along this coast for many months of the year are exceedingly stormy, and dense fogs are frequent;

Wherefore your memorialists respectfully pray that a proper, comprehensive, and adequate survey be made of the coast above described and of adjacent waters, and that said coast be properly lighted with lighthouses and blinkers.

And your memorialists will ever so pray.

Adopted by the senate April 24, 1925.

President of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate four concurrent resolutions of the Legislature of Hawaii, which were referred to the Committee on Territories and Insular Possessions, as follows:

Concurrent resolution

Whereas the United States mails are being daily transported by airplanes across the mainland of the United States; and

Whereas the daily press frequently mentions plans for extending, and actual extensions, of air-mail service on the mainland; and

Whereas air routes between the principal islands of Hawaii have been charted and are traversed safely and frequently by planes of the Army and Navy; and

Whereas daily air-mail service to and from the islands of Oahu, Maui, Hawaii, and Kauai would reduce the time in transit of inter-island mails from one to three days and bring about large economies in the transaction of all classes of our business; and

Whereas such service would further equip the Government with planes and fliers, ready and able to fly between the islands under all conditions, and with landing fields and mechanical bases—all invaluable in an international emergency; and

Whereas Hawaii is an integral part of the United States and is entitled under the bill of rights enacted by the Sixty-ninth Congress to share, on even terms with the States of the Union, in the expenditures of all departments of the Government for the improvement of Federal services and facilities: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate of the Territory of Hawaii (the House of Representatives concurring), That the President of the United States be respectfully requested to include Hawaii in plans for air-mail extensions at present authorized by law; and further that the Congress of the United States be also respectfully requested to consider the urgent importance of our appeal for this service and, if need be, especially appropriate funds for the establishment and maintenance of an interisland air-mail service in Hawaii. And be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be forwarded to the President of the United States, the President of the Senate of the United States, the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States, and to the Delegate to Congress from Hawaii.

THE SENATE OF THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII,
Honolulu, Hawaii, February 18, 1925.

We hereby certify that the foregoing concurrent resolution was this day adopted by the Senate of the Territory of Hawaii.

ROBERT W. SHINGLE,
President of the Senate.
ALBERT E. LLOYD,
Clerk of the Senate.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF
THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII,
Honolulu, Hawaii, February 18, 1925.

We hereby certify that the foregoing concurrent resolution was this day adopted in the House of Representatives of the Territory of Hawaii.

NORMAN K. LYMAN,
Speaker, House of Representatives.
JOSEPH ORDEMAN,
Clerk, House of Representatives.

Concurrent resolution

Whereas under the laws of the United States of America, and particularly under section 320 of the penal laws of the United States, it is provided that no boxing exhibitions can be carried on in the Territory of Hawaii; and

Whereas the people of the Territory of Hawaii are interested in and in favor of allowing boxing exhibitions to be carried on in the Territory of Hawaii under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Legislature of the Territory of Hawaii: Now, therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate of the Territory of Hawaii (the House of Representatives of the Territory of Hawaii concurring), That the Congress of the United States of America be requested to amend section 320 of the penal laws of the United States, Thirty-fifth Statutes at Large 1150, by changing the last paragraph of said law to read as follows:

"The provision of this section shall apply to all of the Territories of the United States and the District of Columbia, but shall not include the Territory of Hawaii."

And be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be forwarded to the President of the United States, to the President of the Senate, and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, to the chairmen of the Committees on Territories of the Senate and of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, and to the Delegate to Congress from the Territory of Hawaii.

THE SENATE OF THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII,
Honolulu, Hawaii, March 6, 1925.

We hereby certify that the foregoing concurrent resolution was this day adopted by the Senate of the Territory of Hawaii.

ROBERT W. SHINGLE,
President of the Senate.
ALBERT E. LLOYD,
Clerk of the Senate.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF
THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII,
Honolulu, Hawaii, March 9, 1925.

We hereby certify that the foregoing concurrent resolution was this day adopted by the House of Representatives of the Territory of Hawaii.

NORMAN K. LYMAN,
Speaker House of Representatives.
JOSEPH ORDEMAN,
Clerk House of Representatives.

Concurrent resolution

Whereas prior legislatures have on several occasions by concurrent resolution memorialized Congress to admit the Territory of Hawaii as a State of the United States; and

Whereas the repeated refusals of the Congress to consider our petitions for statehood justify a conclusion that Congress does not deem the Territory sufficiently qualified to assume the responsibilities of full self-government; and

Whereas it is confidently believed that upon being assured of our full and complete qualifications for statehood the Congress of the United States would promptly and favorably consider the desire of the Territory of Hawaii to be admitted into the Union of the States; and

Whereas it is deemed that the most effective and expeditious means of conveying such assurances would be by permitting the Territory of Hawaii to amend the organic act of the Territory and thereby in effect permitting the Territory to establish a probationary State, the Congress of the United States retaining its present sovereignty over the Territory; and

Whereas if permitted to amend the organic act the Territory would be afforded complete opportunity to demonstrate its full and unqualified ability to govern itself as a State, by which means the Territory will later be in better position to request statehood than at any time heretofore: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate of the Territory of Hawaii (the House of Representatives of the Territory of Hawaii concurring), That the Congress of the United States be requested to amend the organic act of the Territory of Hawaii by adding thereto a new section to be known as section 108, reading as follows:

"SEC. 108. That this act may be amended in the following manner: The legislature, whenever two-thirds of both houses thereof shall deem it necessary, may propose, by joint resolution not requiring the approval of the governor, amendments to this act, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes when, after being submitted to the voters at the next ensuing general election held in the Territory of Hawaii, they shall be ratified by two-thirds of the votes polled upon each amendment submitted to the voters for ratification"; and be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be forwarded to the President of the United States, to the President of the Senate, and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, to the chairmen of the Committees on Territories of the Senate and of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, and to the Delegate to Congress from the Territory of Hawaii.

THE SENATE OF THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII,
Honolulu, Hawaii, April 9, 1925.

We hereby certify that the foregoing concurrent resolution was adopted by the Senate of the Territory of Hawaii on the 11th day of March, 1925.

ROBERT W. SHINGLE,
President of the Senate.
ALBERT E. LLOYD,
Clerk of the Senate.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII,
Honolulu, Hawaii, April 9, 1925.

We hereby certify that the foregoing concurrent resolution was this day adopted in the House of Representatives of the Territory of Hawaii.

NORMAN K. LYMAN,
Speaker House of Representatives.
JOSEPH ORDEMAN,
Clerk House of Representatives.

Concurrent resolution

Whereas there are a number of public utilities operating within the Territory of Hawaii, which are now by virtue of certain acts of Congress placed some under the supervision and control of the Federal Interstate Commerce Commission and some under the supervision and control of the United States Shipping Board; and

Whereas certain bills have been introduced from time to time in Congress, the purpose of which was and is to transfer the jurisdiction of public utilities operating within the Territory of Hawaii, and which are now under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to the Public Utilities Commission of the Territory of Hawaii. Now therefore be it—

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Territory of Hawaii, regular session 1925 (the Senate concurring), That the legislature favors the passage by Congress of an act or acts to the effect that the existing control and jurisdiction of the Federal Interstate Commerce Commission and of the United States Shipping Board over public utilities operating in the Territory of Hawaii, shall, except so far as regards interstate commerce, be transferred to the Public Utilities Commission of the Territory of Hawaii. And be it further

Resolved, That a certified copy of this resolution be forwarded to the President of the United States, to the Vice President of the United States, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States, and to the delegate to Congress from the Territory of Hawaii.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF
Honolulu, Hawaii, March 17, 1925.

We hereby certify that the foregoing concurrent resolution was this day adopted in the House of Representatives of the Territory of Hawaii.

NORMAN K. LYMAN,
Speaker House of Representatives.
JOSEPH ORDEMAN,
Clerk House of Representatives.

THE SENATE OF THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII,
Honolulu, Hawaii, April 2, 1925.

We hereby certify that the foregoing concurrent resolution was this day adopted in the Senate of the Territory of Hawaii.

ROBERT W. SHINGLE,
President of the Senate.
ALBERT E. LLOYD,
Clerk of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate the following concurrent resolution of the Legislature of Porto Rico, which was referred to the Committee on Territories and Insular Possessions, as follows:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF PORTO RICO,
ELEVENTH LEGISLATURE, FIRST SESSION.

I, Francisco L. Amadeo, secretary of the House of Representatives of Porto Rico, do hereby certify that House Concurrent Resolution 6, entitled "Concurrent resolution to request the Congress of the United States to amend, reenact, and add certain sections to the organic act of Porto Rico," has been adopted by the House of Representatives and the Senate of Porto Rico and signed by the presiding officers of both houses.

Given in the House of Representatives of Porto Rico, this 19th day of August, 1925.

F. L. AMADEO,
Secretary of the House of Representatives.

Concurrent resolution to request the Congress of the United States to amend, reenact, and add certain sections to the organic act of Porto Rico.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of Porto Rico (the Senate of Porto Rico concurring), That the Legislature of Porto Rico, in the performance of its duty and exercising the right of the people it represents, according to the principles of liberty and democracy in forming the traditions and life of the American people, and inspired by pure sentiments of human dignity, requests the Congress of the United States to amend and reenact the following sections of the organic act of Porto Rico, entitled "An act to provide a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved March 2, 1917.

SECTION 1. That section 3 of the organic act of Porto Rico is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 3. That no export duties shall be levied or collected on exports from Porto Rico, but taxes and assessments on property, incomes, internal revenue and license fees, and royalties for franchises, privileges, and concessions may be imposed for the purposes of the insular and municipal governments, respectively, as may be provided and defined by the Legislature of Porto Rico, which is also empowered to direct the customs and post officers of the United States in Porto Rico to collect in the island and to cover into the insular treasury the internal-revenue taxes imposed by authority of the Legislature of Porto Rico on imports from the United States and foreign countries when a similar and uniform tax is also levied on like articles produced or producible in Porto Rico. With the approval of the President of the United States the Legislature of Porto Rico is also hereby empowered—

"(a) To impose import or customs duties on imports from the United States or foreign countries when similar articles are produced in Porto Rico and are not produced in the United States, for the purpose of preventing reexportation of such articles as products of the soil of Porto Rico;

"(b) To levy a tax additional to the United States customs duty on all articles of any class imported from foreign countries;

"(c) To reduce the tax levied on articles of foreign origin when such articles are raw food products and it is shown that such measure is necessary to reduce the people's cost of living or subsistence: Provided, That articles on which the customs tariff is reduced on importation into Porto Rico shall pay, if reexported to the United States, an export duty equal to such part of the United States tariff duty as they failed to pay upon their introduction into Porto Rico;

"(d) To grant foreign states all or any of the tariff rebates authorized in the foregoing paragraphs, in consideration of the grant by said states of tariff rebates on articles produced in Porto Rico, the necessary negotiations to be carried on through the office of the Secretary of State of the United States.

"When necessary to anticipate taxes and revenues, bonds and other obligations may be issued by Porto Rico or any municipal government therein as may be provided and defined by the Legislature of Porto Rico; and when necessary to anticipate taxes and revenues, bonds and other obligations may be issued by Porto Rico or any municipal government therein as may be provided by law and to protect the public credit: Provided, however, That no public indebtedness of Porto Rico or of any subdivision or municipality thereof shall be authorized or allowed in excess of 10 per cent of the aggregate tax valuation of its property, and all bonds issued by the government of Porto Rico, or by its authority, shall be exempt from taxation by the Government of the United States, or by the government of Porto Rico, or of any political or municipal subdivision thereof, or by any State, or by any county, municipality, or other municipal subdivision of any State or Territory of the United States, or by the District of Columbia. In computing the indebtedness of the people of Porto Rico, bonds issued by the people of Porto Rico, secured by an equivalent amount of bonds of municipal corporations or school boards of Porto Rico, shall not be counted nor bonds issued for irrigation purposes by the different municipalities or the people of Porto Rico when such bonds are redeemable with the proceeds of a special tax levied on the landowners benefited by the irrigation system to which such loans are to be applied."

SEC. 2. That a new section is hereby inserted between sections 5 and 6 of the said organic act to read as follows:

"SEC. 5a. That the citizens of the United States, referred to in section 5 of 'An act to provide a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes,' approved March 2, 1917, and other citizens of the United States permanently domiciled in the island for more than three years, shall also be citizens of Porto Rico: Provided, That the persons born in Porto Rico of alien parents, referred to in the last paragraph of the said section, who did not avail themselves of the privilege granted to them of becoming citizens of the United States, shall have the period of one year from the approval of this act to make the declaration provided for in the aforesaid section: And provided further, That the persons who elected to retain the political status of citizens of Porto Rico may become citizens of the United States in the same term and manner as provided for the naturalization of native Porto Ricans born of foreign parents."

SEC. 3. That section 12 of an act entitled "An act to provide a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 12. That the supreme executive power shall be vested in an executive officer, whose official title shall be the Governor of Porto Rico. He shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and hold his office at the pleasure of the President and until his successor is chosen and qualified. He shall have general supervision and control of all the departments and bureaus of the Government in Porto Rico, so far as is not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and shall be commander in chief of the militia. He may grant pardons and reprieves and remit fines for offenses against the laws of Porto Rico, and respite for all offenses against the laws of the United States until the decision of the President can be ascertained, and may veto any legislation enacted as hereinafter provided. He shall commission all officers that he may be authorized to appoint. He shall be responsible for the faithful execution of the laws of Porto Rico and of the United States applicable in Porto Rico, and whenever it becomes necessary he may call upon the commanders of the military and naval forces of the United States in the island, summon the posse comitatus, or call on the militia, to prevent or suppress lawless violence, invasion, insurrection, or rebellion, and he may, in case of rebellion or invasion, or imminent danger thereof, when the public safety requires it, suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus or place the island or any part thereof under martial law until communication can be had with the President and the President's decision therein made known. He shall annually, and at such other times as he may be required, make official report of the transactions of the government of Porto Rico to the executive department of the Government of the United States to be designated by the President as herein provided, and his said annual report shall be transmitted to Congress, and he shall perform such additional duties and functions as may, in pursuance of law, be delegated to him by the President.

"At the general election to be held in Porto Rico in the year 1928, and thereafter at each general election, the qualified electors of Porto Rico shall elect the governor, who shall qualify as such on the first Monday of January of the succeeding year, and upon such qualification the office of the appointed governor shall cease and determine. A lieutenant governor shall also at such time be elected for a term of four years under like conditions. He shall act as governor in case of a vacancy, the temporary absence or removal, resignation, or disability of the governor, and shall exercise all the powers and perform all the duties of the governor during such vacancy, disability, or absence. The lieutenant governor shall be the ex officio president of the senate and shall receive such salary as the Legislature of Porto Rico may determine. The governor and the lieutenant governor thus elected shall hold their offices for a term of four years and until their successors have been elected and shall have qualified.

"The elected governor herein provided for may be impeached by the insular house of representatives, and on trial by the insular senate may be removed by a two-thirds vote of that body for any impeachment cause. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit in Porto Rico, but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment according to law."

SEC. 4. That section 13 of the organic act, approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 13. That the following executive departments are hereby created: A department of justice, the head of which shall be designated as the attorney general; a department of finance, the head of which shall be designated as the treasurer; a department of the interior, the head of which shall be designated as the commissioner of the interior; a department of education, the head of which shall be designated as the commissioner of education; a department of agriculture and commerce, the head of which shall be designated as the commissioner of agriculture and commerce; a department of labor, the head of which shall be designated as the commissioner of labor; and a department of health, the head of which shall be designated as the commissioner of health.

"The heads of departments shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate of Porto Rico, for the term of four years, and until their successors are appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed by the governor.

"Heads of departments shall reside in Porto Rico during their official incumbency.

"The heads of departments shall collectively form a council to the governor, known as the executive council. They shall perform under the general supervision of the governor the duties hereinafter prescribed or which may hereafter be prescribed by law and such other duties not inconsistent with law as the governor, with the approval of the president, may assign to them, and they shall make annual and such other reports to the governor as he may require, which shall be transmitted to the executive department of the Government of the United States, to be designated by the President, as herein provided: Provided, That the duties herein imposed upon the heads of the departments shall not carry with them additional compensation."

SEC. 5. That section 18 of the said organic act, approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 18. That the commissioner of agriculture and commerce shall have general charge of such bureaus and branches of the government as have been or shall be legally constituted for the study, advancement, and benefit of agriculture, commerce, and the industries; the chief purpose of this department being to foster, promote, and develop the agricultural, commercial, and industrial interests and the welfare of the farmers of Porto Rico; to improve their market conditions, and to advance their opportunities for profitable sales of their products, and shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law."

SEC. 6. That between sections 18 and 19 of said organic act, approved March 2, 1917, a new section is hereby inserted to read as follows:

"SEC. 18a. That the commissioner of labor shall have charge of such bureaus and branches of the government as have been or shall be legally constituted to foster and promote the welfare of the wage earners of Porto Rico; to improve their working conditions; and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment; and shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law."

SEC. 7. That section 31 of the organic act of Porto Rico, approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 31. That members of the Senate and House of Representatives of Porto Rico shall receive compensation at the rate of $20 a day for the first 60 days of each regular session and $1 a day for each additional day of such session while in session, and mileage for each session at the rate of 10 cents a kilometer for each kilometer actually and necessarily traveled in going from their legislative districts to the capital and therefrom to their place of residence in their districts by the usual routes of travel."

SEC. 8. That section 33 of the organic act of Porto Rico, approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 33. That regular sessions of the legislature shall be held annually, convening on the second Monday in February of each year, unless otherwise provided by the legislature. The governor may call special sessions of the legislature or of the senate at any time when in his opinion the public interests may require it, but no special session shall continue longer than 10 days, not including Sundays and holidays, and no legislation shall be considered at such session other than that specified in the call."

SEC. 9. That the first paragraph of section 34 of the organic act of Porto Rico, approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 34. That the enacting clause of the laws shall be, as to acts, 'Be it enacted by the Legislature of Porto Rico,' and as to joint resolutions, 'Be it resolved by the Legislature of Porto Rico.' Except as hereinafter provided, bills and joint resolutions may originate in either house. The governor shall submit at the opening of each regular session of the legislature a budget of receipts and expenditures which shall be the basis of the ensuing biennial appropriation bill. No bill shall become a law until it be passed in each house by a majority yeas-and-nays vote of all of the members belonging to such house and entered upon the journal and be approved by the governor within 10 days thereafter. If when a bill that has been passed is presented to the governor for his signature he approves the same he shall sign it; or if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it originated, which house shall enter his objections at large on its journal and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of all the members of that house shall agree to pass the same, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of all the members of that house, it shall become law the same as if it had been approved by the governor. The vote of each house shall be by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting for and against shall be entered on the journal."

SEC. 10. That the first paragraph of section 38 of the organic act of Porto Rico, approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 38. That all grants of franchises, rights, and privileges of a public nature shall be made by a public-service commission consisting of a public-service commissioner appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, for the term of four years and until his successor shall be appointed and shall have qualified, and two commissioners elected at each general election for the term of four years and until their successors are elected and shall have qualified, whose terms shall begin the 2d day of January following their election. In the election of the said commissioner each elector shall be allowed to vote but for one candidate. The salary of the commissioner who presides over the commission shall be $6,000 a year, and the compensation of each member elective shall be $10 for each day's attendance at the sessions of the commission, but in no case shall they receive more than $1,000 during any one year. The said commission is also empowered and directed to discharge all the executive functions relating to public-service corporations heretofore conferred by law upon the executive council and such functions as may be conferred thereon by the legislature. Franchises, rights, and privileges granted by the said commission shall not be effective until approved by the governor, and shall be reported to Congress, which hereby reserves the power to annul or modify the same."

SEC. 11. That the following section shall be inserted between sections 39 and 40 as a part of the organic act of Porto Rico, approved March 2, 1917, to read as follows:

"SEC. 39a. That the Legislature of Porto Rico is hereby empowered to enforce the provisions of the joint resolution approved May 1, 1909, with respect to the buying, selling, or holding of real estate, and is also empowered to raise the limit of the 500 acres provided for in the said joint resolution up to a limit of 2,000 acres; and to impose additional and progressive taxes on all property owned or controlled in excess of 500 acres by corporations, partnerships, associations, and individuals, and to provide for the forfeiture of all lands owned or controlled by corporations in violation of the prohibition established in the aforesaid joint resolution or of any other law on the subject enacted by the Legislature of Porto Rico by virtue of the authorization hereby conferred on it after giving a term of no less than one year to the owners for the disposal of their property so owned and controlled: Provided, That the legislature shall have power to levy progressive taxes on the property and income of nonresidents in excess of the taxes levied on the property and income of residents."

SEC. 12. That section 41 of the organic act of Porto Rico, approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 41. That Porto Rico shall constitute a judicial district to be called 'the district of Porto Rico.' The President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one district judge, who shall serve for a term of four years and until his successor is appointed and has qualified. The salary of said judge shall be $7,500 per annum. A district attorney shall likewise be appointed, whose salary shall be $4,000 a year, and a marshal for said district, whose salary shall be $3,500 per annum, each for a term of four years unless sooner removed by the President. The district court for said district shall be called 'the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico,' and shall have power to appoint all necessary officials and assistants, including the clerk, interpreter, and such commissioners as may be necessary, who shall be entitled to the same fees and have like powers and duties as are exercised and performed by United States commissioners. Such district court shall have jurisdiction of all cases cognizable in the district courts of the United States, and shall proceed in the same manner. In addition, said district court shall have jurisdiction for the naturalization of aliens and Porto Ricans, and for this purpose residence in Porto Rico shall be counted in the same manner as residence elsewhere in the United States. Said district court shall have jurisdiction of all controversies where all of the parties on either side of the controversy are citizens or subjects of a foreign state or states, or citizens of a State, Territory, or District of the United States not domiciled in Porto Rico, wherein the matter in dispute exceeds, exclusive of interest or cost, the sum or value of $5,000, and of all controversies in which there is a separable controversy involving such jurisdictional amount and in which all of the parties on either side of such separable controversy are citizens or subjects of the character aforesaid: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be deemed to impair the jurisdiction of the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico to hear and determine all controversies pending in said court at the date of the approval of this act. Upon the taking effect of this act the salaries of the judge and officials of the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico, together with the court expenses, shall be paid from the United States revenues in the same manner as in other United States district courts. In case of vacancy or of the death, absence, or other legal disability on the part of the judge of the said District Court of the United States for Porto Rico, the President of the United States is authorized to designate one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Porto Rico to discharge the duties of judge of said court until such absence or disability shall be removed, and thereupon such judge so designated for said service shall be fully authorized and empowered to perform the duties of said office during such absence or disability of such regular judge, and to sign all necessary papers and records as the acting judge of the said court, without extra compensation. No interlocutory or preliminary injunction suspending or restraining the enforcement or execution of any law or statute of Porto Rico by restraining the action of any officer of said island in the enforcement or execution of such statute, or in putting it into effect or in executing an order made by any administrative board or commission acting under and pursuant to any statute of said island, shall be issued or granted by the judge of the United States District Court for Porto Rico upon the ground of the unconstitutionality of said law or statute, unless the application for such injunction shall be presented to said United States district judge and said application shall be heard by said Federal judge and by two judges of the Supreme Court of Porto Rico, and shall not be granted unless a majority of said three judges concur in granting such application. Whenever such application as aforesaid is presented to said Federal judge he shall immediately call to his assistance to hear and determine the application the aforesaid two judges of the Supreme Court of Porto Rico. Said application shall not be heard before at least five days' notice of the hearing has been given to the Governor and to the attorney general of Porto Rico and to such other persons as may be defendants in the suit. The hearing upon such applications for interlocutory injunctions shall be given precedence on the calendar of said Federal court and shall be assigned for hearing at the earliest practicable day after the expiration of the five days' notice hereinbefore provided for. An appeal may be taken direct to the Supreme Court of the United States from any order granting or denying an interlocutory injunction in such cases. No permanent injunction shall be granted unless concurred in by a majority of the aforesaid three judges: Provided, That if before the final hearing of such application a suit shall have been brought in the insular courts of Porto Rico to enforce such statute or order all proceedings or suits in the Federal court of Porto Rico questioning such statutes where an order has been issued to stay the execution of such statute or order, shall be stayed pending the final determination of such suit in the insular courts; but such stay shall be vacated upon proof made after due hearing and service of notice on the attorney general of Porto Rico that the suit in the insular courts is not being prosecuted with diligence and good faith."

SEC. 13. That section 42 of the organic act of Porto Rico, approved March 2, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 42. That the laws of the United States relating to appeals, writs of error and certiorari, removal of causes, and other matters or proceedings as between the courts of the United States and the courts of the several States shall govern in such matters and proceedings as between the District Court of the United States and the courts of Porto Rico. Regular terms of said United States District Court shall be held at San Juan, commencing on the first Monday in May and November of each year. Also at Ponce on the second Monday in February of each year, and annually at Mayaguez at such stated time as said judge may deem expedient. All pleadings and proceedings in said court shall be conducted in the English or Spanish language. The said district court shall be attached to and included in the first circuit of the United States, with the right of appeal and review by said circuit court of appeals in all cases where the same would lie from any district court to a circuit court of appeals of the United States, and with the right of appeal and review directly by the Supreme Court of the United States in all cases where a direct appeal would be from such district courts."

SEC. 14. Section 49 of the organic act of Porto Rico, approved March 2, 1917, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 49. Hereafter and until the Legislature of Porto Rico otherwise provides, the judges, marshals, and secretaries of the courts at present established, or of such courts as may be established in future, shall be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate of Porto Rico."

SEC. 15. That a commission from the Legislature of Porto Rico, appointed by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives, shall proceed to Washington as soon as it may deem advisable after the convening of the coming session of Congress, to continue the work left pending by the commission sent to Washington under resolution of the last legislature; and said commission shall have ample powers, which are hereby granted to it, to demand a most complete and absolute self-government permitting our island to develop its economic and social progress to the point of placing itself in condition some day to propound the problem of its final status through a plebiscite of our people to express their sovereign will.

SEC. 16. That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the chairman of the Senate Committee on Territories and Insular Possessions, the chairman of the House Committee on Insular Affairs, and the Resident Commissioner for Porto Rico in Washington.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I present a petition from some of my constituents, which I ask to have read and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

There being no objection, a resolution adopted by the New York State Conference of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers of America, was read and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, as follows:

NEW YORK STATE CONFERENCE OF THE BROTHERHOOD OF PAINTERS,
DECORATORS, AND PAPERHANGERS OF AMERICA,
Syracuse, N. Y., December 7, 1925.

Hon. ROYAL S. COPELAND,
Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR:

Whereas a nation-wide bread trust is now in the course of formation under the domination of the Ward interests, which have persistently denied the right of the employees in their baking plants to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing; and

Whereas the creation of this bread trust is a menace to the wage earners of the United States, not only as employees but as the principal consumers of bakers' bread; and

Whereas the completion of the proposed combination of the Ward, Continental, and General Baking companies will give the bread trust power to control more than 50 per cent of the bread production in the principal cities of the United States, to dictate the price of bread to consumers, to fix wages of bakery employees, and by dictating the price of flour to control, indirectly but effectively, the price of the farmers' wheat; and

Whereas the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice have both failed to take the necessary action to prevent the formation of this trust: Therefore be it

Resolved by the New York State Conference of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers of America, That we hereby call upon the Congress of the United States to conduct a thorough investigation of the plans and activities of the promoters of the bread trust, including all attempts to suppress competition, to fix prices, and deny to their employees the right to bargain collectively, and as a result of such investigation to take such action as may be necessary to prevent or destroy any attempt to monopolize and control the commercial bread production of the United States.

Hoping that the resolution herein set forth will be favorably acted upon by your honorable body, we are

Sincerely yours,

NEW YORK STATE CONFERENCE OF THE BROTHERHOOD OF PAINTERS, DECORATORS, AND PAPERHANGERS OF AMERICA.
A. W. SHERMAN, Secretary-Treasurer.

Mr. PHIPPS presented a resolution of the board of directors of the Denver (Colo.) Chamber of Commerce, which was referred to the Committee on Finance and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Believing that the tax-reform principles heretofore advocated by several Secretaries of the Treasury of the United States, including Secretary Glass, Secretary Houston, and Secretary Mellon, should be made effective by appropriate legislation by the Federal Congress, thereby encouraging the investment of funds in productive industrial undertaking: Therefore be it

Resolved, First, that taxation is an economic problem which should be treated and solved without reference to partisan consideration;

Second, That we favor further reduction of Federal taxes on incomes, and that the maximum aggregate rates should not exceed 25 per cent; that is to say, 5 per cent normal and 20 per cent surtax;

Third, That the publicity provisions of the existing Federal income tax law should be repealed;

Fourth, That no death duties of any kind or character should be imposed by the Federal Government, except in case of national emergency;

Fifth, That Congress be urged to give effect to the foregoing principles, and that copies of these resolutions be transmitted to all Colorado Members of Federal Congress.

Mr. McKINLEY presented a joint resolution of the legislature of the State of Illinois favoring the passage of legislation embodying a scientific plan or program by which reasonable export bounties may be provided to be paid upon all exports of wheat, corn, hogs, and cattle, and their products, and by which the money to pay such bounties may be provided by the person economically benefited to the end that the producers' prices of such products for domestic and foreign consumption may be materially increased, etc., which was referred to the Committee on Finance. (See joint resolution printed in full when laid down to-day by the Vice President.)

Mr. FESS presented the petition of Henry H. Jegley and sundry other patients of the National Military Home of Dayton, Ohio, praying that the legislative program with reference to tuberculosis adopted by the American Legion be carried out, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. McLEAN presented a letter and a paper in the nature of petitions from the Women's Relief Corps, Grand Army of the Republic, of Cromwell, and Charles D. Rowen Camp No. 2, of Meriden, both in the State of Connecticut, praying for increase of pensions to the survivors and widows of the Civil and Spanish-American Wars, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WILLIS presented a resolution adopted at a meeting of citizens of Marietta, Ohio, favoring the adhesion of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice, which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented a petition of Henry H. Jegley and sundry other patients of the National Military Home of Dayton, Ohio, praying that the legislative program with reference to tuberculosis adopted by the American Legion be carried out, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. JONES of Washington presented a petition of sundry citizens of Grandview, Wash., praying for the removal or reduction of the tax on industrial alcohol, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a resolution adopted by the board of directors of the Washington State Chamber of Commerce, at Olympia, Wash., favoring the adhesion of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice, which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. BINGHAM presented a petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Congregational Church, and the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Higganum, Conn., praying for the adhesion of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice and commending the enforcement of the Volstead Act, etc., which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented letters and papers in the nature of petitions of the board of directors of the Fairfield County Republican Women's Association; the Mount Carmel Book Club, of Mount Carmel; the Bridgeport (Conn.) section, National Council of Jewish Women, of Bridgeport; the men's class of the Second Congregational Church, of Watertown; the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Stafford Springs, Middlefield, Eastern Enfield, Montville, Wallingford, Essex, Plantsville, Wethersfield, Central Village, New Haven; the Christian Endeavor Societies of the Congregational and Baptist churches of Clinton; the Woman's Town Improvement Association of Westport; the Woman's Study Club, of Naugatuck; the directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Waterbury; the Hartford (Conn.) section of the National Council of Jewish Women; the Current History Class of New London; the directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Middletown; the Republican Woman's Club of Stamford; the Woman's Club of Waterbury; the League of Women Voters of Wallingford, Terryville, and Salisbury; sundry citizens of Watertown, New Milford, and Middlebury, all in the State of Connecticut, and of the Interchurch Federation Council of Honolulu, Hawaii, and the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Honolulu, Hawaii, praying for the adhesion of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice, which were referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, on last Saturday, December 5, a great public meeting was held in Memphis in the interest of the World Court, and that meeting was addressed by Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan. At the close of his speech resolutions favoring the court were passed by that great public meeting. I ask that those resolutions may be printed in the RECORD, together with resolutions passed at a meeting at Montreat, N. C., in favor of the World Court.

There being no objection, the resolutions were ordered to lie on the table and to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Whereas a large number of the citizens of Memphis have assembled in the public auditorium at a meeting presided over by his honor, Rowlett Paine, the mayor, and have heard with pleasure and approval the eloquent plea made by Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commander of the Twenty-seventh Division in the World War, that this country join the World Court established by the League of Nations at The Hague: Therefore be it

Resolved, That we thank General O'Ryan for his splendid address and declare ourselves in complete agreement therewith. Be it further

Resolved, That we respectfully petition the Senate of the United States to pass all resolutions necessary to the full and complete carrying out of the recommendations of the President of the United States in this matter, subject only to such reservations as have been suggested by the President. Be it further

Resolved, That we commend Senators McKELLAR and TYSON for their declared purpose to work and vote for the entry of the United States into the World Court at the earliest possible moment, and we beg them to present these resolutions to the Senate of the United States. Be it further

Resolved, That we thank his honor the mayor, Congressman FISHER, the American Legion, the Tenth Congressional District Reserve Officers' Association, and the Military Order of Foreign Wars for inviting the speaker of the evening to come to us on this occasion and otherwise making possible this meeting.

RESOLUTIONS REGARDING THE ENTRANCE OF UNITED STATES INTO THE WORLD COURT

The following resolution was passed unanimously at Montreat, N. C., by a great assembly of 800 women coming from 18 States and 5 foreign countries:

"1. Whereas the World Court is not a political institution but a judicial one and has been approved by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America as well as by leaders of both political parties;

"2. Whereas the World Court constitutes the only existing mechanism for applying international law to the settlement of international disputes and thus 'outlawing war'; and

"3. Whereas the subject of the entrance of America into the World Court has been made the unfinished business of the Senate for December 17 next: Therefore be it Resolved, That the members of the Summer School of Missions express to the Senate their most emphatic request for a record vote from the Senate for the entrance of America into the World Court as soon as practical after the discussion of this subject begins on December 17."

Mrs. W. C. WINSBOROUGH,

Chairman of Summer School of Missions.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

Mr. WARREN. Mr. President, I send to the desk a letter from Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, Governor of the State of Wyoming, relative to the proposed extension of the boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park, which I ask may be referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys and printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE STATE OF WYOMING,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
Cheyenne, December 7, 1925.

Hon. FRANCIS E. WARREN,

United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR WARREN: I am advised that the committee appointed by the President has recommended the extension of the Yellowstone National Park by the inclusion within its boundaries of a considerable area now within the borders of the State of Wyoming, and that a bill will be introduced during the present session of Congress to accomplish this purpose. The desirability of this action is a subject upon which the people of Wyoming are naturally divided. It will interest you, however, to know that the expressions that have come to my office from individuals and from representative organizations from practically every section of the State lead to the conclusion that the preponderance of sentiment is against extension.

It has been my opinion that the wishes of the people of Wyoming should have a strong influence upon the decision of the Congress in the matter. I have felt that I should inform you of the tenor of the views that in letters, telegrams, and resolutions have been sent me, although I realize that you and the other Members of the Congressional delegation may have received even more complete information on this phase of the matter than has come to me. I do, however, desire to call your attention particularly to the fact that the State of Wyoming has never exercised the right of taxation in the Yellowstone Park. I am advised that in the creation of practically all other national parks throughout the United States there was reserved to the States from which they were withdrawn the right to tax all private property within them. For instance, the property of all utilities companies operating within the boundaries of the Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado, the Glacier Park in Montana, and the Yosemite Park in California are a source of substantial revenue to the respective States, while the extensive hotel and transportation enterprises—which I am told operate with large profit in the Yellowstone Park—yield no return whatever to the State of Wyoming in taxes.

There is, of course, a great deal of opposition in the State on principle to the surrender of additional territory to the Federal Government. Personally, while recognizing that there are reasonable arguments for and against it, I do not believe that extension would be advantageous to the State.

There are many citizens who feel that the extension of the park without the express consent of the legislature should be resisted. If, however, it develops that the sentiment of the Congress favors it, regardless of the desires of the people of Wyoming, it is my earnest hope that it will appeal to the members of the Wyoming delegation as a proper recognition of the rights of this State that there should be embodied in any extension measure a provision securing to this State the same powers of taxation that are exercised by other States in regard to national parks within their boundaries.

I believe it would meet the approval of a majority of the people of Wyoming if our delegation, before consenting to the surrender of another acre of Wyoming territory, would insist that the Federal Government give express authorization to the State of taxation upon all private property not only within the additional area but throughout the entire park.

Yours very truly,

NELLIE TAYLOR ROSS,
Governor.

INVESTIGATION OF BUREAU OF INTERNAL REVENUE

Mr. COUZENS. From the Select Committee on Investigation of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, I submit the testimony taken by the committee on March 18 to March 30, and from May 4 to May 30, as contained in parts 15, 16, 17, 18 of the printed hearings; and also letters and replies from the bureau as contained in part 19.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The report will be received and printed.

Mr. REED of Missouri. I desire to inquire of the Senator from Michigan, how many copies of the evidence have been printed?

Mr. COUZENS. I think there are sufficient for any Senators or Representatives in Congress who may want them. I believe there is no necessity to have more copies printed now. The testimony I submit has already been printed, and we have copies for Members of Congress who may desire them.

Mr. SMOOT. I understood the Vice President to state that the report would be received and printed. Does the Senator from Michigan want it printed again, or will the copies that have already been printed by order of the chairman of the committee suffice?

Mr. COUZENS. They will be sufficient. I did not ask to have it printed when I submitted the report.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The report will be received, but no order to print will be made.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PUBLIC BUILDINGS COMMISSION

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, I submit to the Senate the annual report of the Public Buildings Commission, and I ask that it be printed as a public document, together with the illustrations by way of exhibits to the report. In other words, the exhibits are a part of the report and explain the reason for certain changes recommended in the report.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Utah? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

TESTIMONY OF WITNESSES UNDER LETTERS ROGATORY

Mr. WALSH. Mr. President, it will be recalled that the affairs of the Continental Trading Co. became the subject of inquiry in the suit brought by the Government of the United States against the Sinclair Co. in the State of Wyoming. The testimony of certain witnesses was desired, but they found it convenient to be in Europe at the time. An effort was made to take their testimony under letters rogatory. Those witnesses appeared before a judge of the Republic of France, but refused to testify. I introduce the bill, which I send to the desk, in order to meet that situation and ask that it may be read.

The bill (S. 1035) relating to contempts was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That whenever letters rogatory shall issue out of any court of the United States, either with or without interrogatories addressed to any court of any foreign country, to take the testimony of any witness, and such witness, having been duly notified by it according to the practice of such court, to appear and testify pursuant to such letters rogatory, and such witness shall neglect to appear, or having appeared shall decline, refuse, or neglect to answer to any question which may be propounded to him by or under the authority of such court, to which he would be required to make answer were he being examined before the court issuing such letters, the said court may, upon the complaint of any party aggrieved, make an order returnable at a time to be fixed therein requiring the recusing witness to appear and show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

2. Upon issuing such order the court may, either unconditionally or upon giving security for any damages he may have suffered, should the charge be dismissed, direct as a part of such order that the property of the recusing witness, at any place within the United States, or so much thereof in value as the court may direct, shall be levied upon and seized by the marshal of said court in the manner provided by law or the rule of the court for a levy or seizure under execution, to be held to satisfy any judgment that may be rendered against such witness in the proceeding so instituted.

3. The marshal having made such levy shall thereupon cause to be published such order to show cause and for the sequestration of the property of such witness, in some newspaper of general circulation in the district within which the court issuing such order sits, once each week for four successive weeks.

On the return day of such order or any later day to which the hearing may by the court be continued, proof shall be taken and if the charge of recusancy against the witness shall be sustained the court shall adjudge him guilty of contempt, and, notwithstanding any limitation upon the power of the court generally to punish for contempt, impose upon him a fine not exceeding $100,000 and direct that the amount thereof with the costs of the proceeding be satisfied, unless paid, by a sale of the property of the witness so seized or levied upon, such sale to be conducted upon the notice required and in the manner provided for sales upon execution.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The bill will be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PROPOSED RECOGNITION OF SOVIET GOVERNMENT IN RUSSIA

Mr. BORAH. I submit a resolution which I ask may lie on the table.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The resolution (S. Res. 74) was read and ordered to lie on the table, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States favors the recognition of the present Soviet Government of Russia.

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS

Mr. BORAH submitted a resolution (S. Res. 75), which was read and referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Relations, or any subcommittee thereof, be, and hereby is, authorized during the Sixty-ninth Congress to send for persons, books, and papers, to administer oaths, and to employ a stenographer, at a cost not exceeding 25 cents per hundred words, to report such hearings as may be had in connection with any subject which may be before said committee, the expenses thereof to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate; and that the committee, or any subcommittee thereof, may sit during the sessions or recesses of the Senate.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS OF THE RULES

Mr. JONES of Washington. Mr. President, I gave notice at the session of the Senate on Tuesday of certain amendments which I intend to propose to the rules. I desire now to present those proposed amendments and ask that they may be referred to the Committee on Rules.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The resolutions will be received. The resolution (S. Res. 76) was referred to the Committee on Rules, as follows:

Resolved, That Rule XIX of the Senate Rules relating to debate be amended by adding to said rule a paragraph to be No. 7, to read as follows:

7. Debate shall be confined to the subject matter under consideration, and all points of order relating thereto shall be decided by the Chair without debate. Upon an appeal from a decision of the Chair upon any such point of order no Senator shall speak more than once or longer than 10 minutes.

Mr. JONES of Washington also submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 77), which was referred to the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That Rule XIX of the Standing Rules of the Senate be amended by adding the following paragraph:

"8. Whenever a bill or resolution, other than an appropriation bill or a revenue bill, has been under consideration for 10 days or more a notice to limit debate on such measure, signed by 15 or more Senators, may be filed after being read to the Senate, and on and after the next calendar day from the filing of such notice a vote shall be taken upon the question 'Shall debate on the pending measure be limited?' and if a majority of the Senate shall vote to limit debate thereafter no Senator shall speak more than once, nor longer than one hour, on the bill, nor more than twice, nor longer than 20 minutes, on any amendment that may be offered. No dilatory or frivolous amendment shall be received and a point of order that an amendment is dilatory or frivolous shall be decided by the Chair without debate, and upon an appeal from his decision no Senator shall speak more than five minutes."

Mr. JONES of Washington also submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 78), which was referred to the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That Rule XVIII of the Senate Rules relating to amendments be amended by adding a new paragraph 2 and to read as follows:

"2. No amendment shall be in order to a bill, resolution, or other amendment unless it be germane to the subject matter under consideration. If a point of order is made against a proposed amendment, it shall be decided without debate, unless the Chair desires to hear discussion. Upon any appeal from the decision of the Chair relating to such point of order no Senator shall speak more than once nor longer than 10 minutes."

HEARINGS BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON CLAIMS

Mr. MEANS submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 79), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Claims, or any subcommittee thereof, be, and hereby is, authorized during the Sixty-ninth Congress to send for persons, books, and papers, to administer oaths, and to employ a stenographer, at a cost not exceeding 25 cents per 100 words, to report such hearings as may be had in connection with any subject which may be before said committee, the expenses thereof to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate, and that the committee or any subcommittee thereof may sit during the sessions or recesses of the Senate.

HEARINGS BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON NAVAL AFFAIRS

Mr. HALE submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 80), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs, or any subcommittee thereof, be, and hereby is, authorized during the Sixty-ninth Congress to send for persons, books, and papers, to administer oaths, and to employ a stenographer at a cost not to exceed 25 cents per 100 words, to report such hearings as may be had in connection with any subject which may be before said committee, the expenses thereof to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate, and that the committee, or any subcommittee thereof, may sit during the sessions or recess of the Senate.

HEARINGS BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON CIVIL SERVICE

Mr. COUZENS submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 81), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Civil Service, or any subcommittee thereof, be, and hereby is, authorized during the Sixty-ninth Congress to send for persons, books, and papers, to administer oaths, and to employ a stenographer at a cost not exceeding 25 cents per 100 words to report such hearings as may be had in connection with any subject which may be before said committee, the expenses thereof to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate; and that the committee, or any subcommittee thereof, may sit during the sessions or recesses of the Senate.

ADMINISTRATION OF NATIONAL FORESTS AND PUBLIC DOMAIN

Mr. CAMERON submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 82), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the report of the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, together with recommendations for such legislation as it deems necessary, provided for in Senate Resolution 347, Sixty-eighth Congress, second session, may be submitted to the Senate at any time during the Sixty-ninth Congress as one final report or as a series of partial reports, and all provisions of such resolution (except the provision relating to the time for making report and recommendations) shall continue in effect until the submission of such final report or of all such partial reports.

EVERETT H. MCLENANHAN

Mr. STANFIELD submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 83), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is hereby authorized and directed to pay, from the contingent fund of the Senate, to Everett H. McClenahan, son of Robert U. McClenahan, late a messenger of the Senate, under supervision of the Sergeant at Arms, a sum equal to six months' compensation at the rate he was receiving by law at the time of his death, said sum to be considered as including funeral expenses and all other allowances.

PROPOSED INVESTIGATION OF ST. ELIZABETHS HOSPITAL

Mr. SHIPSTEAD. I present a resolution and ask unanimous consent that it may be printed in the RECORD and lie on the table.

There being no objection, the resolution was ordered to lie on the table and be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Senate Resolution 84

Whereas a grand jury sitting in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia did, on the 5th day of October, 1925, return to said court a report concerning conditions existing in the St. Elizabeths Hospital, which report is in words and figures as follows, to wit:

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 5, 1925.

In connection with the inquiry into the cause of the death of William Green, a patient of St. Elizabeths Hospital on the 17th day of July, 1924, the grand jury made an investigation as to the general conditions of life at said institution.

The grand jury visited the hospital in a body and were shown about the grounds and through many of the buildings. As William Green came to his death in Howard Hall, they inspected it with greater care and more closely than they did the other buildings.

There are approximately 4,400 patients and 1,200 attendants in the entire institution, about 1,000 of the patients being veterans of the World War. We found the hospital greatly overcrowded and most deplorable conditions existing as a result of this overcrowding. There are some rooms intended to accommodate 20 single beds containing more than 40 beds. There is scarcely enough room to walk between these beds, and consequently there can not be the least privacy for the patients in dressing or undressing. The patients should be either sent to other institutions until there is a reduction of from 500 to 1,000 under the present total patient population of 4,400 or sufficient money should be appropriated to erect enough additional buildings, to the end that these unfortunate people may enjoy at least the common decencies of life. If the overcrowded condition of the hospital is not remedied at an early date, we fear that the percentage of inmates becoming hopelessly insane will be greater than those cured, in spite of the best efforts of the superintendent and his assistants.

Conditions in Howard Hall are particularly bad. This building houses about 200 patients. It was originally intended to accommodate about half this number. Here are confined not only those of the dangerously insane type but, as well, those who have become insane while serving criminal sentences in Federal prisons and penitentiaries. Many of these men are suffering only from the mildest forms of mental disorders, but, according to the statements of the physicians in charge, are liable to escape if given greater liberties, and are accordingly confined in this building, which is surrounded by a very substantial wall 24 feet in height.

There is an open court in the center of the building, about 100 feet square, called by the inmates the "bull pen." This is the only recreation space available, and here the dangerous as well as the noisy patients mingle with those whose minds are almost normal. This intermingling must be very depressing to the latter class of patients. The sky is visible to the patients while they are in this court, and a glimpse of the outside world may be had by looking over the 24-foot wall. As there is no assembly hall in the building, it is but seldom that religious services are held, and accordingly the spiritual well-being of the patients is sadly neglected; there is nothing to break the dead monotony from one end of the week to the other.

In the winter season conditions in Howard Hall must be even worse than in mild weather, as during the cold months the inmates can not, because of the cold, long remain in the open court, their only place of recreation. During the winter months, both day and night, the patients must either stay in their rooms or in the wards—a condition, in our opinion, very depressing upon the inmates, especially those only mildly afflicted.

After examining conditions in Howard Hall the members of the grand jury could readily believe the statement of the guard who said: "If a man went in there [Howard Hall] with a perfectly sound mind, he would be hopelessly insane in less than three years. If I were an inmate, I would go crazy in less than a year."

We recommend that another recreation ground be provided inside the wall surrounding this hall and that those patients only mildly afflicted be at all times entirely separated from those hopelessly insane; also that harmless games of all kinds be provided to divert the minds of the patients.

In the main part of the hospital conditions seemed much better. The grounds are large and commodious, the buildings clean and well kept, and most of the patients are allowed to wander about at will. There is a chapel, where the various religious denominations hold services, and patients desiring to attend these services are given the opportunity. There is also a well-equipped hall, where theatricals and other entertainments are given for the patients and greatly enjoyed by them.

A very noticeable thing, however, is the absence of recreational facilities, for, aside from a baseball field, there seems to be no provision for out-of-door amusements. It has been well said, "Fun is the best of medicine," and for weak-minded people it should be supplied in abundance. We believe there should be a dozen or more places provided where the inmates could play handball, basket ball, volley ball, tennis, and other harmless games; the attendants should teach and encourage the patients to play these games; they would in time become fond of these forms of amusements and sports and be greatly benefited by the exercise.

Among the witnesses who were summoned and appeared before us, including present patients of the hospital, former inmates, and others well acquainted with the present inmates, many expressed the belief that there are many persons now confined there who are not now and never were insane, but who have been sent there for ulterior motives. Like stories have been in circulation in Washington for a long time; and, whether true or false, they are unquestionably injuring the hospital in the estimation of the people of this city, and some steps should be taken to clear up the situation.

We suggest that Congress be asked to authorize a commission, the members thereof to be appointed by the President, to act in conjunction with the superintendent and medical staff of the hospital, in carefully investigating the history and mental condition of every questionable case there, to the end that full justice may be done to each. This great institution will then occupy the position it should in the estimation of the people of this city and of the entire country.

Respectfully submitted for the grand jury.

DANIEL A. EDWARDS, Foreman.

Whereas it appears from the annual reports of receipts and expenditures for said hospital made by the superintendent of the said hospital to Congress at the opening of each regular session, as required by the act of June 4, 1880 (ch. 121, sec. 1, 21 Stat. L. p. 156), that said reports do not contain a properly detailed report of expenditures as required by said act and which reports are in the matter of detail as to items of expenditures generally obscure and vague, and it appears that a better and more detailed account should be given of said expenditures: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That a select committee of five members be elected by the Senate with authority to investigate into all matters concerning the operation, maintenance, and care of said hospital, and the accommodations for and treatment of the patients therein, and the reasonableness of all expenditures for fuel and other supplies and for attendants at said hospital, and to fully investigate the official acts of the superintendent of said hospital and his associate officers and such other Government officers as may be involved in any transactions with the officials of said hospital and to report to the Senate their findings and make such recommendations as to it appear proper for such remedial measures, if any there be, for the correction of any improper conditions there may be found to exist in said hospital.

Resolved further, That for the purpose of this investigation the said committee or any subcommittee thereof, is authorized to conduct its investigations during the recesses of the Senate, and is empowered to administer oaths, summon and compel the attendance of witnesses, and send for and compel the production of books and papers, including all books and records of St. Elizabeths Hospital and such other Government departments and institutions as may be involved; to employ a stenographer at a cost not exceeding 25 cents per hundred words to report such hearings as may be had in pursuance hereof. All expenses incident to the accomplishment of the purposes of this resolution to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

HEARINGS BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON BANKING AND CURRENCY

Mr. McLEAN submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 85), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Banking and Currency, or any subcommittee thereof, be, and hereby is, authorized during the Sixty-ninth Congress to send for persons, books, and papers, to administer oaths, and to employ a stenographer, at a cost not to exceed 25 cents per 100 words, to report such hearings as may be had in connection with any subject that may be pending before said committee, the expenses thereof to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate; and that the committee, or any subcommittee thereof, may sit during the sessions or recesses of the Senate.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate concludes its business to-day it adjourn until Monday next. I may state in this connection that the Committee on Privileges and Elections advise me that if this action shall be taken they can report out the Nye case on next Monday. If it is not taken, they may not be able to present their report at that time. So as it is a question of the highest privilege which the committee is considering, I ask unanimous consent that this order be made. I have spoken to the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. ROBINSON] concerning it, and he is agreeable to the Senate taking an adjournment until Monday.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President, is the morning hour closed? The VICE PRESIDENT. The morning hour is not as yet closed. Is there any further morning business?

[Mr. McKELLAR introduced several bills, which appear under the proper heading.]

The VICE PRESIDENT. If there be no further morning business, the calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. PITTMAN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The absence of a quorum being suggested, the roll will be called.

The roll was called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Ashurst	Ernst	Keyes	Robinson, Ind.
Bayard	Fernald	King	Sackett
Bingham	Ferris	La Follette	Schall
Blease	Fess	Leafoot	Sheppard
Borah	Fletcher	McKellar	Shipstead
Bratton	Frazier	McKinley	Shortridge
Brookhart	George	McLean	Simmons
Broussard	Gerry	McMaster	Smith
Bruce	Gillett	McNary	Smoot
Butler	Glass	Mayfield	Stanfield
Cameron	Goff	Means	Stephens
Capper	Gooding	Metcalf	Swanson
Caraway	Greene	Moses	Trammell
Copeland	Hale	Neely	Tyson
Couzens	Harrell	Oddie	Wadsworth
Cummins	Harris	Overman	Walsh
Curtis	Harrison	Phipps	Warren
Dale	Hedlin	Pine	Watson
Deneen	Johnson	Pittman	Weller
Dill	Jones, N. Mex.	Reed, Mo.	Wheeler
Edge	Jones, Wash.	Reed, Pa.	Williams
Edwards	Kendrick	Robinson, Ark.	Willis

The VICE PRESIDENT. Eighty-eight Senators having answered to their names, a quorum is present.

Mr. HARRISON obtained the floor.

Mr. MOSES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me for a moment?

Mr. HARRISON. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. MOSES. Not wishing to deprive the Senate or the galleries of the flow of eloquence that will fall from the lips of the Senator from Mississippi, will he permit us to go on with the regular order, which is the calendar, there being only one number on the calendar, and that an unobjected joint resolution?

Mr. HARRISON. I have no objection if I can get the floor to talk. I can talk on that proposition as well as anything else.

Mr. MOSES. Only for five minutes, under the rule.

I ask unanimous consent, Mr. President, that at the conclusion of the regular order, which is the calendar under Rule VIII, the Senator from Mississippi be granted the floor.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

POSTAL RATES AND CHARGES

The joint resolution (S. J. Res. 1) to continue section 217 of the act reclassifying the salaries of postmasters and employees of the Postal Service, readjusting their salaries and compensation on an equitable basis, increasing postal rates to provide for such readjustment, and for other purposes (Public, No. 506, 68th Cong.), approved February 28, 1925, in full force and effect until not later than the end of the second week of the second session of the Sixty-ninth Congress, was announced as the business on the calendar, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed its consideration.

Mr. MOSES. Mr. President, I think the joint resolution need not be read again, as it was read in full on Tuesday, and was the subject of some discussion. Inasmuch as the Senate has already agreed to adjourn until Monday, and the committee whose life is sought to be extended by the joint resolution will go out of existence automatically under the statute on Saturday, I think there is now no objection to the consideration or passage of the joint resolution, so that the Senate may hear from the Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. SWANSON. Mr. President, do I understand that the term of the commission expires next Saturday?

Mr. MOSES. Yes; I will say to the Senator that under the statute the term of the commission expires next Saturday.

Mr. SWANSON. And do I understand that they have not sufficient data to enable them to make a report?

Mr. MOSES. That is the case, and we will not have the data until the 1st of February at the earliest.

Mr. SWANSON. May I have the assurance of the Senator that the commission will be as diligent as it possibly can in making a report?

Mr. MOSES. I will assure the Senator from Virginia that the Senator from New Hampshire will employ his well-known diligence in disposing of this subject.

Mr. SWANSON. If it is his well-known diligence, I shall not object; but if it is his promised diligence, without his well-known diligence, there might be some objection.

Mr. MOSES. The adjective "well known" stands on my part, Mr. President.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PROPOSED CLOTURE RULE

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President, from the New York World of April 29, in giving an account of the Presiding Officer's speech at Boston, I read as follows: It is headed:

Rules of Senate safe from Dawes, MOSES asserts.

The paper says, quoting the senior Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. MOSES]:

The reception accorded Mr. Dawes's speech in Boston was so warm that by dawn of the ensuing morning the temperature had dropped to 18° above zero, and we had a snowstorm.

From that speech I quote certain extracts. The Presiding Officer says:

I am going around this country before I get through this four years; then I am going out of office. [Applause and laughter.]

I notice that in all the speeches where he said he is going out of office there is applause. [Laughter.]

The Vice President had previously said that he would reserve discussion of the Senate rules for his New York speech on Tuesday. It was the presence at the luncheon of Senator BUTLER, he declared, that led him to change his mind. Alluding to himself as "the best smoker-out in the country," he said:

It was the way I said it, not what I said, that gave rise to irritation in Washington. My grief over that irritation is somewhat tempered by a remark of George Bernard Shaw, that no offensive truth is properly presented unless it causes irritation.

And now I am going to say—

Said the Presiding Officer—

a few things. And I am going to say them because Senator WILLIAM M. BUTLER is here to listen. As I see it, unless in my humble way I can act as a conduit to transmit to the Senate and its Members the individual reactions of their constituency, I do not see what I am doing in office. So I am going to appeal to you, as part of Senator BUTLER's constituency, to express your opinion on this subject of Senate rules. Here is a principle at stake that our forefathers fought for.

I want Senator BUTLER to know how you feel about it. All of you who think the Senate rules ought to be changed, stand up. Come on. Get up and say so right now.

And they got up, and Senator BUTLER got up.

I knew Senator BUTLER would stand up—

Says the Presiding Officer.

Senator GILLET would stand up, too, if he were here. He told me so.

[Laughter.]

Then he says he wanted to hear what Senator BUTLER had to say about it. I will quote from that later.

In another speech at Elizabeth, N. J., where my friend the senior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. EDGE] was present, the Vice President reviewed his opposition to the rule which permitted Senators to speak without time limitation, and asserted his proposal for revision of the rule was opposed because it would—affect the personal power the Senators can wield for ulterior motives. * * * These filibustering Senators—

Referring to his opening speech in the Senate, when he took that body to task for its rules—who extend courtesies to each other, only give me 12½ minutes in four years.

Well, that is enough. [Laughter.]

I made the most of it. I let the country know there was going to be a fight.

Mr. Frank Kent, in writing on the Vice President, quotes from the New York Herald-Tribune, one of the great Republican papers of the country. It says:

The Vice President himself was vastly enthusiastic. He spoke with his whole body, crouching over the desk and hammering on the top, meanwhile stamping his feet until the platform trembled. He shook his fists at the audience and, during the whole course of his speech, beat a rapid tattoo on his notes with his gold-rimmed glasses.

In the Chicago speech he goes further. The Vice President says, reading from the Chicago Tribune:

So our senior United States Senator and our junior one smiled over at General Dawes yesterday noon. And the general tossed them a verbal dispensation, holding them not guilty for the sins of their confederates down at Washington. "They have too much sense to filibuster," Mr. Dawes explained, and everybody seemed satisfied.

* * * "Senator MCKINLEY's already talking for my new rule"—

"My new rule!"

"and I believe Senator DENEEN is going to come out for it."

Listen, Senators!

"If he does not"—

Says the Vice President—

"he will not go back to the Senate from this State."

Reading further from the Tribune:

Yesterday's speech contained, too, a threat to the overtalky Senators, and an equally positive bit of autobiography.

The threat: If the Senate rules are not reformed I propose, after the candidates in the next campaign are named, to appeal to their constituencies to put them on record on this question which they have been dodging. * * * That is why I am dangerous.

After saying that he would not be a candidate again, and he got applause at Chicago on that statement—

This last remark closed the speech, brought the women and the two Senators to their feet, and sent the yellow posies toppling over.

"And, by the same token, this is the reason I waste no time in supplicating the Members of the Senate, but go right over their heads to the American people."

Mr. President, in the conception of Don Quixote, Cervantes embellished literature and gave to history its most daring crusader.

What a pleasant contemplation when one envisions this "Hell and Maria" person, booted and spurred and liveried in knightly attire, as he dashes forth upon his charging steed, untired and unafraid, contesting every inch of ground against every adverse element, from geese to windmills!

The heroic efforts of this gallant knight have but one counterpart in the history of the human race, and that is found in the remarkable crusade of the Vice President during the past summer and fall. Some day, from the great mass of the unknown, there will arise a genius, blessed with such lucid expression and endowed with such fascinating imagery, as to be equal to the task of correctly and graphically portraying the exploits of this modern Don Quixote. Away he went from coast to coast, from the Lakes to the Gulf, yonder to New England, where he collaborated with my friend, Senator BUTLER; then to Denver; then to the South, and on to the Golden Gates of the Pacific. It was a Godsend that he went to Birmingham, because there he heard a very good speech from OSCAR UNDERWOOD, and after Senator UNDERWOOD had spoken that day the Vice President had a better speech. That was a life saver.

Mr. President, if the delegates to the Cleveland convention had known that you possessed all the remarkable talent which you have spoken so generously of yourself, much suspense, many hours of anxiety, those sharp contests at the Cleveland convention, might have been avoided. If the delegates there had known that the Vice President possessed all the knowledge of the world and had a cure for all its ills, and had cloistered in his secret breast a formula which would preserve and guarantee constitutional government in the future by a change of the Senate rules—if those delegates at Cleveland had known that, or even thought it, it would not have been necessary for them first to run and appeal to the Senator from Idaho [Mr. BORAH] to accept the Vice Presidential nomination; then to Illinois and beseech Lowden to accept the nomination; and then to keep the wires to Washington hot appealing to Hoover to accept the nomination, and then go back to Lowden, and when they found nobody else would take it, offer it to the present Presiding Officer of this body. [Laughter.]

Mr. President, if the American people had known, after the nomination of our Presiding Officer for Vice President on the Republican ticket, that he was a man of such extraordinary talents, that he possessed all knowledge about Senate procedure, God knows how big the majority would have been in that campaign—

And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew,
That one small head could carry all he knew.

In that campaign it fell from the lips of the distinguished candidate for Vice President—not once, but a hundred times—that constitutional government was threatened not because of the Senate rules but because of La Folletteism and because of the policy advocated by Senator La Follette of overriding the decisions of the Supreme Court by congressional enactments. That was, then, the cancerous sore that might eat at the vitals of the Nation. One of the mysterious things about that campaign is that he kept his formula secret from the beginning to the end.

Mr. President, I do not know when the rays of this reform first struck upon your benign countenance. Was it on that eventful day, the 4th day of March, 1925, when, with this Chamber crowded with representatives from every foreign country, and in the presence of the President of the United States, who had so long defended and enforced the rules of the Senate, and with the Supreme Court of the United States present, and when you snatched the bridegroom's robes and spread your name on the front page of every paper in the country? We will not forget that day—such well-modulated sentences, such poise, and those acrobatic stunts to which the Senate had theretofore been denied.

He said in the Chicago speech that "I am a dangerous man." It is a wonderful trait for one to be able to judge the faults and virtues in another, but it is still more wonderful to be able to judge them in one's self. I know not when this great discovery of the necessity of a revision of the Senate rules first struck the Vice President. Whether he just originated the idea himself or it fell upon his ears we are left to surmise. If he had traveled around the headquarters of the Republican national campaign two years ago he might have heard that he was "a dangerous man" from the whisperings emanating from the council chambers of the Republican headquarters as the vice presidential candidate went his way into Maine, then into Iowa, and then into Wisconsin. Fear and trembling and trepidation were in the hearts of the Republican leadership at that time. But the Vice President asserts in his speeches "my new rule." He told the distinguished junior Senator from Illinois [Mr. DEXEEN] of "my new rule."

Senators, was that the first time we ever heard of cloture? Since the foundation of this Government there has been talk about some kind of cloture in the United States Senate. Yet the distinguished Presiding Officer thought, when he found this founding, that it was "My new rule."

In the beginning of our Government, when they had cloture in this body, they kept it for only 17 years, and then, with no apparent opposition, they abandoned it in 1805. Mr. Clay on one occasion thought they ought to have a modified cloture, and he presented a resolution providing for such a rule, but the opposition against it, led by John C. Calhoun, was so tremendous that Mr. Clay abandoned the proposition.

Why "My new rule"? Where was the distinguished Senator from Alabama, who has fought and spoken for cloture in this body so long? Where was the Vice President that he did not read the speeches of Senator OWEN, who has spoken for cloture in this body for a generation? No; he had found a new idea, which in sensational style he could hurl to the American people, arouse their prejudice, and claim it as "My new rule."

If the distinguished Presiding Officer had only studied the history of Senate procedure he would have known that two of the late and most distinguished Republican leaders of the Senate, men whose names are revered—Gallinger, of New Hampshire, and Lodge, of Massachusetts—at one time were for cloture, but that they abandoned their views and fought it while they were leaders of their party.

My friend, Senator BUTLER, in his speech at Boston employed this language when he was catechised by the distinguished Vice President. This article states:

Senator BUTLER's first remarks were, "I believe in reform of the rules." He said: "When I went down to the Senate my experience with Senate rules and the doctrine of seniority taught me that it made no difference what a man's achievements were or whence he came, he was forced to take the last seat and the lowest position on the lowest committee. I believe in reform."

Why did the distinguished leaders on the other side treat the new-born Senator as you did when he came here, a man of such great achievements, having been chairman of the Republican National Campaign Committee? Naturally, he had a sore toe, and so, when he spoke on that occasion he said, "I am for a reform of the rules." The Vice President is for a change in the rules to get a cloture. The Senator from Massachusetts is for a change to get a respectable committee assignment. The Massachusetts Sancho Panza should have been given the places made vacant through the death of the venerable and able Cabot Lodge.

Mr. President, I do not know whether or not this great crusade which you made through the country during the summer and the fall has sharpened your sword for the fray here to reform the rules of the Senate. If it has, those of us who believe that the old Senate has gotten along pretty well under the present rules, who believe that the rights of the people are safeguarded by a guaranty under them of full consideration and a free discussion of all questions here, say to you, "Welcome. We are ready." But, Mr. President, do not forget in your enthusiasm that a Vice President is liable to get attention, no matter where he goes. If a curio is placed in a window here upon F Street, crowds will gather to look at it. A lot of people go out to see a man who occupies the first page of the press of the country, as a curiosity. But may I say to the distinguished Presiding Officer, do not mistake the great crowds and the acceptance of the invitation to rise at these banquets as the sentiments of the American people.

In conclusion, let me commend to the Vice President a fable. It was about some specimen of mule—an unruly, unmanageable, intractable mule. Such a kind that would break out of inclosures and promptly run away. So the owner yoked and belled him, and one day this unruly specimen of a mule broke down the fence and away he went in high spirit to the city.

Up and down the streets he paraded, swinging his yoke and ringing his bell. Out of amusement and curiosity crowds gathered. The poor, deluded, misguided specimen of a mule mistook the laughter as the plaudits of the crowd. [Laughter.]

REPORTS OF COTTON CROP ESTIMATING BOARD

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I shall detain the Senate but a moment. I am not in favor of changing the rules of the Senate, but I am in favor of changing the crop-estimating board, and also its methods of gathering and publishing reports regarding the cotton crop.

I want to say just a word about the estimate given out yesterday. The board has overestimated the cotton crop by at least a million bales, and I want to submit some figures for the country to consider in this connection. Suppose we say that there remain 50,000 bales more to be ginned in each of the larger cotton-growing States—including Missouri, a small cotton State—and allow Texas 200,000 bales; then, say, that the four small cotton States of New Mexico, Arizona, Florida, and California will gin 30,000 bales more, all told, we have a total of 730,000 bales to be ginned after December 1. Adding that amount to the amount ginned to date, we have 14,587,000 bales. Deduct that from the crop board's estimated yield of 15,603,000 bales day before yesterday, and we find that the board has overestimated the present cotton crop by more than a million bales.

There are not half a dozen Senators here from the cotton-growing States who believe that there remain to be ginned as many as 750,000 bales of cotton; but suppose we say that there are yet to be ginned 1,000,000 bales more. Add that amount to the ginnings to date and you will have a crop of 14,857,000 bales, 746,000 bales less than the Government's last estimate. This year's cotton opened earlier than any cotton crop has ever opened before in the history of cotton production in the United States, and in many of the States it has all been picked or gathered for a month or six weeks, and nearly all of it was ginned by December 1.

Mr. President, I was in the city of Washington in June of this year, and I found that the crop estimating board was considering the matter of instituting a new plan for obtaining statistics regarding cotton production in the United States. I read a statement in the paper at that time, and I want southern Senators to hear it read. This article appeared June 20 in the Richmond Times-Dispatch:

The Crop Reporting Board, it was learned to-day, is favorably considering a suggestion made by Austin H. Garside, Boston banker, to give a figure of estimated yield per acre rather than a condition figure in issuing the periodic cotton report. "I think this an excellent suggestion," W. F. Callander, chairman of the board, said.

I immediately called up the Secretary of Agriculture and was told that Mr. Jardine was out of the city. I then talked to Mr. Dunlap and told him how hazardous such a scheme would be; that nobody could fairly and accurately estimate the cotton yield per acre. I prepared a statement protesting against the proposed new plan, and Mr. Dunlap asked me to mail him a copy and I did so. I talked to him over the telephone and told him that if they instituted the new method they would overestimate the crop to the hurt and injury of the cotton producers. What I said would happen has happened. They have overestimated the crop.

The estimating board's reports have been so worded as to cause me and others to feel that they felt a very friendly interest in the big bear speculators of the country. You may read their reports from time to time on the condition of the crop and you will find that they read like bear propaganda.

Here is a copy of the protest which I made to the Department of Agriculture in June against the new plan—the Boston plan—of estimating the cotton crop.

Senator HEFLIN, of Alabama, expressed his opposition to-day to the position recently taken by W. F. Callander, chairman of the Crop Reporting Board, favoring the suggestion of a New England banker that hereafter instead of obtaining cotton reports on the condition of the growing crop, "the Government," as Senator HEFLIN puts it, "would enter a new and dangerous field where various opinions would be expressed and published as to the probable amount of cotton that would be produced on every acre of every farmer's farm throughout the Cotton Belt of the United States."

"I am opposed to the change suggested by Mr. Garside, the Boston banker, and I am greatly surprised at Mr. Callander's statement that he is favorable to the change suggested. The present plan of requiring reports from time to time on the condition of the growing crop of cotton is the better plan, although as recently conducted it has been widely criticized because in many States conditions did not justify the favorable reports published by the Government. But in spite of the fact that those reports when made frequently injuriously affect the cotton producer, that system is infinitely better than the suggested change which involves speculation and guesswork on a tremendous scale—guesswork as to the prospective yield per acre on all the cotton acreage of thirty-odd million acres planted in cotton in the United States. Such a system would create more doubt and uncertainty and lead to confusion worse confounded. The average man in the Cotton Belt when he looks at a field of growing cotton has a very good idea as to whether or not it is in a promising and flourishing condition. A cotton farmer frequently tells his neighbor that a certain field of cotton is not as good or that it is better than the cotton he had on the same field a year ago at the same time in the growing season. So it is not difficult to obtain fairly accurate reports as to whether or not a field of growing cotton looks good or bad, vigorous and strong, or weak and puny, but it is quite a different thing and a very difficult thing to obtain anything like intelligent and accurate information during the growing season as to the amount or number of pounds of lint cotton that each of thirty-odd million acres will produce.

If government reports are necessary at all in the growing season, we are willing to have the physical appearance of the cotton plant passed upon and reported to the Government and given to the public, but we object to the plan suggested of obtaining certain people's opinions and guesses from time to time in the growing season as to the number of pounds or number of bales of cotton that will be produced. In the first place such reports would not be anywhere in the neighborhood of correct, accurate, and reliable reports. Such a plan would involve speculation of the wildest kind and guesswork of a broad and dangerous character. In the second place, such a plan would carry a vast deal of misinformation to the public and would be distinctly unfair and injurious to the cotton farmers of the United States. There are a good many men in the Cotton Belt who possess valuable knowledge of various kinds regarding cotton, but there is not one of them whose opinion as to the amount of cotton that each acre will produce that I would be willing to have the Government accept and sent out as an official announcement of the amount of cotton that is being produced per acre. Such a plan would be pleasing and serviceable only to the cotton gambler. It ought not to be adopted, and I predict that if it is it will not live longer than the convening of Congress next December.

Senator HEFLIN is bringing the matter to the attention of the Secretary of Agriculture.

I hold here a letter from a very distinguished doctor in the State of Oklahoma, containing a statement signed by him and signed by a number of the farmers from the very heart of the cotton-producing section of that State. I want to read a portion of it. It is about a hailstorm that struck the very heart of the cotton belt of Oklahoma about the middle of October and here is what it says:

On October 14 there occurred in this State the most damaging hailstorm ever recorded in the State; it entered the State in the southwest corner from the counties of Harmon and Jackson and passing through the following counties—which form the great cotton belt of the State—Tillman, Cotton, Comanche, Stevens, Jefferson, Grady, McClain, Garvin, Carter, Murray, Johnson, Pontotoc, Pittsburg, Haskell, and Latimer. This storm was from 1 mile wide to 7 and 8 miles wide. The hail fell in many places, forming drifts 7 feet deep; automobiles could not pass these drifts; the limbs were stripped from the cotton stalk and every pound of cotton beaten into the ground; leaves were stripped from the trees until they looked as bare as in wintertime. Fields of cotton with 50 acres were left without 1 pound to be gathered. An honest and fair estimate of the destruction from this storm would be, that not less than 1,000,000 acres of planted land was touched by it, and not less than 200,000 bales of cotton were destroyed by it; yet scarcely was there any mention made of it; not even did our great daily newspapers mention its devastation, and we saw nothing from the Department of Agriculture regarding it; the prices continued to descend, and the farmer, after paying the highest wages for the growing of his crop since before the World War, was left to sell at prices from 5 to 7 cents less than a fair estimate of conditions would have given him. We complain that it is unfair that reports upon the crop be made at all, unless they carry the deteriorations and damages as well as the favorable comments.

This petition from the farmers of Oklahoma is calling our attention to a very important matter. It pleads for a fair deal for the cotton farmer.

Mr. President, I am going to have more to say upon this subject from time to time until relief is had. I am going to try, and I know that other Senators are going to try, to change this new and dangerous system of guessing at the size of the cotton crop. The board must be changed. We have a very strange situation, and I am sure that practically all of the Senators will agree with me about this. Mr. Callander, chairman of the Cotton Crop Estimating Board, is from the State of Iowa, from the grain belt of the United States. How ridiculous and unfair that is. It would be as unfair to have the chairman of a grain-estimating board from the State of Alabama, a cotton-growing State. It is unfair and indefensible. This man, in the first place, would in all probability not know a cotton bloom from a jimson-weed blossom and yet he sits at the head of a board of three men, with the power to fix the price of the South's cotton crop.

Nearly every time for three months that they have issued a cotton estimate they have broken the price of cotton. It has fallen from 24 cents to 19 cents. Under the new system they not only try to guess or estimate the amount of lint cotton that would be produced on each acre of land, but they even try to estimate the number of bolls on the stalk. Just think of that, if you please. It is as impossible to estimate the number of bolls of the stalk over forty-odd million acres in an area 1,400 miles long from east to west and 500 miles wide, as it would be to estimate the number of hairs on the dogs in the cotton belt or the number of straws in the haystacks of the South. [Laughter.]

Mr. President, it can not be done, and yet they instituted that ridiculous plan this year. I protested against it before they started it in July.

Mr. Callander and his board took the suggestion of a Boston banker rather than to heed the protest of a Senator from a cotton-growing State. Our people have paid dearly for their folly, Mr. President. Cotton was 24 cents a pound and is now 19 cents a pound. They broke the price of cotton $25 a bale, and that much loss on a million bales in Alabama is a loss of $25,000,000 to the farmers of my State. That much loss on a 13,000,000-bale crop is $325,000,000.

Senators, I submit to you that the power to do such a thing as that is too much power to put in the hands of any bureau or board sitting here in Washington. The temptation is ever there for crooked dealings. I submit now very frankly that I can not understand some of the cotton estimates that have been given out this year. They have carried the evidences of suspicion on their face. Whether there is anything wrong about them or not, we owe it to the cotton producers of the United States to fix it so that no board now or hereafter to be created can destroy the business of the cotton producers of our country.

They made one report about six weeks ago that appeared to me was a bait for the bulls in the market. They had been increasing the yield, and that time they took off nearly 200,000 bales. The bulls knew that the crop had greatly deteriorated, and they went into the trap and bought cotton. The next time the board ought to have taken off 500,000 bales, but instead of doing that they added 200,000 bales, caught the bulls in the valley, and turned the water in on them and drowned them. The bears cleaned up millions of dollars on that deal. The way the bears sold the market two or three days before that report came out would indicate that somebody on the board or who knew the situation had told them just what was going to happen; and I think they did. I believe that the gamblers on the New York Exchange and on the New Orleans Exchange know every time three days before the estimate is made just about what it is going to be. Here we are with the power to change that law and to change that method, and unless we do it before this Congress adjourns it will be a serious reflection upon the Senators here and Members of the other body from the South.

I had a man in the South to tell me that this board was not now serving any good purpose. He said it looked like they are an aid society to the bear speculators. He said, "If the Government wants to sell those positions of crop estimators I will give them a million dollars for a place on the Crop Estimating Board." He said, "I can make millions by it," and he could because, Mr. President, if a member of that board wanted to speculate in cotton he could sell 10,000 bales the day before he made the estimate public and the next day he could clean up $50,000. These reports have broken the price upon the average of $5 a bale and $5 a bale on 10,000 bales is $50,000. In the last five reports they could have done that, and each one of them could have had $250,000 to his credit. Are we to sit here any longer, Senators from the South, and permit that condition to exist? We must enact a law to fix it so they can not do that thing any more, if it is being done.

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President—

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Utah?

Mr. HEFLIN. I yield.

Mr. SMOOT. Do I understand the Senator from Alabama to take the position that we ought to repeal the law requiring the Department of Agriculture to gather these agricultural statistics?

Mr. HEFLIN. I have not exactly gone that far, but if we can not protect the cotton producers by proper safeguards in the law I would favor abolishing the present system.

Mr. SMOOT. I think if that is really what is wanted by the cotton growers it ought to be done, but I remember very well in the past that that was the reason given for the enactment of the law, so that the facts could be reported and the speculators and the bears and bulls of Wall Street could not put the information out as they wanted it at any particular time, whether it would be a large crop or whether it would be a small crop.

Mr. HEFLIN. That in a measure is true. We did think that while they were sending out their private reports and estimates it would be best to have the Government get the information and give out reports, so that we could safeguard the matter and look after it here at the Capitol. But I submit to the Senator that the present board has this year so well pleased the private bureaus and companies that they would not want anything better than the guesses and estimates that they have given out. I fear it has become a sort of aid society to the bear speculators of the country. And when I say "bear speculators" I mean those who use their money and their power in every way they can to beat down the price of cotton.

Mr. SMOOT. I want to say further to the Senator that the last time I returned to Utah for a few days I stopped in Chicago. I know one of the largest cotton growers in the South, and he told me that he was selling cotton there. I said, "What do you get for it?" He said that he had gotten 25 cents a pound. When I returned here—not the first time, but the last time—I called on that same gentleman again. I inquired, "What did you do with your 25,000 bales of cotton that you sold?" He said, "I made at least 5 cents a pound on the 25,000 bales." He is one of the largest producers of cotton in the South.

Mr. HEFLIN. Yes; but he makes more money speculating than he does producing the cotton itself. In the sale of cotton futures—selling short as he told the Senator he did—he made on that speculative deal $625,000.

Mr. SMOOT. That may be, but he did it, not because of any report made by the department, but because he knew conditions. He knew the amount of cotton that was grown, and it was upon that information that he based the trade.

Mr. HEFLIN. The Senator indirectly bears me out in my assertion that this board lets somebody know in advance of the issuance of its reports just what the situation is.

Mr. SMOOT. This gentleman knew from the fact that in the South this year he had, I think, 100,000 bales of cotton, while last year he had only about 65,000. That is the story as he told it to me.

Mr. HEFLIN. In the south this year we had a terrible drouth in Texas, Georgia, and in a portion of the State of Alabama, and in the State of North Carolina, and in South Carolina. I was there with the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. SMITH] and in August, this year, we toured sections of his State that would not make more than about a bale to 15 acres. And yet the Government report made it appear that they would make about four bales to 15 acres. Some of that cotton was not worth gathering. The storm destroyed a great deal of cotton in several States. The cotton was open and in fine shape when the storm came and the rain came and beat it out on the ground, and then beat it into the dirt and stained it and practically ruined a great deal of it. A great deal of it was not worth picking, and has not been picked. The price is so low for such cotton that it does not justify the farmer in picking it, and yet we can not get this board to tell about that condition and deduct such cotton as that from the amount estimated in its reports.

O Mr. President, we had a difficult time in the early fall trying to get the Secretary of Agriculture to give out the figures as to the amount of the abandoned cotton acreage. The department obtained the information and had it here six weeks, and we were wiring the Department of Agriculture from the Cotton Belt begging them to give this information out along with their estimates of the yield, but they would not give it out until the 18th of October.

There is something wrong, Mr. President, and I am going to ask for an investigation—

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President—

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Utah?

Mr. HEFLIN. I will yield in a moment. I am going to ask for an investigation of the crop estimating board and of the gin reporting board. I take with a grain of salt the figures of the gin reporting board. I have had some experience recently with that board.

Last year the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. SMITH] discovered and brought to my notice the fact that that board had added 470,000 bales to the amount of actual cotton carried over at the end of the year. There was no excuse for that under the sun. Sixteen southern Senators had the officers of that board before them. I was there. We asked them, "Did you add that number of bales?" "Yes, sir." "Why did you do it?" "We wanted the number to balance with what the spinners claimed to have had on hand." We said, "The Government figures did not authorize your adding any such number. Why did you not deduct it?" "Well, we just added it to make the amount balance." They confessed that to us. That board added 470,000 bales to the carry over, and we never would have known it if the Senator from South Carolina and one other man had not gone over the figures for 10 years back and found out that that cotton was not in existence. But for their interest and activity that amount of fictitious cotton would have been counted in the visible supply of actual cotton and counted in the carry over until doomsday, to the hurt and injury of the cotton producers of the United States.

If the gin-reporting board added nearly a half a million bales without consulting anybody from the South and kept it a secret until we discovered it, how do I know they are not now padding the gin reports? I am going to ask for an investigation of that board. If they can show that they have clean hands, well and good. Such an investigation will satisfy my suspicions as well as those of many others and give us an opportunity to go behind their reports and see what is going on in that bureau. Now, we have no such opportunity. Nobody has ever investigated the gin-reporting board, and we do not know but what they have padded their reports before. Heretofore we have accepted their statement and have said, "The gin-reporting board reports so much; well, that settles it." We had been accepting their figures as to the carry over, the amount of old cotton said to be on hand at the end of the spinning year.

The Senator from South Carolina [Mr. SMITH] came to me and said, "We have not got that much cotton in the carry over."

"I am going back over the reports for 10 years." He did so; he figured out how much cotton was ginned and exported during each year for 10 years and how much was consumed in the United States and how much was carried over in the United States; and brought the figures to me, and said that Hester, of New Orleans, was right in his contention, and we had 470,000 too much. If we had not discovered that the whole country would have accepted for all time the report made by the gin-reporting board here in Washington.

In other and better days the Crop Estimating Board met in a room by itself and made up its estimate as to the condition of the growing crop and the final prospective yield, while the gin-reporting board sat in another department and gave out its figures to the public separate and apart; but these two bureaus have been casting friendly glances at each other until they have grown very affectionate toward each other. Finally we find them, strange to say, sitting in the same room behind closed doors making up the cotton crop guess or estimate together.

Senators from the South, I submit frankly to you that these reports this year have robbed the South of more than $300,000,000, and something of a serious nature has got to be done. If they wanted to speculate, play the cotton market, and make certain the success of their venture these two boards, consulting each other, could say: "Shall we raise these figures or lower them?" Suppose some speculative interest had reached these men. They admit they added that 470,000 bales; and they did a corrupt thing, a crooked thing when they did that; they had no right on earth to do it. They injured the cotton farmers of the country, and they never would have told us about it if we had not discovered their wicked work. The Crop Estimating Board might say, for instance: "Shall we increase the estimate or lower it?" Well, if they wanted to—I am just supposing a situation—suppose the gin-reporting board were to say, "Increase it," and the Crop Reporting Board were to say, "Well, suppose we estimate a big crop and then the final gin reports show that the crop is away below our estimate; that will make our board ridiculous before the country, and it will be said that we greatly overestimated it." But suppose they agree, and the gin-reporting board says, "We shall track right along behind you; if you make it 15,000,000 bales we will make the gin report 15,000,000 bales." Suppose the gin report makes it 15,000,000? Well, they might say, "They will never know it, for whatever our reports show, it will be accepted."

Senators, this ginning board never has been inquired into, but we are going to investigate it this time, because I am going to ask for an investigation. I repeat, these boards now sit together to make these estimates. Here is an inviting field for crookedness and graft on a tremendous scale. What would the bear speculators of New York give to these boards to increase the estimate of the yield and make the prices of cotton fall $5, $6, or $10 a bale, as it has done this year. They could afford to give them $10,000,000 on each report. They have made already this year several hundred millions by reason of these reports. If they know a day in advance that the board here in Washington is going to increase the estimate of the yield, and how much, they go back and sell the market and flood the exchange with bear contracts, and the next day when the price goes down they know perfectly well about how much they are going to make on that day's deal. They have already figured it out.

I want the cotton-growing States represented on that board. I want a Crop Estimating Board, if we are going to have one at all, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. This is a very important matter, Senators. It means much to the South, and much to the West also, because that board also estimates the grain crop, and the grain growers ought to be represented on a grain board. The President ought to appoint its members, and Senators from the West and the South ought to have a chance to say who is going on that board. They have toyed with the grain crop in very much the same way. I will have something to say about that later.

Do Senators suppose that I would consent for Mr. Callander, from Iowa, to remain as chairman of the board to estimate the cotton crop, a product hundreds and hundreds of miles away from Iowa, worth from a billion and a half to two billion dollars? Frankness compels me to say that I would not give my consent. But here he is now at the head of this board, and we have to take his estimates and guesses about a farm product which involves the prosperity and happiness of thirty-odd millions of people. Senators, it is a serious situation, and this body must do something to give relief to the cotton growers. Such a situation can not, in all good conscience, be defended.

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, I merely wish to say to the Senator from Alabama that if the Senators from the cotton-growing States shall finally decide that they would like to have the crop report on cotton discontinued, I am quite sure they will find help upon this side to bring about a discontinuance, if they so desire. The subject is so vital to the prosperity of the States raising cotton that Senators from those States ought to take an interest in it, and if they shall finally decide that more harm than good comes from these crop reports, I am quite sure it will take but a very short time to have the provision for them repealed.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I will say to the Senator that I will vote to repeal any appropriation that authorizes the employment of men to go about in the Cotton Belt trying to estimate the number of bolls on the stalk and to speculate or guess on the number of pounds of lint cotton that will be produced on each acre on every farmer's farm in all the cotton-growing States. It is utterly ridiculous to undertake to do any such thing. I have in my possession—and I will exhibit them here some time during the session—several bolls of cotton, little bolls not larger than the end of my thumb, coming from drought-stricken sections of the South, and other bolls with two locks, the boll weevil having destroyed the other two locks, and I have other small bolls with three locks. Some bolls have four locks and some, not so very many, have five. No man on earth can estimate the cotton yield per acre by guessing at the number of cotton bolls on the stalk and the number of stalks per acre, as they have attempted to do that this year.

They started in July to estimate the number of bolls on the stalks and I tried to keep them from adopting this new Boston method of estimating the cotton crop, but strange to say the board went on and adopted it. Senators, is not that a little strange in view of the fact that a Southern Senator protested against it? Yes; they are undertaking to estimate the number of bolls on a stalk among billions and billions of stalks never seen by the agents, and the average production of an acre, on forty-odd million acres, in an area 1,400 miles long and 500 miles wide. How ridiculous that is. And the cotton farmer has had to pay for it all. If the present price obtains our people in the South have been robbed of over $300,000,000 on a crop of 13,000,000 bales, and it now appears from these reports that we will make something more than that. I would be willing, I wish to say to the Senator from Utah, for the Government to make a condition report. Let the Government continue the condition report. That is what we used to have—giving the condition of the growing crop. Anybody can look out on a cotton field and decide whether the physical condition of the stalk is good and whether the plants are flourishing and promising or whether they are puny and poor; anybody can do that, and that is what used to be done, but when it comes to estimating the number of bolls that a stalk will produce and the number of pounds of cotton lint that an acre will produce, scattered all through the Cotton Belt where hundreds of thousands of acres are never seen by the agents it is guess work, and it is a hazardous and dangerous thing for the cotton producers of our country.

The cotton crop reports that we have had this year have cost our people, as I have said, because of the manner in which those reports have been made and manipulated, over $300,000,000. Let me say again, that before this new method was instituted cotton was 24 cents a pound, and they beat the price down to 19 cents, a loss of $25 a bale.

Now let me read a statement from Mr. Brisbane. It is headed "Killing cotton," and reads as follows:

Government crop reports announcing gigantic production do more than give information to buyers.

Notify European and home buyers that if they will hold off and refuse to buy cotton the price will fall. And the grower is the victim.

The Government announces that so many million bales more than usual will be offered for sale. That is equivalent to saying "Don't be in any hurry to buy. You will get it cheaper later on."

The Government does not print such reports concerning the steel business, oil business, or other businesses. Why is it necessary to broadcast to the world, at public expense, reports which result in injury to American cotton growers?

Mr. President, that is all I care to say on this subject at this time.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I will take a few moments of the time of the Senate to discuss the cotton reports to which the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HEFLIN] has referred. Before beginning the discussion of the reports I want to say that I was appointed Director of the Census by President Wilson and took charge of the office in July, 1913, and held the position about two years. At that time the present Director of the Census was one of the employees in the bureau—chief statistician of manufactures. I have been thrown with him a great deal, and I have never met, in the Government service or out of it, a more efficient public servant than Mr. William Steuart.

I have made a number of suggestions in regard to these reports which I thought would benefit the cotton producers, and I have found Mr. Steuart more than anxious to meet my wishes in regard to anything that would help the cotton farmers. I never knew Mr. Callander, Chief of the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture, until I called on him at the Agricultural Department some years ago about these reports. I am sorry, as is the Senator from Alabama, that Mr. Callander does not live in the Cotton Belt, but I have been impressed with his honesty and efficiency, and his willingness to cooperate with me in preventing the cotton speculators from depressing the price of cotton.

Six weeks ago I went to the office of the Crop Estimating Board to present several suggestions which I believed would improve the law and prevent speculation in cotton. The officials are governed by the law, and some of the things for which they are blamed the law is responsible for. I believe that Mr. Callander is doing his very best to get the actual facts and give them to the public. It is not humanly possible several months before the cotton crop matures for any man or any set of men to estimate the exact number of bales that will be raised. Sometimes within a week the severe weather will make a change of a million bales in the cotton crop, and it is impossible to forecast what the total crop will be for the year.

We have two kinds of cotton-estimate reports in the United States. One is the Government report issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, and there are 80,000 reporters, more than 75,000 of whom are farmers. Other reports are prepared by 45 private reporting companies who have their own representatives all over the South—only a few hundred, many of them cotton speculators—who are interested in the price being manipulated and depress the price of cotton. We must take our choice between Government crop reports with 75,000 farmers reporting to the Agricultural Department as to the condition of the crop, men who make their living raising cotton make these reports, while the 45 private cotton reports have a comparatively few hundred agents making reports. The private reports can be manipulated to suit the cotton speculators, but the Government reports do not have the seal broken until the members of the board making estimates are locked in a room in the Agricultural Department Building and a United States marshal stands guard at the door until the board is ready to make their estimates public. No one else is allowed to go in the room or communicate with the board while they are working on their report.

For many years the cotton farmers complained to Members of Congress of the speculation in cotton and depressing the price because the reports were issued only once a month, and often a week or two of bad weather damaged the crop a million bales. The farmers asked for more frequent reports, and two years ago the law was changed, providing for semimonthly reports. What happened last year? The Government's estimate was less than the amount of cotton the farmers produced. That should have helped the cotton producers in the South, and it did help them, and on one of the Government's estimates about two years ago the cotton in the farmer's hands at that time went up $100,000,000; but you did not hear anybody say how much good the Government had done the farmers. Whenever the crop estimate is high and cotton goes down the cotton speculator tries to make the farmer dissatisfied with the Government reports. The speculator knows that if the Government reports are done away with that the farmers will be at the mercy of the private reports, which can be manipulated so as to enable the speculator to make money by gambling in futures and depressing the price of cotton in the farmers' hands, which cost him more to raise than he can sell it for. When the Government reports are low and cotton sometimes advances so as to sell for millions more the speculator never tells the farmers how much they have made by these reports.

Let us consider the situation this year. As I said, last year the estimate of the Agricultural Department was under what the crop actually amounted to at the end of the season, and that should have and did benefit the farmer. This year the estimates were considerably under what the trade expected they would be. Every private report this year, at the first of the season, estimated the cotton crop for the year at much higher than the Government report. So if these reports influence the market, the farmer was benefited by the higher price, at least $100,000,000, by the first few Government reports.

The speculators in August, September, and October and most of the private crop reports were estimating a much larger crop than the Government report and were predicting cotton would sell at less than 20 cents a pound, when it cost the farmer more than 25 cents a pound to raise it. It was the Government's estimate that kept the speculators from running down the price of cotton the beginning of the fall season.

It is an outrageous thing that cotton speculators can gamble on the cotton exchanges and depress the price of cotton so that a 15,000,000-bale crop sells for no more than a 10,000,000-bale crop, and I propose as long as I live, whether a Member of the Senate or outside, to do everything I can to prevent cotton speculators from depressing the price. The farmer uses more for fertilizers, pays more laborers picking, ginning, and so forth, for a large crop than a small one. The same is true of the wheat and corn crop, and Senators from the West and South should join hands and remedy this situation.

The difference between my friend from Alabama and myself is this: That I do not believe in tearing down a house because there are some rotten timbers or defective brick in it. I believe in taking out the rotten timbers and defective bricks, perfecting the structure, and building a strong, good house, while he would destroy it all. I do not believe in tearing down the law and the Government cotton reports and leaving the cotton farmers at the mercy of the private cotton reports which can be manipulated by the speculator. I believe in improving the reports, and I believe that the Senator from Alabama will agree with all the suggestions I have made to improve the Government reports and prevent the speculator from using private reports to manipulate the market. Six weeks ago I went before the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture and made certain suggestions to them which I thought would prevent the speculation in cotton caused by these reports, and I found the officials anxious to make any changes which they could which would help the situation so as to prevent speculation, and I shall mention a few of the changes which I suggested, and to which they agreed could be worked out by the Agricultural Department Crop Reporting Board.

Gambling thrives on uncertainty. You can not get anyone to gamble on a certainty, and as long as the cotton reports are two weeks apart the cotton speculators get their private information and speculate, because they have more information than the farmer has, and they take advantage of this to get the farmers' cotton at less than it is worth and less than it cost to make. I think that if we bring the information up to date, give it daily to the public so the cotton farmers will get all information that the speculator or anyone else has that it will help stabilize the price. Every day when the Census Bureau gets reports of the cotton ginned in all counties in the cotton-producing States they should make it public. This would greatly improve the situation. The Census Bureau gets reports of the actual amount of cotton ginned the 1st day of December. That is the date the Agricultural Department makes public its estimates of the amount of cotton yet to be ginned. Why keep the information which they get the 1st, the 2d, the 3d, or the 4th until the 8th or the 10th of the month? Why not make it public daily so that the farmer may know all the facts? It is the farmer who suffers, and the speculator is benefited by this delay and uncertainty. The farmer is more interested than all the others. He has already worked hard and spent more to raise the cotton crop which usually sells for less than it costs to make it. It makes little difference to the cotton buyers whether cotton sells for a high or low price, but most cotton buyers I have known nearly always try to depress the price of cotton. He buys as cheap as he can and sells for as much as possible and makes his profit. The manufacturer buys at prevailing prices, and in selling goods adds the cost he must pay for cotton to his selling charge for cloth. The farmer can not protect himself like the cotton buyer and manufacturer. Delay in publishing the Government reports makes the uncertainty all the greater, and the farmer loses while the speculator uses the delay to gamble on cotton futures.

Under the bill which I introduced on Tuesday, and which the crop reporting board has approved as workable, these reports would be brought up to date, which would relieve the uncertainty and prevent gambling in cotton futures. The Director of the Census gets reports by telegraph from about a third of the counties in the cotton-producing States on the first day of the month, on the second day about a third, and on the next day most of the balance. Under the law he can not give that information to the public and cotton raisers until the 8th. Under the amendments to the law which I propose the Director of the Census would be required to make public on the first and every day of the month every telegram he gets as to the amount of cotton ginned and a statement of the amount ginned in the same counties the same time last year. I have never heard of anybody questioning the ginners' figures. I do not believe any mistakes have been made that are important, and I feel sure that these were unintentional.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas in the chair). Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from Alabama?

Mr. HARRIS. I did not interrupt the Senator during his remarks, and if he will wait until I get through I will be glad to get any suggestion or criticism he may have to make; but I would like to proceed until I have finished my remarks.

If the farmers and the public can have the information as it reaches the Director of the Census, no speculator can take advantage of the cotton raisers.

Now, regarding the reports received by the Crop Reporting Board of the Agricultural Department, the States of Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina have a man in each State in charge of making reports for these States. He mails his first report to the Department of Agriculture on the first of the month, but the delay in that report until the 8th causes uncertainty, which gives the speculator several days in which to gamble in cotton futures. Under my proposed amendment the first reports that get here through the mail from the nearest States would be made public the next day after they come in. One day is sufficient for the board to do the work. The next day the reports from Georgia, Alabama, and Florida would come through the mail about the same time, and those reports could be made public. The next day the reports from Tennessee, Mississippi, and Louisiana would arrive, and those reports could be made public. Then the reports from Arkansas and Oklahoma, which are large States, would reach Washington, and those could be made public the next day, and on the next day, the 8th, Texas, the largest cotton-producing State, and all the State reports could be made public at the same time of the semimonthly statements of all the States, and the reports from Texas would be included in that statement. Then after that is completed the process would start anew.

In the meantime the Census Bureau official reports showing exactly the amount ginned as of certain date will be made public every day. If you dam up a creek or a river for two weeks, you will have a flood, and the same applies to delaying these reports; it brings about a flood of speculation, and the farmer suffers every time. The information is not only old when given out but it gives the speculator opportunity to impose upon the cotton producer.

I made another suggestion along this line that I believe would help prevent speculation on the cotton exchanges. Every day the New York Cotton Exchange gives out a statement of the day's transactions, except as to the number of bales sold for future delivery, most of them never delivered. Twenty years ago they gave daily a statement of the number of bales sold for future delivery. Under my amendment all the cotton exchanges will be required to make public daily a statement of the number of bales of cotton they sell for future delivery. That will show the cotton farmers and those engaged in the cotton trade that they sell 10 bales of cotton on the exchanges where they raise 1 on the farms in the South. I believe this information will help. The country does not know that when 10,000,000 bales are raised about a hundred million are sold for future delivery on the cotton exchanges. I believe this is ruinous to the farmers.

There is another thing the exchanges do which hurts the situation. Two weeks ago, when the Government report was published, the report gave the ginners' figures and the estimates of the crop reporting board, and in a few minutes cotton went down $8 a bale. The exchanges are closed only 15 minutes after the reports are given out by the Government, and the cotton dealer does not have time to study all the report until the exchanges open. Under my amendment the exchanges would be required to close at least 30 minutes. The other day when the Census Bureau published the ginning figures and the Agricultural Department published their estimate of the total crop the cotton gamblers started to speculate. They did not have time to read the statement of the Agricultural Department, which said there was less good cotton this year, although a larger crop than there was last year. Cotton should have gone up on that report instead of going down $8 a bale. If the exchanges had closed 30 minutes and time allowed the full statement to be read instead of the figures only, the speculators would have noticed that statement and cotton would not have been depressed by the speculators; it should and would have advanced on that report. The next day cotton went up $8 a bale, back to where it was, and went even higher than it was when the Agricultural Department report was made public.

I suggest another change—and I am sure this will meet with the approval of all Senators.

The Agricultural Department, as I have said, has a man in each State in charge of these reports who makes up his estimates and sends them on to Washington the day the law requires the reports be made, and the Crop Reporting Board passes on them. The Senator from Alabama has probably forgotten that under the last law passed on this subject, when the semimonthly cotton reports law was enacted it required three out of five of the Crop Reporting Board must be cotton men who are experienced in cotton statistics and must have lived in the Cotton Belt. Of course, I would like to see all the members of that board from the cotton-growing States. Now, some members of the board serve on cotton, wheat, corn, and other crop boards.

Under the amendment I ask for, the man in charge of the Government crop report in Arkansas would mail his report on the 1st day of December, say, to Washington, and would then get on the train and come here and sit with the Crop Reporting Board here when the reports of the estimates from the State of Arkansas were being considered. That man has more inside information than anyone else. He can not possibly put in a letter all the facts he can give if he is sitting here with the board.

Again, under the amendments to the present law I suggest that when the reports from the State of Arkansas, or any other State, are being considered, and an estimate is being made by the board as to the crop in that State, the commissioner of agriculture from Arkansas, or whatever the State is, shall be here and be present with the board, or have his representative present.

Those are a few of the things which I think will improve the law, and which I think will prevent speculation in cotton very largely. One of the friends of the exchanges said that this would do away with the selling of cotton futures on the exchanges, and that he was opposed to my amendment because of that. If these changes in the present law would do away with speculation and the exchanges, I would be very happy. I expect to support the measure offered by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. CARAWAY], which will prevent gambling in cotton futures or any other commodities raised by the farmer.

Now I will be glad to hear from the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I just want to say to my good friend from Georgia [Mr. HARRIS] that these private reports are nearly always made by bear speculators. Frequently their figures are larger than those in the Government reports. A few times this year, however, some of them have been under the Government figures. I remember a report made by the Crop Estimating Board about five or six weeks ago, and the size of the estimate astounded even the bear speculators. The bears are always organized. There are certain spinning interests here and abroad which back them and furnish them money to hammer the market. The bull goes in and buys on his own judgment, and when the bear hammers the life out of the market the bull gets cold feet and quits, and the price last offered on the exchange that day when the exchange closes is the price for which the farmer sells cotton early the next day.

I want to safeguard the cotton producers' interests as much as possible. I was the author of the bill that passed the House and the Senate while I was a Member of the House and while the Senator from Georgia was the Director of the Census, when we provided for a separation of linters from the cotton in the Government's reports.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. HEFLIN. I will yield in just a moment. Prior to that time the Government's report simply said so many bales, including linters. We did not know how many linters there were and thought of the lump sum as that of cotton. The linters amounted to 1,000,000 or 1,500,000 bales and sometimes more than that, so I got a bill through Congress, and the Senator from Georgia, who was then Director of the Census, put it into operation, and we separated the linters from the cotton.

I yield now to the Senator from Georgia.

Mr. HARRIS. I think the Senator, if he will refresh his memory by going to the record, will find that he was not the author of that bill. The Senator did come to the Census Bureau while I was Director of the Census and make the suggestion. I saw the wisdom of it, and without any law I separated linters from cotton in all census reports, and this has been continued under the present and other directors. I also required the bureau to make public in all of the cotton-growing States by publishing in all of the newspapers, daily and weekly, the amount ginned in each county, and that is being done now. I also conferred with the Postmaster General (Mr. Burleson), and at my request he issued an order directing all postmasters in the cotton-growing States to post all Government census reports showing amount of cotton and linters ginned, amount of bales on hand in warehouses and other places, so that the cotton farmers could go to the post office at any time and see these reports and have all information as to production and demand for cotton. I did not think the cotton speculator should be able to get any information that was not available to the cotton producers. These Government reports are made to aid the cotton growers.

Mr. HEFLIN. I may have that measure confused with another one concerning linters. I introduced the bill and the Senator from Georgia felt as I did about the matter and as Director of the Census put the proposition into effect.

I was reared on a farm. My father was a country doctor and a farmer. In my youth I used to hear him talk about how the cotton producers sold cotton at prices below the cost of production, and I determined as a boy that if ever I got in a position where I could be of benefit to the cotton producers I would try to be of service to them.

I commenced the study of the subject of cotton when I came to Congress 21 years ago. I led the fight to cut down the number of grades of cotton used on the New York Cotton Exchange from 28 to 9. We succeeded in doing that. Now we have 10 grades that represent the entire crop and every phase of all the grades of cotton.

I was the author of the suggestion of establishing spot markets to get at the commercial difference between the grades and all that sort of thing. I also suggested the provision in the cotton futures act which provided for an appeal from a decision of the exchange when buyer and seller could not agree as to grades of cotton named in the contract, and providing that the cotton should be sent down to the Department of Agriculture and the experts in the department should determine what grade it was without knowing the parties to the contract. So I have had a little to do with this subject myself. I suggested the printing of all these reports on one postcard, and that has been done.

I want to cooperate with my good friend from Georgia in every way I can, but I am going to fight in the Senate until the session ends to prevent them from estimating the number of bolls on the stalk and the lint per acre. I ask the Senator if he is with me on that proposition to prevent them from guessing at the number of bolls on the stalk and the amount of lint per acre?

Mr. HARRIS. If the Department of Agriculture were doing anything so unwise as to attempt something that is not humanly possible to be done, of course, I would oppose it. In my proposed amendment I would require that they give the condition report, and on the 1st day of September that they shall publish the number of abandoned acres. In the law enacted two years ago, of which I was the author, we stopped the publication of "intentions to plant," which the Department of Agriculture had been giving out at that time.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield to me?

Mr. HEFLIN. I yield to the Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. McKELLAR. I want to ask the Senator from Georgia a question. I have in my hand the bill S. 956, which he introduced on Tuesday. Did I understand him to say the department had approved the bill?

Mr. HARRIS. The department said they approved everything that I had suggested that I thought would be helpful in stopping speculation in cotton under the present law.

Mr. McKELLAR. And the Senator incorporated it in his bill, as I understood? I am just asking for information.

Mr. HARRIS. I wrote out certain amendments to the present law that I thought would prevent speculation in cotton and took this with me to the Agriculture Department. They had nothing to do with that. I wanted to find out from the Crop Estimating Board whether my plan was workable and about what the additional expense would be. Every suggestion I made that would help prevent speculation in cotton met with the hearty approval of the Department of Agriculture's Crop Estimating Board.

Mr. HEFLIN. I always try to be very frank in matters I discuss here, and I think we all ought to be. If this board has approved the bill it will call for still closer scrutiny from me. If its members have passed on this proposition and approved it, I must look into it very thoroughly before I go further with it. I know my good friend, the Senator from Georgia, has the interests of the producers at heart.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President—

Mr. HEFLIN. I yield.

Mr. HARRIS. I would like to have the Senator from Alabama criticize the amendments that I have offered, and if he thinks my suggestions will not help prevent manipulation of the cotton market to state why he is against any one of them. I believe that after making a study of my suggestions that he will approve them all. I am trying to remedy the things he complains of.

Mr. HEFLIN. I am going to do that. I am going to study the Senator's bill, and especially since he has told me that the Crop Estimating Board has approved it.

Mr. HARRIS. I stated to the Senator from Tennessee that they approved every suggestion that I made that I thought would be helpful to prevent speculation in cotton.

Mr. HEFLIN. I know that. I know where my friend's heart is, but when the Director of the Census approved of the adding of 470,000 bales to the cotton supply of the United States and admitted afterwards that the cotton was not in existence and never had been, and he never told it until we found it out, I think the Senator had better be very careful about accepting suggestions even from him.

Mr. HARRIS. During a part of the Wilson administration I occupied the position of Director of the Census, which is now held by Mr. William Steuart. Mr. Steuart was one of the chief statisticians under me. I found him to be honest and the ablest man in the bureau. I know how easy it is to stand in the Senate or the House and criticize public officials. The last thing I ever expect to do in the United States Senate is to criticize and reflect on a man unless I know absolutely that what I am saying is true. I would rather give him the benefit of the doubt. As long as I am in the Senate and Mr. Steuart continues the work he is doing, I am not going to criticize him unjustly, even though I favor amending the Census Bureau laws relative to gathering cotton statistics. I want to say that he has under him as the head of the agricultural division of the Bureau of the Census a boy from Mississippi, raised on the farm, who paid his way through college by farming, and who is now at the head of the agricultural division of the Census Bureau, William Lane Austin, who was brought here by former Senator John Sharp Williams 30 years ago. Mr. Steuart also has under him another farmer boy from North Carolina, who is chief statistician of manufacturers, Eugene Hartley. Another most important position is held by Starke Grogan, of Georgia, who is at the head of statistics of cities, States, and counties, and lived on a farm. Two years ago Mr. Steuart, without any law directing him, asked several southern Senators to name farmers or some one connected with their State agricultural departments to come here and act as a board to supervise these cotton statistics.

Mr. HEFLIN. I do not propose to reflect upon any public official either, unless his conduct merits it, and I am responsible for any criticism I make of him. I judge these officials by their conduct—by specific acts. As the Bible says, "By their fruits ye shall know them." We caught this man adding 470,000 bales to the cotton carry-over or cotton supply of the United States, and whether the Senator from Georgia agrees with me or not I condemn it, and I say that that work on his part and on the part of that board was a crooked piece of work. They intended at the time they put it over to make the cotton supply appear big, and it broke the price of cotton $6 a bale when they made that report, and they knew that that report was not true. I have no apology to make for my criticism of that piece of infamous work. We never discovered it until three or four weeks after the devilment had been done.

I hope the Senator does not place himself in the attitude of defending people guilty of such a crime. If he does, he has a big job on his hands during this session, because I am going to speak plainly about them and others, and I am going to try to help clean out these bureaus, and I will give my reasons for it before this fight is over. I have served twenty-odd years in these two bodies and during that time I have made many suggestions regarding legislation that were put into the law enacted, but I did not get the credit for them, but I do not care about that if I can get them enacted into law. That is what I am after, the good that they may do the people I am trying to serve.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield?

Mr. HEFLIN. I will yield to the Senator in just a moment. The Senator wired me in Alabama and told me that he was going up to meet with this board, and that he wanted me to wire him what changes I thought ought to be made. I am against that board. I am against the unjustified estimates made by that board. It has overestimated the cotton crop nearly a million bales.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Georgia?

Mr. HEFLIN. Yes; I yield for a question, but I do not want to yield for a speech.

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator does not want to do me an injustice?

Mr. HEFLIN. I certainly do not.

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator knows that last year when the census report of which he is complaining was called to our attention, I worked with him day and night to make the changes. I believe in amending the law so that such mistakes can not be made.

Mr. HEFLIN. Surely; and I was surprised that the Senator did not mention that when he was eulogizing Mr. Steuart.

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator from Georgia is going to do Mr. Steuart no injustice, and the Senator from Georgia will defend him whenever he is attacked. After my association with him while I was Director of the Census, where I found him capable and honest at all times, I feel it my duty to defend him when attacked by some one who did not know him so well.

Mr. HEFLIN. The Senator is at liberty to defend him, because he needs defending.

Mr. HARRIS. I am going to defend him whenever his integrity is reflected on.

Mr. HEFLIN. When he added that 470,000 bales the cotton producers of the South had nobody there to represent them. They sat behind closed doors, and they figured against them 470,000 bales. When they published that report as the truth they knew that those 470,000 bales were never in existence, and thus helped to break the price of cotton $6 a bale, and they never said anything about it. We complained, and the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. SMITH], who knows more about cotton than anybody in this body or in the Congress and who has done more than any one individual for the cotton industry I think than any man in the Congress in my day, was the man who called it to my attention. We undertook to get it in concrete form, and we called a meeting of the Senators from the South, and the Senator from Georgia [Mr. HARRIS] was there. We made this man Steuart admit that they added 470,000 bales. My, my, what more do we want when they come up and confess that they took it out of the air and added it to the visible supply and broke the price of cotton on the farmers of Georgia and Alabama and the other cotton-growing States?

Then we finally called them to judgment and asked them, "Did you do that?" They said, "Yes." "Why did you do it?" "In order to make it balance with what the spinners had claimed to have on hand." Think of that, Senators. I undertook to point out how the spinners could be mistaken and how the reports could be duplicated. I said that in the Senator's State at Columbus, Ga., there are cotton mills, and in my State across the line in Lee County, at Opelika, there is a good spot-cotton market. They have 10,000 bales in the warehouse, we will say. The spinner over in Georgia buys that 10,000 bales. He enters it on his books as cotton stocks. The gin reporter in that county in Georgia asks him "How much cotton have you?" He gives him the number of bales listed in his stocks. The gin reporter in my State in Lee County goes to the warehouseman at Opelika and inquires, "How much cotton have you in the warehouse?" "Ten thousand bales." There is immediately a duplication; 20,000 bales are reported to the Government when only 10,000 bales are in existence.

I said the spinners may have been mistaken and that report may have come about in that way. But these gentlemen added it to make it balance, because the spinners had claimed to have had the 470,000 bales. And the Senator now eulogizes the Director of the Census, who helped to perpetrate that fraud against the cotton producers of the United States. I do not stand here and whitewash them and I intend to see that it is not done in this body. I am against Mr. Steuart, and have been ever since that day when we caught him in that act, and he could not explain why they did not deduct that amount, because the Government figures did not justify the adding of it. Why did he not say, "That cotton is not in existence" and give the farmer the benefit of it and take it off of what the spinners claimed to have and let the figures speak the truth and disclose the facts? But he added this fictitious stuff to what they had, increased the visible supply; and what did that do? Added to the ginners' report, it broke the price of cotton $6 a bale, and we never would have found it out until judgment day if the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. SMITH] and others had not discovered and disclosed it.

I do not propose that either Mr. Steuart or Mr. Callander shall be whitewashed. I wish to have both boards investigated. I want to interrogate both of those gentlemen on the witness stand. I want to get at the truth, Senators, whether I get any credit for it or not. I do not care whether the bill is called my bill or not, but I am going to have something to do with the provisions which go into that bill. The bill is going to have teeth in it when we get through with it, and they are not going to be false teeth, either.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Georgia?

Mr. HEFLIN. I yield to the Senator from Georgia.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, there is merely one thing which I wish to say in reply to the Senator from Alabama. The Senator referred to a telegram which I sent him when I was preparing the bill which I introduced here to stop speculating in cotton futures. I telegraphed the Senator from Alabama because of his interest in the cotton farmer. I also telegraphed the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. SMITH] and asked for his views. I wanted suggestions from men who are friends of the cotton producers, and I sent telegrams to those men. I telegraphed the Secretary of Agriculture in every State in the South and asked their views. I telegraphed the editor of the Progressive Farmer, the leading agricultural journal in the South, which has a larger circulation than has any other. I telegraphed others whom I know and the Senator from Alabama knows are friends of the cotton producers and are interested in something constructive. The easiest thing in the world is to get up here and denounce something; but the hardest thing to do in Congress is something constructive that will help the people—

Mr. HEFLIN. That is very true, Mr. President.

Mr. HARRIS. I am trying to do something constructive that will help the cotton producers and prevent speculating in cotton.

Mr. HEFLIN. But even a constructive bill can be prepared that will enable them to carry on their questionable work. If this board has indorsed a plan, I fear that the power to continue this strange business is to be exercised in another form, and the Senator from Georgia must concede to some of us who have not conferred with the board some ideas and some rights about the measure that is going to be passed here. His measure will have ample opportunity to be threshed out and to be amended. He has embodied some good suggestions in his bill, but I resent the Senator's insinuation about merely criticizing certain officials and offering no constructive work. I have constructive plans, and one of them is that a board shall be created, to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. I ask the Senator from Georgia if he indorses that proposition?

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator from Alabama knows that I indorse that proposal. The Senator from Georgia telegraphed the Senator from Alabama in order that he might obtain some constructive suggestions, but the Senator from Georgia did not get one such suggestion from the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. HEFLIN. No; I did not intend to send any suggestions for that board to consider, to tell the Senator the truth. I did not want that board to know what I had in mind, because I am doubtful and suspicious of the board. We had just as well talk plainly about this matter.

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator from Georgia went over to the board with his suggestion that would stop cotton speculation. There was no reason for me to go there to denounce the board or to denounce other people. I have never seen anybody get very far merely by denouncing people.

Mr. HEFLIN. That is like going to a burglar who has burglarized your house and asking him to tell you what sort of lock he would suggest in order to keep him out in the future. He would tell you what kind of lock to use, and then he would laugh in his sleeve.

Mr. HARRIS. I wish to say to the Senator from Alabama, who declined to make a constructive suggestion to stop speculating in cotton, that I told him I wanted to go over to the Agricultural Department, which has in charge the enforcement of the law, for we have to have their approval or else we shall have difficulty in getting the legislation through Congress, because when we come before the Appropriations Committee and say that a measure which we suggest will cost an additional $100,000, Congress is not going to appropriate that much extra money unless the Department of Agriculture recommends it strongly. That is why I conferred with the Crop Reporting Board of the Agricultural Department. This board decides whether they think changes in the law are workable and the extra expense necessary.

I hope Congress will do something to help the cotton farmers, and I shall be glad to have any constructive suggestion from the Senator from Alabama that will prevent speculating in cotton. I wish further to say that when my bill shall be presented the Senator from Alabama will, I think, vote for every one of its provisions; as a friend of the farmer he does not dare to vote against any one of them, because they are in the interest of the cotton farmer.

Mr. HEFLIN. If they shall be in the interest of the cotton producer the Senator from Georgia knows me well enough to know that I shall vote for them.

Mr. HARRIS. They are in his interest and in the interest of no one else, and I feel sure the Senator from Alabama will be found helping the farmers in this as well as other matters.

Mr. HEFLIN. The Senator from Georgia, however, has suggested that we have got to cooperate with the department and have got to have their approval, otherwise we can not get anywhere. I do not like that sort of proposition. I want to fight for what I think ought to be in legislation, and if the present Congress will not enact it, wait for a Congress that will. I believe, however, that there are enough western Senators here who realize the pitiful condition of the cotton producers of the South and how mercilessly they are dealt with, how they are robbed under the existing system, by the gentlemen whom the Senator from Georgia now eulogizes, so that we will have sufficient votes to pass a bill that will put an end to this abuse.

Senators, something is wrong about this business; something is wrong with both these boards. We caught the gin reporting board wrongfully and crookedly adding 470,000 bales of cotton to the carry-over. I put it thus plainly because there is no other proper way to put it. We caught the crop estimate board 20 years ago selling out and accepting $40,000 from speculators in New York and adding 200,000 bales to their estimate. Both these boards have been caught in crooked conduct, and why not talk about it? Why stand here and palaver around beating about the bush with compliments for these gentlemen?

This is no butterfly parade; it is no time for wafting perfume and presenting flowers to these gentlemen.

Oh, Mr. President, I am thinking about those men and women and children in Georgia, in Alabama, and in South Carolina, and other States, who, with bowed backs in the sun, have gone up and down those drought-stricken sections gathering the little cotton found in the chinkapin bolls that were open to get what cotton they could and sell it at a measly price, who are being hammered to death by the speculators on the Cotton Exchange aided by the Crop Estimating Board, supported and buoyed up by the gin reporting board, both sitting together and making up hurtful estimates on the cotton crop. I am going to fight for a law that will protect the interest of the cotton producer. I may not be able to please my good friend from Georgia, but I owe a duty to my constituents; I owe a duty to the whole cotton-producing section. I have had letters from his State; I have had letters from every State in the Cotton Belt urging me to carry on my fight and I am going to carry it on and I am going to submit my plans to the conference which we started this morning in the office of the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. SMITH], who is going to call another conference to-morrow and further conferences if it may be necessary. We are going to try to get together, and I wish we could have completed those conferences before my friend from Georgia pronounced his eulogies on Mr. Steuart and Mr. Callander.

I want to give them an opportunity before me and a committee to explain the details and just how and why they have done certain things. I want to get at the bottom of these things. I am not courting favor with any board of the Government or anybody else in the Government. I merely want to do what is right, and right will prevail in the end. I do not have to go up there and ask, "Will you take this? Is this agreeable to you?" I want to enact a law that has teeth in it and that will safeguard the interests of the people in the South, who are robbed annually of from three hundred million to four hundred million dollars—and this board has helped to do it.

Mr. President, these discussions will bring out much information and we will know exactly where we stand. I hope to see something of a constructive nature, as the Senator from Georgia suggests, pass this body; but no measure is going to pass with my approval unless it is the real article. No make-shift, no whitewashing arrangement, no measure that merely appeals to the board is going to get my approval if it sincerely appeals to the board, because I have strange views about that board, and I have formed those views because of the conduct of that board. When for weeks and weeks I tried to get the Agricultural Department to publish the number of cotton acres that had been abandoned, turned out, with no prospect of a yield to come from that source, I could not get them to do it until the 18th of October, in the heart of the cotton-selling season. When they reported the yield is going to be so much we tried to get them to give out a statement as to how many acres had been abandoned, but they would not do it. I sent a telegram to the Secretary of Agriculture begging him to print it on the 5th of October before the yield was announced on the 8th of October, but he would not do it. Does the Senator from Georgia blame me for offering a criticism on that account? I can not help it. I am exceedingly fond of my good friend from Georgia, but if he remains here during this session he is going to see and hear regarding this matter of several surgical operations in this Chamber.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, we all know that surgical operations sometimes bring about death when the patient would live if let alone. So some of the suggestions made, I think, would have a like result.

The Senator from Alabama refers to receiving letters from Georgia criticizing the present crop reports. I have criticized the present report, but the ginning figures show that these reports are more nearly correct than before. I believe in improving those reports instead of destroying them, and I do not believe there is a cotton farmer or friend of the cotton farmers who will study my bill to correct these reports and fail to approve them.

I wish to say that I placed in the Record on Tuesday the indorsement of the reports of the Agricultural Department from the Alabama Farm Bureau and the Alabama Cotton Cooperative Associations—which are the largest cotton producers' organizations in Alabama, the other Southern States of Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma—and I read in the newspaper this morning that in Georgia on last Monday the Cotton Cooperative Association indorsed the reports of the Agricultural Department Crop Reporting Board. Cotton associations in North Carolina have also indorsed them, as have producers' organizations in other States. While I believe in changing the law to improve these reports, so far as I know not a single cotton producers' organization has condemned the reports of the Agricultural Department. The former president of the New York Cotton Exchange, as well as officers of the New Orleans and New York Cotton Exchanges, have opposed the Government's semi-monthly reports. I believe these reports have accomplished a great deal toward preventing the gamblers from speculating in cotton, and I favor more publicity and strengthening the law so as to protect the farmers from the cotton speculators. There are 70,000 cotton farmers reporting to the Agricultural Department. If we abandon these semi-monthly reports, the speculators will use private reports, which can be manipulated. The Senator from Alabama and I both oppose abandoning the Government reports. We both wish to improve them, though we may differ slightly as to details of how it should be done. We are both standing with the cotton farmers and are both against the cotton exchanges.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, the Senator has mentioned my name again. I have dared to take the stand that I have in the face of the fact that the executive committee of the farm bureau of my State have indorsed these reports, and I condemned their strange action by a statement in the daily press of Alabama. I had a letter from one of the members of the farm bureau executive committee of my State in which he stated that I was right about it and that he was not present when they took such action. Now, then, if we are going to be afraid to take a stand because a few agents of the Government are liable to lose their positions, we ought to get out of here. I am not afraid, Mr. President; I ought not to be; I would not be worthy to be in this body if I were to let the present practice continue because a course that I might pursue might remove certain officials from office and make them sever their connection with the Treasury Department. If I were to let such a consideration decide my course on such questions, I would have no business here. I say again I am trying to help those who struggle year in and year out to produce the cotton supply of the United States, as well as two-thirds of the cotton supply of the world. I am asking for them a fair and square deal; that is all; and I am fighting for them when I know my course is right, against the ill-advised position of any bureau or board; it makes no difference from where it comes.

POST-OFFICE FACILITIES IN FLORIDA

Mr. TRAMMELL. Mr. President, I will occupy only a few minutes of the time of the Senate. Day before yesterday I introduced a number of bills providing for public buildings in a considerable number of Florida towns and cities. I introduced those bills in order that the necessity and needs of the State of Florida for increased post-office facilities might be met as early as possible, for, in fact, there is an emergency condition existing there.

Only one who has observed conditions in my State can fully appreciate the congestion existing in our post offices. At a large number of post offices the patrons stand in lines which often reach into the street waiting to get their mail or to purchase stamps or money orders. At many places a person has to wait from one to three hours, or even a half day, before he can be served at the post office.

I may add that during the past fall the First Assistant Postmaster General and the superintendent of mails visited Florida. They experienced quite an awakening; became quite sympathetic toward the needs and demands of Florida, and, so far as providing increased working forces, they have furnished considerable assistance in that direction. But, of course, the greatest need is for adequate public buildings, and I hope that the present Congress will take steps to see that more adequate facilities are provided.

This is an actual emergency in my State. Appropriations should be made very promptly for new buildings, and for the purpose of providing the necessary increase in the post-office facilities and the postal working forces.

Florida is enjoying a phenomenal growth; but this development is not a sudden affair, but merely the onward march of the past intensified. If we may recur throughout the last 20 years the State has been on a rapid climb. When the Great War came on, it may be recalled that Florida was then growing more rapidly than any other State in the Union. As was true throughout the country, there was a temporary period of depression in my State during the war and for a short time following. Florida, however, was the first State to get on its feet after the war. Remarkable building and development has been in progress for the past five years. Many little villages have grown into attractive and modern towns. Many of the towns of but a few years ago have become up-to-date, hustling, and creditable cities.

Our cities of less than half a decade ago have many of them doubled in population. There have been remarkable extension and expansion of our horticultural and agricultural industries. Public improvements have been going forward with a rapidity heretofore unequalled by probably any State in the Union. In hamlet and city are to be found the most modern and high-class school buildings. Our colleges are unsurpassed. A wonderful system of hard-surfaced highways has been provided, and an unusual extension of this system is now in progress. There is a marked increase in all industrial activities. The wealth of the State is increasing by leaps and bounds. Within a year the bank deposits have increased approximately 300 per cent. Visitors and settlers are going to the State by the hundreds of thousands. I read only this morning that during the month of November 14,000 cars carrying tourists, representing in numbers of persons over 57,000, crossed over one of the bridges on one of the principal highways leading into my State. This but partially tells the story of tide of immigration to the land of sunshine and opportunities, as this is but one of the main highways; and, too, the trains are all crowded. The permanent population of Florida is to-day, no doubt, four hundred to five hundred thousand more than it was a year ago, and her million and a half people are all happy and prosperous.

As some evidence of the progress being made in Florida, and of facts that portray its stability and permanency, I may mention the following:

In 15 of the cities and towns the building permits for the first nine months of this year amounted to $144,000,000. At the same rate for the entire year of 1925, the building program in these 15 towns and cities will amount to $191,000,000. At a very conservative estimate for other towns and cities throughout the State which are not reported in the building statistics of $60,000,000, the building program for the year will be $251,000,000.

It is this marvelous development and expansion that has created such great real-estate activity in Florida. We have for years, however, been growing steadily. I can recall that 10 years ago my home town had a population of 5,000. Five years later it had a population of 10,000. In the last five years it has increased in its population to about 26,000. This is but the story of the towns and cities throughout the State. Agriculture, too, has made wonderful progress.

The expenditure for public roads during 1925 in the State of Florida, based upon the figures up to the present time, will be approximately $20,000,000. An amount equal to this, and even more, is being expended for street improvements in the various towns and cities. Millions are also being expended for extending and enlarging lighting plants, water and sewerage systems, to make them sufficient to take care of the present-day needs. More than $5,000,000 are being expended for new schoolhouses this year. The Florida East Coast Railway, at a cost of millions, is building a double track from Jacksonville to Miami, a distance of 366 miles. The Seaboard Air Line but recently constructed a cross-state road from the west coast to the east coast of the State—a road which, although only about a year old, is enjoying a phenomenal prosperity, having more freight and passenger traffic than they can take care of. The Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard Air Line are also making substantial extensions at other points in the southern and western part of Florida. The Frisco system has recently acquired and will develop a railroad entering Pensacola, Fla., bringing that section of Florida into touch with the great Middle West. Far more railroad construction is in progress in Florida than in any other State in the Union.

In September, 1924, the total bank deposits in Florida were $293,000,000. In September, 1925, they were $774,000,000, making an increase of $480,000,000 in bank deposits within one year.

That is rather an astounding growth in our financial institutions within that period of time. I was talking the other day with a man who is prominently connected with the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and he said: "Well, you ought to get the statistics since September." These statistics only bring the figures down to September. He said: "The increase in deposits has been greater in percentage and proportion during October and November than up to the latter part of September." But even at that there was an increase of $480,000,000 in the bank deposits in Florida from September 1, 1924, until September 1, 1925. He mentioned one bank in one city that had $77,000,000 on deposit.

Here is a matter touching upon the necessities and needs of Florida, specifically for public buildings:

Statistics giving data as to the postal receipts in 15 towns and cities of the State show that up to September 30, 1925, the receipts had increased 80 per cent over the receipts for the year ending September 30, 1924, an increase of 80 per cent within a period of one year in the postal receipts. In all other towns and cities the increase has also been very marked.

Florida has varied and numerous industries and resources. It may be mentioned that the State is now producing fruit and vegetable crops which bring at least $150,000,000 annually; her lumber output is selling for $40,000,000 annually; her fish bring $15,000,000 annually; the phosphate sales amount to $10,000,000 annually; her naval stores probably $20,000,000 annually. This year the cigars manufactured by the Tampa factories will produce a total of about $60,000,000. In this one city alone the pay roll in the cigar industry amounts to $1,600,000 per month.

There are many other resources which could be mentioned.

I mention these statistics and these facts briefly in order that the governmental authorities dealing with the postal situation in the State of Florida may realize that we have upon us a great necessity and emergency, and also may appreciate the fact that in Florida appropriations made for public buildings are being made not only for the present requirements but also for the needs of a rapidly developing State.

I do not know a time within a quarter of a century in Florida when there has not been a steady upward trend of development, both in the cities and in the agricultural districts of the State. As the State has progressed, as the towns have become more attractive, as there have been more avenues of pleasure and entertainment provided, as we have furnished a better highway system and increased better school facilities, and all the towns and cities have installed modern improvements, the State necessarily has become more interesting, more inviting, and more attractive, and the development we have heretofore had has become intensified, extended, and enlarged, until now the growth of the State is the talk of the Nation. But I wish to impress upon my friends of the Senate that Florida is not only a delightful place as a playground—the playground of America—but we have there also splendid opportunities; we have staple industries and resources, and there are wonderful opportunities not only for the pleasure seeker but for those who desire to have a place of abode where they can make a living in the various industries and be happy and contented.

I especially wish to direct the attention of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads to the necessity existing in Florida for increased and better postal facilities.

I have briefly recited some of the activities in my State. They speak for themselves, and, as has often been said, "the truth about Florida is good enough." Florida's wonderful progress of the past, her unprecedented growth of the present, is only an index and forerunner of her continued prosperity and development. The man is asleep at the switch who can not see a great future for Florida.

PROGRESS OF LATIN COUNTRIES IN CIVILIZATION

Mr. MOSES. Mr. President, during the recess of Congress a very interesting article was written by the junior Senator from West Virginia [Mr. Goff] on the subject of Latin-American relations, which seems to me to be worthy of preservation; and I ask unanimous consent that it may be printed in the Record.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas in the chair). Without objection, leave is granted to insert the article in the Record.

[From the Washington Post of Sunday, September 13, 1925]

COMMON INTERESTS OF THE AMERICAS ARE FOUND BY SENATOR—GOFF, OF WEST VIRGINIA, TELLS OF LATIN COUNTRIES' PROGRESS IN CIVILIZATION—UNITED STATES, HE SAYS, MUST RECOGNIZE ITS SOUTHERN NEIGHBORS' RIGHTS TO FREEDOM OF CHOICE IN COMMODITIES AND HOW WE WOULD SELL TO THEM—COMMON SENSE IS NEEDED IN DEALING WITH NATIONS TO SOUTH OF US, HE STATES—AMERICANS MUST REALIZE THAT THESE REPUBLICS ARE PROUD OF THEIR ACHIEVEMENTS AND ARE RESPONSIVE TO LEARNING IN ARTS AND LITERATURE AS WELL AS COMMERCE

(By GUY D. GOFF, United States Senator from West Virginia)

Moved solely by a desire to see the pictures which the distinct and rounded words of others have so graphically painted, I spent the past two months in South America, truly the wonderland of the world. The trip was one of continuous delight in a country as attractive and redolent of romance, struggle, and enterprise as its people were hospitable and affectionately kind. I have returned a sincere friend and admirer of our southern neighbors and with a lasting esteem for their qualities of head and heart—qualities that lead to happy homes, to prosperity, and to that combination of big and little things that dignify life and give it charm and grace.

There the old borders on the new, and the new lures you because the best of the old is assimilated and blended with the spell of the ever-changing present. You feel the presence of a reality, and in panorama you see tremendous forces at work, great nations, complex problems, mighty potentialities, immeasurably valuable resources, stupendous opportunities, and a graciously charming people, ever moving in the lights and the shades of a prehistoric civilization.

The commercial, agricultural, and cultural problems, beginning where many of ours merge and pause, were in their economic relation to the United States of sufficient importance to require in full for the journey. Nature has lavished her gifts so generously that in the vast spaces and the immense depths of this wonderful continent, always near you, the thought comes that here, in its industrial possibilities, is the storehouse from which the other lands have drawn their natural resources.

It would be futile to attempt a description of the republics of South America, inspired as they were by the same immortal ideals that first found expression in the Constitution of the United States. Time does not permit an enumeration of the many particulars in which they equal and surpass the nations of the world. A comparative reference in the merest outline must suffice.

HAS 10 REPUBLICS

South America, with her 10 Republics, is equal in area to the United States and Europe combined. She has a population of nearly 70,000,000 people, and an annual foreign trade of $2,000,000,000. The citizens of these republics are active, frugal, domestic, and earnest, and to the best of their ability they are taking from raw nature its finished products. In this connection it is interesting to note that in 1924 we sold to Latin America $770,000,000 worth of manufactured articles, and purchased in return over $1,000,000,000 worth of her economic products.

Brazil is the only Portuguese-speaking country in South America, and it is larger than the United States, excluding our Territories, by nearly 300,000 square miles. The Argentine is as large as the United States east of the Mississippi. Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela are each extraordinary in size, resources, and mineral wealth. They have in profusion what the world needs. They have cotton, wheat, meat, wool, coffee, sugar, fruits, coal, silver, gold, diamonds, copper, rubber, nitrates, dye, and hard and soft woods, as many and as various as the spices of India.

The minerals and the precious stones of these nations are the richest in the world. Their acres of grazing lands mean that they will supply mankind with meat, and their broad and level pampas designate them as the granaries of the world. The cultivation of alfalfa in South America is increasing both for home and export consumption. It has, in fact, become an economic necessity. It is to-day an alternative restorative crop for the exhausted soil of many districts. Wheat, as we know, absorbs the nitrogen from the soil, while alfalfa absorbs nitrogen from the air and deposits it in the soil while growing. These two crops are to-day regarded as complementary, and the agricultural districts of these great countries are keeping step with modern improvements and scientific investigations in every field of agriculture and animal industry.

WONDERS OF NATURE

The Andes are a scenic spectral mystery, with their unexplored heights, silver and red in the sun, and their definite but impenetrable gorges. Truly, no part of the earth's surface furnishes such contrast of surpassing wildness and of inspiring wonder. There is a level space between the River Plata and the foothills of these primeval highlands where the railroad runs 175 miles without a curve, a turn, or a bridge of any kind.

Brazil has every kind of climate except the extremes of cold and heat. It is largely a pastoral country, and its vast plains are ideal for stock raising, while its highlands and mountain sides are unparalleled for the growth of its staple products, especially coffee.

Argentina is one of the richest countries in the world, immensity is everywhere, in its fertile pampas, its agricultural regions, and even its roaming flocks and herds. There are fields of wheat and corn, endless and boundless, moving like a mighty sea until they disappear where sky and horizon meet. She has 700,000,000 acres of land adapted for cattle and the growing of cereals. It is estimated that Argentina can support 200,000,000 head of cattle, and that to-day she has about 37,005,000, while Brazil has 34,271,324, and Chile, Bolivia, and Peru have not to exceed 4,047,689, and, due to the climatic conditions in all of these countries, the herds graze all winter, and owing to the reversal of the seasons crops are harvested there when ours are being sowed.

Uruguay, largely pastoral and having 40,000,000 acres devoted to grazing, is as large as the New England States. It possesses 2,000,000 acres of virgin forest and maintains large packing houses for the purpose of supplying Europe with frozen meats. Its exports are large, especially of wool, hides, horn, and hair. It is rich in fruits. There is no doubt of its great mineral wealth, consisting of gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, and marble of various qualities. There is some gold in the country, and a very rich deposit of rock crystal.

LONG, NARROW CHILE

These two countries, Argentina and Uruguay, are producing the cereals of the world at a minimum cost. They do not stack wheat in either nation, due to the fact that the standing crops dry in the sun. The elimination of stacking cost is, as every agriculturist well knows, an enormous saving, and this is especially true in South America, because of the comparative lower cost of labor.

Chile, rich in political romance, and most intensely national, has many climates—hot, dry, temperate, and cold. In proportion to its width it is the longest country in the world. It is seven times as long as Ohio, averaging 130 miles in width and 3,000 miles in length along the western slope of the Andes. The Chilean fields of nitrate and copper are among the largest in the world and her foreign commerce is enormous. There are iron, silver, gold, salt, and borax, and millions of acres of virgin forest. Chile exports, in addition to these products, wheat, wool, hides, honey, and wax. She also has large and rich deposits of coal in the extreme southern section of the nation.

Bolivia, the Republic of the Clouds, is unique in the fact that she has no national debt and that she is the richest mineral depository known to mankind. The tons of gold, silver, coal, copper, tin, borax, and zinc which she has contributed to the world were described to me as microscopic in proportion to what remains.

The products of Peru are chiefly mineral and agricultural. The world is familiar with her guano and nitrate fields and knows also of her high-grade oil developments in paying quantities. Her gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, and quicksilver mines have been famous for centuries, and 400 years ago she supplied Spain with most of her fabulous wealth. It is stated by those competent to compute that this great country has to-day 40,000,000 tons of undeveloped coal.

Lima is an idyllic spot, a city of overmastering charm, with an air of a rich and a wonderful past; the home of a cheerful, courteous, industrious, hospitable, and gifted people. Archaeology says that Peru was the land where the progenitors of the Incas, the Chumus, lived, and that they developed and maintained one of the most advanced and cultured civilizations 25,000 years before the birth of Christ.

CITY CHARACTERISTICS

The cities of these great Republics must be seen to be appreciated and adequately understood. They have the thrill and the glamour of stanch people, prosperous, learned, and happy. They are spiritual, exclusive, refined, beautiful, and modern. They surprise you and they stir you (and all because you did not know) with their art, their architecture, their music, their paintings, their stately buildings and noble structures, and with it all the comforts and the calm elegance that reflects the dreams and the thoughts of heart and soul.

Rio, with her beautiful flowers and her 1,000,000 busy people, is a rush of color—demiparadise, a fortress built by nature, the fairest spot the eye has ever seen, to which man has added all of the intellectual and the physical requirements of life, with a delicacy that impels you to wonder how and why.

Montevideo is the gateway to an empire, a city of over 300,000 prosperous, happy, progressive people, upright in thought and deed.

Buenos Aires is the largest Spanish-speaking city in the world and the largest capital city in the Western Hemisphere. It is the Paris of South America and possesses every attribute of luxury and comfort. Its 2,000,000 active, forward-going people are a freer and a happier people than those residing in the metropolis of France. Where Paris falls Buenos Aires retracts, reminds, and goes ahead economically, socially, and politically.

Asuncion, the capital of Paraguay, is a healthy, clean, contented city, 1,000 miles from the sea, straight up the Paraguay River; and its inspiring institutions embody the courage and apportion the learning of its people.

Santiago is a blend of Paris and Madrid, the vivacious and the somber, but conspicuous because it is uniquely itself.

Valparaiso, rebuilt since the earthquake in 1906, is a modern, flourishing seaport, where the Saxon and the Latin, the Englishman and the American, and the Chilean have conquered nature with her own weapons and carved a habitat, a great emporium, out of the ascending and overhanging rock.

THE GREAT DIVIDE

The Andes, a climb to the eternal snow, so grand and terrible and suggestive of unthinkable periods of the long ago, separate Chile and Argentina. They divide the eastern and the western, as well as the Atlantic and Pacific, Republics of South America. This great mountain chain gives different habits, different thoughts, and a distinctly different history to these people. The railroad, one of the most daring of engineering achievements, provides a comfortable journey across the pampas and over the mountains. It runs hundreds of miles, with sudden and delightfully surprising changes. It passes through the loneliest, the loveliest, the dustiest, and the most monotonously level valley in all the world, and then the ascent of the Andes—too sublime for words—with its spires and its towers 20,000 feet high, rising majestically into the cerulean blue, only to disappear into the vast mists beyond where the mountaineer reigns supreme and only the fittest survive.

Then upon the summit far above, on a pedestal out from the natural rock, stands a bronze figure, heroic in size. It is turned northward, so as to look over both Chile and Argentina. There it stands in its inspiring solitude, 13,000 feet above the sea, divinely and sublimely prophetic of perpetual peace. It stands with uplifted hands in commemoration of the arbitration treaty between Chile and Argentina signed in 1903. It blesses each country; it is the figure of the Saviour, Jesus Christ. It is the "Christ of the Andes," typifying all that is godlike in the actions and thoughts of these great and wonderful people. It bears the dates 1902-1904, and the following inscription in Spanish:

"Sooner shall these mountains crumble into dust than the people of Argentina and Chile break the peace they have sworn to maintain at the feet of Christ, the Redeemer."

Here is a confession of faith more impressive by far than scraps of paper and leagues of nations. It is peace—the divine symbol of peace—and, lest we forget, it is the people who make war on peace.

UNITED STATES EVER FRIEND

In 1817, the intrepid San Martin led the Argentine Army over these mountain passes, in the expedition to drive Spain from the Western Hemisphere. History records that Hannibal and Napoleon each crossed the Alps for pelf, not liberty, but they ascended passes only one-half as high and never as far from the homes of men.

The United States has ever been the friend of these countries and always their constant, vigorous sympathizer and supporter. As early as 1811 President Madison called their struggle for liberty to the attention of the Congress of the United States and suggested the propriety of entering into diplomatic relations with them as soon as their independence was established. In fact, beginning with the year 1820, every President of the United States not only assumed in his annual message that independence was merely a question of time, but distinctly asserted that the United States sought and expected no privileges not equally offered to the nations of the world.

In 1817, after the independence of the Argentine, Spain, while she was negotiating the cession of Florida to the United States, protested that expeditions were being fitted out in the Atlantic Coast States to foment revolution in her South American colonies. Public opinion in the United States favored these expeditions, and while Congress passed neutrality acts, against the eloquent opposition of Henry Clay, it did not condemn either the sympathy shown or the assistance rendered. In fact, Mr. Clay publicly stated that it was worth while going to war with Spain to establish the independence of these countries.

In this period, Richard Rush, our minister to England, urged the prime minister, Lord Castlereagh, to recognize the independence of these Republics, and Spain at the same time insisted that she would induce the Holy Alliance to help her stamp out democratic government in her South American possessions. England declined then to recognize the independence of these countries as republics, and favored the cause of Spain, provided general amnesty be granted the colonists then in rebellion. To all of these proposals of Great Britain, Mr. Rush was insistently and persistently opposed. In February, 1819, he formally notified Lord Castlereagh that President Monroe favored recognition of the independence of Argentina. To this step Great Britain strenuously objected, but the independence of Argentina was promptly and effectually recognized by the President of the United States.

MONROE'S MESSAGE

This action, with the full approval of the American people, without doubt prevented the Holy Alliance from taking any part in the affairs of these countries and dividing them as it then contemplated among the great powers of Europe. The death of Lord Castlereagh did not in any way change the situation, as Mr. Canning, who succeeded him, was equally opposed to republican government in South America.

Such was the status in March, 1822, when James Monroe sent his famous message to Congress proposing the formal recognition of the Argentine as a republic, independent of Spain. Then, about nine months later—December 2, 1823—President Monroe, with the full approval of Mr. Canning, sent his historic message to Congress in which he established with all the force of international law his famous doctrine that moral qualities shall rule in the affairs of nations, and that the United States of North America was a brother in blood, and a sister in thought, to the then struggling Republics of South America. It was not until January, 1825, that Great Britain saw fit to recognize the independence of the Argentine Republic and receive her into the family of nations. The question was then settled for all time, and since then both the United States and Great Britain have been and now are the true and the tried friends of this most wonderful of nations.

CLOSER TIE NEEDED

These are the nations at our very doors, and how little they know us, and how little we know them! We have each been too much engrossed in questions affecting our respective affairs. We have forgotten that progress is reciprocity, and that reciprocity is more than progress. There has been too much selfishness, suspicion, envy, and distrust. We have each listened emotionally, rather than logically, to what Europe has had to tell, and Europe, as always, dignifies her prejudices and her mendacities with the palliating phrase: "All is fair in diplomacy and trade."

There should be, and there must be, a closer union between the United States and Latin America, united as we are by the invisible ties of a common origin and a common destiny. But this will come only through a more intimate contact when all rivalry is for cooperation and all envy merely a common effort to advance the general welfare of mankind. If we knew each other better, we would love each other more. We differ in language, in race, and in custom, and often we see life differently. We live, struggle, make mistakes, fail, and succeed; but always our aims and our aspirations, our great substantial underlying instincts are the same. We are each the children of pioneers, men who believed in equality of opportunity and who had the courage to be themselves, men who fought for these eternal rights, and who sent Europe and her nostrums of governments by heavenly crowned supermen back home, there to remain and there to share in our prosperity and enjoy the blessings of a nobler and a richer life.

The United States is the largest producing and consuming Nation in the world to-day. We need Latin America and she needs us, and if we but make the effort she will meet us with a cordiality which can only mean that the fullness of life is for those who give and love and charm, and not for those who hate and plot and scheme. Every nation makes its mistakes, and no Government is without fault. Latin America suffers to-day from the evils of a Spanish misrule.

The "eat, drink, and be merry" policy of Spain not only produced bad social conditions but bequeathed to Latin America problems which her brave men and her hopeful women are daily solving and in the results obtained they are strengthening our faith in mankind and in the goodness of the race. Latin America also suffers from the need of men. She needs capital and an immigration that creates, invests, works, and develops. She needs the strength of the robust pioneer men of the world—steady men, who intend when they enter her gates to live with her and to die with her in a common quest for a common and joint end.

NEEDS OF CONTINENT

In some of these countries the mixture of the racial elements precipitated a progeny lacking in energy, curiosity, and the ambition to struggle for the things of the mind—a racial anomaly within the nation, but not of it. In all such matters the peoples so sorely affected can only help themselves, and then only by stepping boldly away from the past with its shackling customs and sinful practices and dedicate their splendid energies not only to the needs of the living present but also to the most difficult obligations ever demanded of republics—the elimination of theory from practical democracy. They must make education more universal. They must bring it to the many and thus advance the collective by improving the individual character. They must lift up the masses, and without alloy democratize the rich and poor, the high and the low. In this way only can the standards of self-government be raised and the competency of a people inherently increased.

Too many of these countries live to-day in a state of conservative content—smug feudalism, as it were—because the land and the sources of production are almost exclusively in the hands of the few. This condition forbids immigration and prevents the coming of that class of men and women whose very presence will lighten the common mass to better methods and infuse conditions with the skill of superior industry. This system of land tenure should be legally modified so that large estates, lawfully acquired, may grow into smaller and intensely individual farms—the homes of happy and permanent citizens. Every man wants to work for himself and have something he can call his own, something won by struggle, something to use and enjoy. Such a policy will eliminate the "swallow immigrant" who in his coming and his going merely for wages which he takes out of the country depletes the basic wealth of the nation where he itinerantly carries only to destroy a market to which the permanent residents have a right to look. A permanent immigration, loving the soil as the place of its adoption, would obviously enrich any nation so favored by stabilizing and solidifying its conditions and increase its wealth as well as the purchasing power of its people.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS

There is work in South America, work in plenty, and the people are tenacious, thrifty, and industrious. The laboring man is distinctly the product of industrial conditions, as recent as they are restrictive. In a comparative and relative sense he is backward, yet unions are everywhere and organizations are making great progress. The eight-hour laws are generally observed, but wages are low, mere living and in no sense a saving wage, and strikes are common.

Industry is the basis of all prosperity, without which no government can achieve its purposes. Profits, not friendship, make business, and direct the course of trade, and yet it is only through the channels of commerce, protected by government, that nations can be brought into close and intimate contact. Mutual respect, and common interests may lead to trade, but these relations can not exist without knowledge and acquaintanceship, and certainly never without the presence of those personal elements and considerate niceties that respect always brings. Mankind must barter to live, and yet every man who trades knows that the ultimate gold is always high above the material realm, where gold and the things gold buys do not, and never will, measure the exchanges.

MUST SHOW BEST SIDE

We can not sell to any nation unless we buy, and it depends primarily on our business men, our bankers and our investors, including our transportation facilities, whether we are to have trade relations with South America upon a scale commensurate with our natural resources. We have the constructive genius, the courage, the capital, and the enterprise, but whether we shall have such relations depends ultimately on the people of the country concerned. They, and they only, can act. If they do, and our export trade is increased, it will benefit not only the nations so involved, but specifically our manufacturing and agricultural industries. If we sell our products to the countries of Latin America, we must determine to appeal to the psychology of those who buy, and forget our own.

We must show them our best side and see only the very best in them. We must not force our wishes, our ideas, or our styles on those who purchase. We must recognize freedom of choice on the part of all with whom we have commercial, political, or social connections. They may differ in their tastes, but we should remember that they are paying the bills. We must sell, if we do sell, what the people of those countries want, and not what we think that they should have, and certainly not what we wish to unload upon them.

We must strive in all of our relations to avoid prejudices and apply common sense. We must forget our narrowness and eschew any symptoms of superiority. We resent such defects of character in others and others resent them in us. And if we do sell upon the scale I trust we will, our commercial representatives must learn to speak the Spanish and the Portuguese languages. They must study to be courteous, reserved, and polite. It is impossible to reach the psychology of a people through the colored views of an interpreter, just as it is equally impossible to arouse the reasoning and persuasive faculties of those with whom we have relations without an observance of the amenities and the civilities of life.

We must have our own bankers in Latin America, just as these countries should have their financial agents in the United States. Bankers can create and direct the course of commercial transactions through their legitimate control of the rate of exchange. The European bankers always insist, and rightly, that the money that they loan should be spent in their own country. The establishment of American bankers in Latin America will of necessity assist our business men.

Such institutions will invite capital to develop industry. We should have such banks wherever possible, and we should encourage them to open branches in every country where we have trade connections. If they lead the way, our business men should follow; and whenever business blazes the commercial trail our financial institutions should extend assistance to it.

NEED OF INFORMATION

The European bankers in Latin America are in a position to supply their respective countries with accurate knowledge of economic, financial, and political conditions. There is every reason why the business man of the United States should have the same opportunities through similar channels of our own. If the manufacturing and other industries of the United States intend to establish a legitimate and ever-growing trade relation with these nations, we must be prepared to invest our capital there and to do our share in advancing and promoting the internal conditions of these countries. They need and they desire our financial assistance, and they will respond with the riches of gifts, giving value for value received.

Such connections would result always in more of our citizens being employed in these enterprises, and they in turn would stimulate trade and create a demand for American goods. To-day we are purchasing many of the essentials of commerce from Latin America, but we are carrying on such trade through and by way of Europe. The cost of transportation almost doubled would be eliminated if these commodities were purchased directly. We need, of course, equality of freight rates if we are to meet the competition of such a venture.

We need an American merchant marine. Europe destroyed our competition by subsidizing with millions her passenger, mail, and freight lines. Europe did this, knowing that these ships would promote and foster trade and serve as auxiliary cruisers in the event of war. We were compelled to withdraw from the seas. We could not, with our higher wages and cost of maintenance, meet the lower cost of European operations. Our flag to-day should be on the seven seas, and we should now carry our commerce in our own bottoms. We are a people with a great maritime tradition and history. In 1852 there were 600 vessels flying the American flag in the wonderful harbor of Buenos Aires. To-day all too few are to be seen in that busy port.

SUGGESTS SHIP BOUNTY

It is asserted that the policy of protection to American industry increases the wages of American seamen and that the subsidies paid by foreign countries to promote their trade reduces rates, and that the American shipowner is thus subjected to a double disadvantage. The soundness of these conclusions can not be questioned, and the causes should be forthwith removed.

The remedy does not lie either in a discriminatory tariff in favor of goods imported in domestic bottoms or in permitting the purchase of cheaper ships abroad. This alternative would destroy American shipping. The just, the obvious, and the proper course is to pay the operators of ships flying the Stars and Stripes a bounty sufficient to equalize the burdens imposed by our superior standards of living. This will insure if not perpetuate a merchant marine, and bring back the flag where in the infancy of our Government our forefathers placed it. They knew that every ship carrying our flag was an ambassador of trade, just as a traveling emissary is the "alter ego" of the enterprise that employs him.

If we can justify a tariff—and we do—jointly to protect labor and encourage capital in the production of an article, why can we not protect each in its disposition? Such a bounty would not be a donation; it would be merely meeting foreign competition on its own ground, as well as stimulating all commercial enterprises. This is obviously true because the new markets so created would proportionately increase production in all lines of endeavor. Such a subvention would be merely the returning of what is indirectly taken away to the end that the American seaman may be employed at the highest wages paid any seagoing man in the world, and the opportunities of all of our people solidified and enlarged.

UNTHINKING ASSERTIONS

It is asserted here in the United States by those who do not think and by those who develop and direct our national thought, and it is also repeated caustically far away down in South America, that no Holy Alliance now exists and no monarch now restricts man's freedom in the Western Hemisphere. Then it is proclaimed that the continuance of the Monroe doctrine under these circumstances means "America for the North Americans," and that the time has now come when the United States should disclaim any further connection with its principles.

The conditions giving rise to the declaration of these immortal precepts were merely the occasion, not the cause, of their enunciation. Other occasions have since arisen and many others may arise in the future, and those who now condemn in theory and in spleen mistake words for precepts, expediency for principle. We do not as a Nation or as a people crave a foot of Latin-American territory. We desire merely the relationship—the social and the political associations that come from peaceful success—not the wealth of discontent and ruin. We do not question and we fail to see how anyone can in sincerity question the commanding position of any of the Latin-American Republics or distrust their influence, either at the council table or in the concert of nations.

They are inspired by malice and moved by jealous fear who say that the United States of North America entertains any ulterior purpose toward Latin America. We have problems of our own—mighty ones—spiritual, material, and political. We have before us constantly perplexing questions demanding settlement, and to the best of our ability we are working all of them out without prejudice and solely for the benefit of mankind. As a Nation we feel that good faith proves itself by deeds, not words. The Monroe doctrine saved Cuba and the Isles of the south seas for liberty and civilization, and our action then and since is of sufficient guaranty of our interpretation of the aspirations of our fathers, whose gropings and inarticulate philosophy when we were a young and struggling people found concrete expression in the edict of the immortal Monroe. It never meant "America for the North Americans." It means to-day what it meant when it objectified the Constitution of the United States into the affairs of man that North America asks now, as she expected then, nothing but cordiality, consideration, and respect.

The United States of America wants only the opportunity to think constructively and to grow spiritually with Latin America and with all the world. This is the offer of the Monroe doctrine, honestly understood, and if the world accepts it, the great Republic of the north will march step by step and keep step with the race in the years and the centuries to come.

SELF-GOVERNMENT SLOW

In the United States we have come to realize that capacity for self-government is a slow and painful process, often as displeasing as it is disappointing. A strong and robust thinker recently said that "mankind is prone to forget how long it takes to develop a civilization, how slow its processes really are, how difficult it is to change character and to educate entire peoples up to the different standards of moral law."

He adds, "We can do but little in our day; we can live our short lives and pass on, only to be forgotten."

How true this reflection is! We of to-day, the same as our fathers, can not observe the progress of the world. We can not mark its advances either by day or by generations, but if we do have faith in humankind and in common chances we know that the world is growing better and that mankind is advancing slowly and imperceptibly from envy, greed, and selfishness to a trustworthy respect for human right. We also appreciate that the level of democracy can be raised only as the human stream rises the world over, and we now know that an approach to competency in government comes only with the wisdom which man gathers in the mistakes and the bitter disappointments of wrangling and turmoil.

The people of Latin America have likewise learned well the immutability of this law in the spiritual, the physical, and the political relations of life. They, too, the same as we, are doing their best, and in certain respects they have succeeded where we have failed. We realize that self-control and self-abnegation, individually and nationally, must be acquired and practiced if moral qualities are to control in the affairs of men. The strong men and the hopeful women of Latin America know too well that such qualities are essential to good government, and that they come only with a conscious sense of responsibility from below, and never down from above. They believe, as we do, that citizenship is an obligation, and that men and women in a democracy, if they would qualify themselves for helpful expression and constructive service, must be as honest civically as they strive to be personally. They also know that nations can not live in isolation and unto themselves alone; that nations can not progress and go on if their relations with each other are not sincere, honest, reliable, and dependable.

PEOPLE ARE INDUSTRIOUS

The people of all these countries are industrious, and, with rare exceptions, they not only labor objectively but they possess the ability and the willingness to develop and to work hard.

It was my good fortune and rare privilege to discuss these matters with the officials and the statesmen of the countries visited, and their aims and their purposes, I unhesitatingly say, are the same as ours. They, in their environment, are advancing civilization and helping humanity in its work forward. They believe in law, justice, peace, and mercy; they respect order, and to them, as it is with us, justice is the sole barrier between civilization and the anarchy of barbarism. They recognize the superiority of personal rights over those of property, and their experience taught them that these rights are relatively dependent.

I was also impressed with the encouraging fact that the loyalty, the honesty, the patience, and the patriotism of the citizens of these countries respond to the same promptings and react to the same influences that move and exalt us. And let me emphasize that the people of these wonderful Republics realize equally with us that the fate of the race rests solely in man's capacity to govern himself, and that they are just as proud of their destiny and as jealous of their honor, and just as responsive to learning, art, literature, and the exquisite refinements of life, as we are. They are justly proud of their struggles, their accomplishments, and their real and substantial contributions to civilization. They revere their history, the oldest and the most interesting of any in this Western Hemisphere. They live the unquestioned truth that national growth and personal advancement depend upon intelligence and courage constantly directed toward the development of the broadest responsibilities and the highest service to home and state.

I want to see the ties of friendship tightened and the bonds of sympathy strengthened between all the nations of the Western Hemisphere; and if, as we all hope, the citizens of these great Republics allow themselves to unite in closer bonds they will advance the civilization and win and maintain the peace of the world.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE SENATOR CHARLES A. CULBERSON

Mr. SHEPPARD. Mr. President, I submit for publication in the RECORD an address by Hon. Hampson Gary, former United States minister to Switzerland, on the late Senator Charles A. Culbertson, delivered before the Texas Bar Association at its recent annual meeting at Austin, Tex., July 2, 1925. I ask unanimous consent that it may be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas in the chair). Without objection, leave will be granted. The Chair hears no objection.

The address is as follows:

Mr. President, I would like to say a few words in tribute to one of the truly great men that Texas has produced. I refer to the late Charles A. Culbertson. He was born in Alabama, but his parents removed to Texas when the son was only a year old, and he was reared and largely educated here and was in fact a product of our State. After attending school in Gilmer and Jefferson, he entered the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington and was graduated in the class of 1874. He studied law in his father's office for two years and then entered the law department of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, where he was chosen judge of the moot court, the highest honor of the law class, and later was selected as the final orator of the Jefferson Literary Society for the commencement exercises in June, 1877. Thus even in that early day he evinced ability and the capacity to make and hold friends.

Returning to Texas he entered upon the practice of law at Jefferson and soon participated in the trial of a number of important cases, acquitting himself with such credit that he was not long in attaining an enviable rank at the bar. He removed to Dallas in 1887, where his law practice steadily increased, and he won recognition as one of the ablest lawyers in the State.

In 1890 he was elected attorney general of Texas. In that office he performed valiant service for our Commonwealth. In the courts at Austin and Washington he was frequently pitted against some of the ablest lawyers and advocates in the land, and his victories were numerous and of far-reaching effect. It can be truthfully said that he was one of the very great attorneys general of our State, as he was, too, one of the youngest in our history.

Mr. Culberson was elected Governor of Texas in 1894, when only 39 years of age. His four years' record in that office is one of the most creditable chapters in our history. It was a service notable for its variety, fidelity, and efficiency. In the discharge of his administrative duties and as leader of the political thought of the State he exhibited courage, ability, and rock-ribbed honesty. And he made things come to pass.

His messages and state papers were models of the kind. Like Franklin, he could say much in a few words and say it convincingly. His speech at Dallas accepting the nomination for governor, his two inaugural addresses, his message against prize fighting, veto of the divorce bill, Labor Day proclamation, speech presenting the Sawnie Robertson memorial to the Supreme Court, and brief address giving the silver service to the battleship Texas show him to have been master of a pure style and correct literary taste.

He loved Texas and its record of romantic history and struggle for freedom, and some of his most eloquent passages are in tribute to Austin, Houston, and Crockett, and other heroic figures of our early days—and to those who fought and died at Goliad, the Alamo, and San Jacinto—while his eulogy of Texans of a later day who followed Lee and Jackson and Albert Sidney Johnston is worthy of a place in the textbooks in our schools.

I come now to Mr. Culberson's record in Washington. He was elected United States Senator in 1899, and thrice reelected, serving four terms, or a period of 24 years. And well did he serve us. He was a great Senator, the peer of any of his colleagues, who were not slow in recognizing his qualities. You will recall that he was elected leader of his party in the Senate, the minority leader at that time. Such was his ability and sagacity, such his engaging personality, that he was successful in getting his party to function and vote as a cohesive force. He was spoken of at this time as a fit man to be President of the United States, and if he had hailed from what is known politically as a "pivotal State" he might have reached that eminence. His work in committee room, his well-considered speeches on the floor, and his vote on important measures brought him increasing influence, and presently he was made chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, as his father, David B. Culberson, before him had been chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives.

Like father like son, Culberson of Texas was again a synonym in Washington for legal learning up on Capitol Hill. He was head of the Judiciary Committee while the United States was engaged in the Great War, and we are yet too near that titanic conflict to correctly appraise the service Senator Culberson rendered in that post. But ask those who were in a position to know, and they will tell you that it was well for America that Charles A. Culberson was head of the Senate Judiciary Committee during the great crisis.

I assume that there will be prepared and spread upon the permanent records of this association a comprehensive review and estimate of Senator Culberson's career as a public official and of his distinguished record as a lawyer. We owe that to ourselves as well as to his memory. The cases in which he appeared as counsel before the Supreme Court of Texas and the Supreme Court of the United States will afford lawyer and layman an interesting and informing study. His briefs and the records of his arguments in those courts stamp him as a lawyer of the first rank. I hope this association is to give fitting recognition to this fact.

Mr. President, I knew Senator Culberson well. I followed his career from the year he first entered public life here in Austin, and it was always a matter of pride to me that our State could claim him as its own. I can never forget the last time I saw him, when physical ills had come but had left untouched his brilliant mind. There he sat, handsome, courtly, interesting to the end. A little while, and he passed on, revered, respected, and loved by all. Texas will ever cherish his name and fame.

TRIBUTE TO WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN BY WILLIAM G. M'ADOO

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for the incorporation in the RECORD of an address by William G.

McAdoo at the memorial services held in honor of the late William Jennings Bryan at Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles, Calif., August 9, 1925.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas in the chair). Is there objection?

There being no objection, the address was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. Chairman, ladies, and gentlemen, the sudden and unexpected death of William Jennings Bryan gave dramatic point to the career and achievements of this remarkable American citizen. For a generation he has played major parts on the national stage. Always he has been an interesting and commanding figure—loved and applauded by millions of devoted followers and ridiculed and denounced by his political foes with a passionate vehemence that signified the power of his personality and the threat of his political domination.

Never before in American history has a man like Mr. Bryan appeared, and never before has any man been able to command the continuous and undiminished attention of the American people for almost a generation. This was due to Mr. Bryan's unusual personality and versatility—for he was not only a great commoner—by which we mean a man of and for the people, one who always keeps the common touch—but he was a politician of extraordinary power combined with an evangelical quality which made him a formidable crusader on the hustings or in the pulpit.

He was a deeply religious man; he fought for the cause in which he believed with a passionate eloquence that is borne alone of a profound conviction of righteousness. He was a great orator—few in our history could match him in emotional appeal; and his logic, ready wit, rare humor, eloquence, and resourcefulness made him a dangerous antagonist in any battle. He loved peace, but paradoxically his whole life was a fight. He fought for peace, and always for righteous things. He never compromised with principle. It may be said truthfully and to his undying credit that he never lent his voice or influence to an unworthy cause or to a questionable purpose. He was the relentless foe of crookedness and corruption; of immoral and immoral political bosses and sinister and spoiling political machines; and of every evil and sinister influence in our public life.

This is the man, my fellow citizens, whom you have assembled to honor. You come without regard to political affiliations or partisan considerations, because you are American citizens who delight in fair play and in doing honor to those, whatever their political or religious faith, whose lives attest their virtue and whose achievements make them worthy of recognition.

Born in Salem, Ill., where Lincoln had kept store after his return from his journey to New Orleans; educated at Illinois University, Jacksonville, Ill., and at the Union College of Law at Chicago; winning at a very early age the Illinois championship for oratory; living the life of a frontier lawyer at Lincoln, Neb.; serving two terms in the Congress of the United States; nominated three times as the candidate of a great party for the presidency of the United States and each time winning the support of millions of his fellow countrymen; a powerful factor in the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for the Presidency at the Baltimore convention in 1912, it was altogether logical and appropriate that Mr. Wilson, upon his assumption of the Presidency, should have appointed Mr. Bryan Secretary of State.

It is not my purpose to review the campaigns of Mr. Bryan for the Presidency, nor to speak particularly of his political career, nor to analyze the economic and social reforms he advocated. I propose to speak of him as I knew him during our association in the Cabinet with another great leader of men, another champion of humanity, another exponent of morality and justice, Woodrow Wilson.

That association revealed Mr. Bryan to me in his true character, a character which had not been reflected in the things that had been said of him in the public press or by his political opponents. It was, for that reason, a somewhat startling revelation, because he was so utterly different from what I had expected him to be from the representations, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say misrepresentations, which had been constantly made of him in the public prints.

Instead of a selfish and self-centered politician, I found in Mr. Bryan a most approachable and high-minded public servant, whose outstanding characteristic was eagerness to serve the public interest and to promote the welfare of mankind. This confirmed what I had believed of him as the result of his course in the Baltimore convention, where, without regard to personal consequences and certainly without thought of self-interest, he had fought to a finish the corrupt bosses within the Democratic Party and all the cohorts of privilege and had been instrumental in securing the presidential nomination, not for himself, but for Woodrow Wilson. This same characteristic led Mr. Bryan throughout his life to align himself invariably on the right side of every moral issue and of every righteous reform, without regard to personal success or political consequences.

While Mr. Bryan never achieved the Presidency, notwithstanding he was three times the nominee of his party, yet, with the exception of Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Roosevelt, and Wilson, the monuments of his achievements bulk larger than the combined accomplishments of most of our Presidents. Perhaps I should except also James K. Polk, a much misrepresented man, to whose statesmanship we owe the presence in the Federal Union of the great States of California, Nevada, and Utah, and parts of Arizona, Wyoming, New Mexico, and Colorado, and the settlement of the northwestern boundary dispute with Great Britain, which anchored in the Union the powerful tier of Northwestern States.

Henry Clay and Daniel Webster likewise never occupied the presidential chair, and yet Webster is remembered when Harrison and Fillmore, under whom he served as Secretary of State, are scarcely mentioned. Henry Clay never reached the White House, and yet he became Secretary of State and is better known than President John Quincy Adams, under whom he served. Like Clay and Webster, his illustrious predecessors in the State Department, Mr. Bryan failed of the Presidency, yet he made a great career for himself and will be remembered when his critics are forgotten.

Probably no other man in American history who has not been a President of the United States has left a stronger imprint upon our institutions than Mr. Bryan. With characteristic vision, his thoughts went to the roots of our national life. Four important constitutional amendments, revolutionary in their effects upon our political and social structure, received his flaming support—the income tax, election of Senators by direct vote of the people, prohibition, and woman's suffrage. Others fought valiantly for some of these amendments, but Mr. Bryan was in the vanguard of the battle for all of them, always fighting, never quitting, always the intrepid and resistless crusader.

These constitutional amendments testify more eloquently than words to Mr. Bryan's leadership and statesmanship. He was a pioneer in these reforms, every one of which was bitterly resisted. Who would now abolish the income tax, in spite of the many atrocities which have been committed in its name? Who would now deny to women equal political rights with men in our great democracy, notwithstanding the fact that millions of women—like millions of men—fail to perform that essential duty of good citizenship—voting on election days? Who would now restore the saloons and the breweries, in spite of the fact that loose enforcement of the prohibition laws, due to political debauchery and inefficiency, has brought the bootlegging evil upon the country?

The prohibition amendment is the one amendment concerning which there appears to be any substantial difference of opinion, and yet it is clear that the great body of the American people support this amendment, and that it, like the other three amendments championed by Mr. Bryan, is a permanent part of the organic law of the land.

If these were Mr. Bryan's only contributions to the progress of his time, they would of themselves give him an enduring and high place in history. They refute the charge so frequently made that Mr. Bryan was impractical—that he was not a sound thinker—because each of these amendments shows not only a profound conception of the true meaning and purpose of democracy, but each is intensely practical in its application to our social, economic, and political conditions.

Mr. Bryan championed so many reforms during his long and stormy career that it would be extraordinary if some of his proposals had not been open to the charge of unsoundness. Where is there a man except the Pharisee whose views are always sound? I did not myself agree with all Mr. Bryan's views. For instance, he stood for free silver. I did not. He advocated Government ownership of railroads. I have always been opposed to it. Nevertheless, the sum of Mr. Bryan's achievements, if we strike a debit and credit account, is altogether in his favor.

Mr. Bryan was not always practical, but he was not always impractical, as his enemies charge. What would life be if one was only practical? An element of practicality is necessary to every well-rounded character, but idealism and vision are essential components and no man or woman can live a great life or attain the higher satisfactions of life unless practicality is enlarged by vision and tempered by idealism. What is true of individuals is true of nations. History has clearly shown that no nation has ever survived a purely practical and materialistic existence. The sublime heights of achievement have been traversed by mankind and by those nations alone which have exalted God and have maintained noble ideals along with their progress in material affairs.

Aside from the conspicuous service Mr. Bryan rendered in connection with these changes in the organic law of the land, he cooperated with enthusiasm in those great measures of practical achievement which characterized the first two years of the Wilson administration, when he served as Secretary of State. It was during that time that the Federal reserve act, the charter of financial liberty for the American people, was enacted into law; that the first income tax law was passed and put into effect in compliance with the constitutional amendment; that the lobbyists who had consistently disgraced tariff making in the United States were for the first time thrown out of the Halls of Congress and a tariff bill enacted without scandal and designed to be for the benefit of all the people; that war with Mexico, at one time imminent, was averted by the ability, the patience, and love of peace of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan.

Undoubtedly Mr. Bryan's most important contribution as Secretary of State was to the cause of peace. Perhaps his interest in this great world problem was intensified by his experience as a volunteer in the Spanish-American War. He had raised a regiment of which he was elected colonel, and while he did not see active service in Cuba, he went through the horrors of training camps and got a large measure of contact with the loathsome phases of war, which gave him an increased abhorrence of this method of settling disputes between nations. This, added to his religious convictions on the subject, increased his zeal for the substitution of judicial methods for force in the settlement of international controversies. For years he lectured, preached, and spoke in every part of the country in favor of the abolition of war by the substitution of arbitration or other peaceful means for force. It is impossible to measure the educational value of this work, but it is safe to say that it exerted a profound influence on public opinion. As Secretary of State he found himself in position to give practical effect to the views he entertained. This took the form of treaties which, with the support and encouragement of President Wilson, he negotiated with more than 30 nations. These bound each of them to submit to investigation the subject matter of every dispute for a period of one year before aggressive action could be taken by any nation involved. These treaties were proposed to all of the nations of the world. Among those which executed them with the United States were Great Britain, France, and Russia. Germany accepted the treaty in principle, but never signed it.

By the terms of these treaties each nation, after the expiration of one year, was left free to act as it deemed that its interest required, but it was generally believed by the Wilson administration and by all the nations signatory to these treaties, that submission to investigation for one year of matters in dispute provided a "breathing spell" and a time for deliberate and dispassionate judgment which would result in the avoidance of war. Undoubtedly these treaties marked the greatest forward step ever taken up to that time toward ultimate world peace. Theretofore the dictum had been universally accepted that there were some questions which no nation could submit to investigation, discussion, or arbitration. Under these treaties there was no exception. It was provided that every question should be submitted to investigation.

It is true that these treaties were not the last word in the movement for peace, yet they were original and revolutionary in character. Had such a treaty been in effect between Serbia and Austria in 1914 it is probable that the World War would have been prevented, because if the dispute between these two countries over the Sarajevo incident had been submitted to the scrutiny of investigation for one year before either nation could have taken action, the temper of the people of the two countries would have cooled and a means of composing the difficulty might have been found. President Wilson aptly described these treaties in an address before the Young Men's Christian Association at Pittsburgh in 1914, when he said: "The United States has just succeeded in concluding a large number of treaties with the leading nations of the world, the sum and substance of which is this: That whenever any trouble arises the light shall shine on it for a year * * * then we will know who was right and who was wrong."

It was Mr. Bryan's passionate love for peace and his belief that the steps which the administration felt bound to take with respect to Germany in the year 1915 might lead to war that moved him to resign as Secretary of State. President Wilson was no less eager than Mr. Bryan to avoid the arbitrament of war when the aggressions of German submarines had precipitated a crisis that made it vital for the United States to take a firm stand for the preservation of American rights and interests. I differed with Mr. Bryan's position at that time, but I recognized the loftiness of his purposes. The President and Mr. Bryan were animated by precisely the same motive—to protect American rights and to avoid by every honorable means armed conflict with any of the belligerent powers during the European war; their differences were merely of opinion as to the best method of accomplishing this end.

Mr. Bryan was thoroughly misunderstood by great numbers of his fellow countrymen. This is due largely to the partisan character of his critics and to the persistent misrepresentations to which he, like every great figure in public life, has been subject. Naturally a man's political enemies, especially if he is a strong man, want to destroy him, and the favorite weapons are calumny and ridicule. In time their constant reiteration produces an effect. It is a tragedy that in modern civilization the agencies of misrepresentation are now so powerful and uncontrolled. Some day the means of reform must be found. Society will have to protect itself or suffer consequences far greater than now appear. Mr. Bryan was a favorite target for these agencies of misrepresentation. Time will show the falseness of their characterizations and interpretations of him. Already there emerges a man unscathed, although much misunderstood. This, however, will remain forever clear:

Mr. Bryan was an honest man, a man of unimpeachable integrity—there is no blot upon his escutcheon. In these days of low political morality what a glorious encomium it is to be called an "honest man"! Mr. Bryan was a sincere man—he was always willing to make any sacrifice for his convictions—the essential test of sincerity. Mr. Bryan was a pure man; his private life attests it upon every page of the record. Mr. Bryan was a courageous man; he did not require an army at his back to fight for the cause he espoused.

And he was a Christian. Teaching the word of God claimed his undivided enthusiasm; and by every means in his power he sought to carry to the world the message of the Redeemer. He died defending his faith—died, no doubt, as he would have chosen if he had been permitted to make the choice.

Here in the heart of nature, amid these beautiful Hollywood mountains that Mr. Bryan loved and in nearer communion with God because we are close to God's handiwork, we come to pay a tribute to this champion of Christianity—to this truly good and great man. Perhaps his spirit hovers near us to-night, embraced in that exalted and all-pervading immortality which is the promise of the Christian faith and the craving of the human soul. We send to this soldier of the cross, to this valiant defender of the faith, through the limitless ether that envelopes the universe, a message of admiration and affection as we pronounce the verdict of the countless friends who understood him:

"Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Mr. CURTIS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, December 10, 1925

The House met at 12 o'clock noon and was called to order by the Speaker.

The Chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O God, the author of all good, we can not tell the fullness of Thy name nor understand the resources of Thy bounty, but we are deeply grateful to be counted in the train of Thy servants. With this spirit may we accept the yoke of service and perform the errands of duty. Let love of human praise, hope of personal gain and elusive happiness be far from us. We pray that all laws may be just and their administration equal and right. Bless all forces which are helping men to strive against the wrong. O inspire us that the Lord of all the earth will do right. May God's good angels brood above our hearthstones and fold all hearts in the sweet and calm embrace of His love. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

SWEARING IN OF A MEMBER

Mr. BANKHEAD appeared at the bar of the House and took the oath of office prescribed by law.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION IN CONTROL OF THE HOUSE OFFICE BUILDING

The SPEAKER. The Chair lays before the House the report of the Architect of the Capitol concerning the action of the commission in control of the House Office Building, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL,
Washington, D. C., December 5, 1925.

To the SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

In the legislative bill approved March 4, 1925, making appropriations for the legislative branch of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, the following enactment is found:

"To enable the Architect of the Capitol, subject to the direction and supervision of the commission in control of the House Office Building, to prepare and submit to Congress, on the first day of the first regular session of the Sixty-ninth Congress, plans, specifications, and estimates for the erection of an addition or extension to the House Office Building, sufficient to provide two rooms for each Member, including any recommendations as to the acquisition of an additional site for the erection of an additional office building for Members, $2,500."

Acting under the authority conferred by the section quoted, the Architect of the Capitol after due conference with members of the House Office Building Commission, did on the 30th day of April, 1925, enter into an agreement with an organization known as "The Allied Architects of Washington, D. C. (Inc.)," for the preparation of the schemes which when submitted to Congress, should contain the information desired under the portion of the law heretofore quoted.

From time to time conferences have been held between the Architect of the Capitol and The Allied Architects of Washington, and all necessary explanations and information have been afforded to the allied architects for the preparation of such plans and information as would enable the Congress to determine the question as to which, if either, of the plans submitted would be acceptable to that body.

It should be understood that this information prepared, and which constitutes this report, is submitted for the purpose of a full examination and discussion by the Congress, and that the plans submitted and the drawings or illustrations accompanying the plans are carried only to such an extent as would permit the further development of the plans if considered expedient.

It will be noted that the legislation previously referred to provides not only for suggestions concerning an additional site but also for information concerning an addition or extension to the present House Office Building, and in answer to so much of the legislation as relates to an addition to the present House Office Building, I beg leave to submit herewith a report from Carrere & Hastings, under date of November 28, 1924, in which a possible addition to the present House Office Building, providing for sufficient rooms to enable each Member of Congress to have two rooms, has been outlined and described.

This report of Carrere & Hastings, with the accompanying drawings, will give such information as may be required by those who would
